City, Minnkota in Tentative Pact on Power

Early Action Looms on Entering into Formal Contract

A group of Thief River Falls city officials, at a conference in Grand Forks Thursday with representatives of Minnkota Electric Cooperative, reached tentative agreement on a contract for Minnkota to supply this city's needs for additional power that may be required next winter.

It was indicated that a formal contract will be submitted to the city council for approval at an early meeting. Under its terms, Minnkota would supply standby power and construct the necessary substation.

The city also is negotiating with the Billings, Montana, office of the Bureau of Reclamation for secondary power to be available until such time that firm power may be obtained from the Missouri Valley Authority.

Officials sharing in the Grand Forks conference included Mayor O. D. Beich, Aldermen A. B. Stenberg, James Winjum, and Bob Carlson, and Douglas Stewart, city engineer; Morris Owen, chief engineer at the municipal power plant; and Robert A. Wurst, city attorney.

Red Lake County Woman Takes Own Life at Farm Home

Mrs. Delore Dulude, 54, Shoots Self with Rifle Wednesday Morning

Mrs. Delore Dulude, 54, resident of Louisville township in Red Lake county, committed suicide Wednesday at her home 10 miles west of Red Lake Falls says the Gazette of that city.

The deceased, who shot herself in the head with a bolt-action 30-30 rifle, was found at 10:20 in her bed by her husband who had been sleeping in an adjacent bedroom upstairs. The woman's action had taken place an hour or so previous to the discovery by her husband who is hard of hearing, according to Coroner Dr. Alan McKaig. The woman had been in a despondent mood on a number of occasions.

The coroner was called to the scene and also Sheriff Carl Kankel and County Attorney Charles E. Boughton.

The partially dressed body of the woman was found on her bed. The spent bullet had gone through her head, ricocheted off two walls and after some searching by authorities, was found on the bed.

Only one spent cartridge shell was found in the gun but a clip for the gun was located downstairs. No inquest was called by the coroner.

The deceased was born April 3, 1902 in Lambert township, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Peppin. Celina Peppin was married January 24, 1921 and is survived by her husband and two sons, Clarence and Clifford Dulude of Crookston; five grandchildren, three brothers, Arthur of Virginia, Henry of St. Paul, Walter of Dorothy; two sisters, Mrs. Rose Patnaude of Crookston and Mrs. Jean Gervais of Fargo. Three half-brothers, Louis and Fred Doyea of Dorthy and Paul Doyea of Brooks.

He added that load limits restricting truck loads to four tons per axle will be placed on county roads about March 20, the date when the spring breakup usually gets under way.

Farm Couples Get Tribute at Winter Shows

Mr. and Mrs. John Steiger of Black River Among Group

Sixteen farm couples, one from each of the Red River Valley counties, received special recognition at the 19th annual banquet honoring Valley Farmers and Homemakers held on Thursday, February 28, in conjunction with the Red River Valley Winter Shows at Crookston.

The 1957 honored Valley Farmers and Homemakers received bronze plaques from the Red River Valley Development Association, who sponsored the banquet which was held at the Northwest School, Crookston. Included were Mr. and Mrs. John Steiger, longtime residents of Black River township.

The honored families were selected by a special county committee in their respective counties on the basis of their contribution to the agricultural development of their communities, improvement of their farmsteads, and contributions toward betterment of crops and livestock on their farms and in their counties.

Those honored for the 1957 award were: Mr. and Mrs. Peder J. Fjeld, Audubon, Becker county; Mr. and Mrs. Wilferd Anderson, Hitterdal, Clay county; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer O. Aid Victims of Home Fire

Church Aids Burned-out Family

A good turn was done to a Pennington county farm family who lost their home in a fire Feb. 18 when the building committee of St. John's Lutheran church here donated one of the houses on the site of their church to be built here this spring. Standing before the house before it was moved to the George Erickson farm in Wyandotte township are, l. to r., George Busse, chairman of the church building committee, Walter Montee, financial secretary of the committee and Melvin Zitzow, a church elder.

In the photograph at left George takes time out from setting a footing under his new house to have his picture taken by the Times photographer. Erickson moved to Pennington county from East Grand Forks in 1952 andfarms about 360 acres in Wyandotte twp.

A Wyandotte township family will again be in a home of their own less than a month after they lost practically everything they owned in a fire that destroyed their former home, all because of the good friends the family had in their neighborhood.

George Erickson, who moved to Wyandotte twp. from East Grand Forks in 1952, was on his way home from his daily school bus run about 9 a.m. Feb. 18 when he saw the smoke and flames pouring from the roof of the Erickson home. By the time he arrived it was too late for him and the neighbors who had quickly gathered to put out the fire; in fact they were barely able to save a few items on the back porch of the house.

The Ericksons were stunned by this disastrous turn of events. They had had a "tough row to hoe" to begin with, since their farm is small and George was a city-bred fellow with very little experience until the family moved to Pennington county and started learning to farm the hard way. Now, this fire seemed almost too much of a blow to endure.

However, before they knew it, the neighbors in Wyandotte township and surrounding area rallied to their cause. Some relatives chipped in with clothing, friends and relatives had furniture, others had a piece of this or that until they had almost everything they needed to start housekeeping again.

The kind-hearted folks who think an awful lot of George Erickson and his family also donated a considerable amount of cash while others pledged materials and labor toward a new home for the Ericksons and their four children.

LUTHER J. PICKREL

Luther J. Pickrel is extension economist with the University of Minnesota, and received his doctor of philosophy degree at Michigan State University. He has traveled extensively in Europe, and served in Germany as an agricultural officer under the U. S. High Commission.

Harold C. Pederson is an extension economist in marketing at the U. of M. In recognition of his earlier work as county agent in several Minnesota counties, he was presented with the distinguished service award of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Withholding Tax Measure Is Advanced

Tax Committee of House Supports Proposed Change

The Minnesota house tax committee Thursday recommended passage of the administration-backed state withholding tax proposal.

The vote was 16 to 10 in favor, with several members not present.

The vote was on straight factional lines—all liberals voting in favor and conservatives against.

Rep. E. J. Chilgren, Littlefork, committee chairman, put the matter to a vote over the opposition of several members.

As recommended for passage, the proposal carries a 15 per cent forgiveness feature, incorporated to remove some objections to, in effect, collecting three years taxes in a two-year period.

G. Howard Spaeth, state tax commissioner, lent his support to Youth Victim of Rifle Accident

Richard Thune, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Thune, 523 Tindolph av. S., city, died about noon yesterday in Northwestern hospital from severe brain damage caused by an accidentally self-inflicted wound from a 22 caliber rifle, according to the Pennington county Coroner, Dr. George S. Martin.

The accident evidently happened while young Thune was playing with the 22 cal. bolt action rifle in the living room of his home. His mother had taken his surviving two brothers and sister to Sunday school just minutes before the accident.

The accidentally-discharged bullet struck the youth in the head between 9:30 and 9:45, and he was found lying on the floor by his mother when she returned from taking the other Thune children to Sunday school.

Richard was born Oct. 13, 1944. He was in seventh grade at Lincoln junior high school.

Funeral services will be held Thursday, March 7, at 2 p.m. in Zion Lutheran Church. Pastor Walter M. Pedersen will officiate.

Arrangements are being made by Gulbranson Mortuary.

TRF Jaycees Are Honored for Work in Agriculture

The Thief River Falls Jaycee chapter was awarded second place among Minnesota chapters for its outstanding record of activities in agricultural projects under the direction of Jon [illegible], chairman of the agricultural committee. Announcement of the award was made at the state Junior Chamber's outstanding young farmer award dinner at Austin last Tuesday evening.

S. R. Dahlen on U. S. Committee Stanton R. Dahlen, president of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association, has been appointed to the 1957 committee on federal savings and loan law and regulations of the United States Savings and Loan League. The appointment was announced by Roy M. Marr, Memphis, Tennessee, president of the League.

Intruder Is Found in Ward Store Thursday

City police were "on the job" quickly Thursday evening after receiving a call from the occupant of an apartment in a building near the Montgomery Ward store here, saying someone had walked across the roof, evidently to gain access into the store.

The call came at about 10:15, according to Chief Elton Cummings, and he said a cordon of police was quickly thrown around the Montgomery Ward building.

In the meantime, William Foster, manager of Montgomery Ward store, was working in the store, completely unaware that anything unusual was going on — until he started to leave.

He had turned out the lights, walked to the front of the building and was leaving when he was suddenly bumped then seized by both arms from behind by patrolman Don Meyers, who was in the police cordon.

Foster, who was badly shaken up by the incident, was quickly identified and released and he firmly insisted there was no one in the building, other than himself, as he had been in the building all evening and had heard nothing unusual.

He discovered how wrong he was, however, when police, with guns drawn, entered the store

Deadline March 8 to Amend Acreage Reserve Contract

March 8 Final Date to Sign Wheat Agreements, ASC Chairman Reports

Farmers who want to change or cancel their previously signed 1957 Acreage Reserve agreements for wheat must do so not later than March 8, according to Oscar T. Houske, chairman of the Pennington County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee.

March 8 is the final date for signing Acreage Reserve agreements for 1957 wheat. The regulations under which the Acreage Reserve program operates permits the changing or cancellation of agreements only through the signup period. In general, after March 8, the only agreement changes permitted will be those necessary to correct errors or to designate a different acreage when the originally designated land does not meet the program requirements.

Many farmers have indicated on their agreements that they wish to put a larger acreage than the initial farm limit in the Acreage Reserve. These farmers will be sent a written notice after the close of the signup period, March 8, if it is possible to accept the extra acreages.

Panel Discussions and Talks by Noted Economists Slated

The theme for the Tri-County Farm Forum to be held in Thief River Thursday, March 7, is "Farm Policies and Farm Program." The forum will debate issues of vital interest to the residents of this area, says County Agent Paul Steimaschuk.

Economics is the center of much individual and group discussion. Such matters as farm size, rigid and flexible price supports, agricultural programs and foreign trade will be discussed at the forum by noted authorities.

The Farmers Union of Pennington county, Red Lake county, and Eastern Marshall, the Farm Bureau, and the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce are sponsoring the event.

All the organizations are cooperating with the extension service in bringing this public service to the county. It will be of interest to both town and country families.

The forum will open at 10:00 a.m. with a film. This will be followed by Luther Pickrel, extension economist in public affairs with the University of Minnesota, who will speak on "Agriculture in the Nation's Economy." Harold C. Pederson, also a "U" of M. farm economist, will speak on "How Marketing Costs Affect You."

Dinner will be served by the Pennington county 4-H leaders council at a small charge.

In the afternoon, George Peterson of Washington D. C., an official of the International Cooperation Administration, on the subject of "How Foreign Aid Affects Northwestern Minnesota."

Following this, members of a panel composed of representatives from farm organizations, business, labor, and housewives will express their opinions on the subjects discussed during the day. The panel will be composed of local people. Door prizes will be provided by the sponsoring organizations and an early bird drawing will be made at 10:00 a.m. when the forum will officially open. Other drawings will be made during the program.

The panel is composed of local farmers, business, labor, and consumer representatives. They include W. E. Dahlquist, Thief River Falls Times editor; C. E. Hellquist, Thief River Falls, retired Soo Line locomotive engineer; Art Moe, Marshall County, general farm; Morris Groe, Red Lake county, general farmer; Bert Johnson, Pennington, grain farmer; Albert Kopp, Pennington, dairy and grain farmer; Harry Oen, Pennington county, general farmer; and Mrs. Gunder Legvold, Thief River Falls, housewife.

The panel members will express their opinions on the views expressed by the experts and answer questions asked by the audience.

Plan to attend this important event, and bring your neighbor, urges County Agent Steimaschuk, in charge of local arrangements.

Lundberg also stated that he had recently acquired Hotel Crookston in Crookston, the Bemidji Hotel in Bemidji, the Endion Hotel in Cass Lake and the Blaisdell Hotel in Minneapolis.

Mrs. Stewart, former owner of the local Hotel, left with her two sons Friday for San Diego, California, making the trip by car with a trailer.

WHAT FINISH FOR WHAT SURFACE

by Bud Kelly

Today, there are dozens of types of paint to choose from. Sometimes several types of paint may be suitable for a particular project. No wonder many people are confused about what finish to use for what surface.

Here, briefly, are a few yardsticks to use in choosing the right paint for the job:

Let's take the various wall finishes first. A wall finish has three variables: color, washability and gloss. Washability increases with an increase in gloss. Low gloss flat paints are good for living rooms and bedrooms while high gloss enamels are best for kitchens and bathrooms.

• • • •

We recommend that you use SUPERMIX Alkyd Flat Wall Paint (or Super Kemtone if you prefer a latex base paint) when you need a flat wall paint. When you need an enamel, we recommend SUPERMIX 4-Hour Enamel or SUPERMIX Satin Finish.

• • • •

Choosing a good outside house paint is no longer a problem. We carry one paint that is tops in quality and suitable for any outside job — SUPERMIX House Paint. If you want a good one coat house paint, we recommend SUPERMIX One Coat House Paint.

• • • •

SUPERMIX Floor Enamel is the best paint for porches, steps and floors; either wood or concrete. Either SUPERMIX 4-Hour Varnish or SUPERMIX Plasti-Film Varnish is the best for solid hardwood flooring where a natural finish is desired.

• • • •

If we haven't covered the type of finish you've been wondering about, why not come in and talk it over. We're sure we can help you pick the right paint.

47 Adult Leaders of County 4-H Clubs Fill Important Function

Pennington county now has 47 adult 4-H leaders who are volunteering their time and talents to help make local 4-H club work a success, reports Home Agent Marge Olsen.

They are among 8,000 rural men and women in Minnesota who are volunteering their services as advisers to 4-H clubs. In time alone, these men and women spend what amounts to a total of 16 days a year in their 4-H club activities.

In addition to the adult leaders in Pennington county, 60 older club boys and girls are assisting as junior leaders.

During National 4-H Club Week—March 2-9—these volunteer local leaders are sharing the spotlight with their club members as attention is focused on achievements and objectives for the year.

In praise of local club leaders, Leonard Harkness, state 4-H club leader at the University of Minnesota, declared, "Without their faithful interest, hard work and continual efforts, 4-H club work would not be the success it has been over the years." Harkness urged more public-spirited, youth-minded citizens to volunteer for this service of working with young people.

The volunteer advisers or local leaders are men and women in the community who want to have a hand in helping boys and girls to become better citizens, better farmers and homemakers, according to Miss Olsen. They are sufficiently interested in young people to be willing to spend some time in training for the work and in helping members with their programs and projects. They attend club meetings, visit 4-H'ers to see how their projects and demonstrations are progressing and offer encouragement and suggestions where needed. They are at hand for consultation when club members plan the year's program. They also accompany members when they go to club events outside the community.

Credit for longest leadership goes to these leaders with two to five years of service: Mrs. Frank Armstrong, Mrs. Caster Moe, Mrs. Orvin Anderson, Mrs. Sig Folkadahl, Mrs. Gust Gustafson, Mrs. Casimer Radneicki, Eddie Anderson, Engvald Dahl, Mrs. Orlando Chervestad, Mrs. Alvin Fjeld, Mrs. Roman Radneicki, Mrs. Chas. Sorenson, and Gerald Yonke. Those who have five years and over as adult leaders are: Mrs. Geo. Breznay, Mrs. Al Brink, Mrs. W. A. Corbet, Mrs. Martin Finstad, Mrs. Elmer Kron, Mrs. Adam Lendobeja, Mrs. Norton Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Parnow, Mrs. I. J. Russell, Mrs. Chas. Svendsgaard, and Mrs. Richard Swanson.

Newest among leaders for the year are: Mr. and Mrs. Art Dicken, Mr. Martin Finstad, Beverly Frazer, Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Hoffman, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Larson, Mr. and Mrs. Meral Mosbeck, Lloyd Nelson, Mrs. Clifford Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Paulson, Mrs. Jack Radneicki, Mrs. Swen Sjustad, Dale Svendsgaard, Mrs. Alvin Swenson, and Mrs. Vernon Wold.

Bible Institute Group Offers Play

To Be Given Saturday at Gospel Tabernacle

A group of sixteen students form North Central Bible Institute of Minneapolis will present a play, "Soldier of the Cross" at the Assemblies of God Tabernacle on Saturday evening, March 9, at 7:30 p.m.

The service will be sponsored by the young people's organization of the Northwest section Assemblies of God churches, and will be attended by delegations from a number of surrounding towns.

Miss Grace Hagenbeck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gotfred Hagenbeck of Thief River Falls, and a student at the school, takes one of the main roles in the presentation.

The program includes musical selections, which fit into the play, by a girls' trio and vocal and instrumental selections by other members of the cast.

Talent Contests Set for Goodridge, Grygla and Gully

Elimination Events to Be Held in Each Area for Selection of Finalists

The third annual talent contest is being sponsored at Grygla, Goodridge and Gully with contestants from those areas participating in elimination contests prior to the final contest which is tentatively set for March 29, according to Mrs. Clara Boyum, music instructor at the Grygla school, in charge of the event.

The contestants, as has been the case in previous years, will be divided into two groups. Group I includes grades 1 thru 8 and in past years a few pre-school contestants have also participated. Group II will include students from grades 9 thru 12 and adults. A spokesman indicated it was hoped a greater number of contestants outside the schools would participate in this year's contest.

The preliminary contests will be held at Goodridge March 25, at Gully March 26 and at Grygla March 27, according to Mrs. Boyum.

From the elimination contests six winners will be chosen from each area contest to participate in the finals event March 29th. Only at the final event will there be an admission charge.

A grade prize will be awarded at the final contest.

First Rehearsal of Easter Cantata Wednesday, 9 p. m.

Bryant Ulseth, Director Invites Singers to Share in Community Event

"The Seven Last Words of Christ", a sacred Easter cantata by Theodore Dubois, will be presented by a community chorus Good Friday evening, April 19th, in the Lincoln high school auditorium under the direction of Bryant Ulseth.

The first rehearsal of the chorus will be held in the Lincoln high school music room at 9 p.m. Wednesday March 6th. It has not been possible to contact persons individually and invite them to participate in the chorus, said Ulseth, but all high school and adult singers from Thief River Falls and the surrounding area are urged to attend. Rehearsals will be held each Wednesday evening after the Lenten services for approximately one hour. Music will be furnished without charge.

The carefully written composition by Dubois has been sung on occasion before in the city and it is hoped that the presentation will become an annual event. This year's presentation marks the 90th anniversary of the work. Dubois, organist and conductor of the choir of Sainte-Clotilde Cathedral in Paris, conducted it for the first time on Good Friday, 1867.

Musical selections were supplied by Mrs. Walter Larson and by the Sorenson-Ulseth quartet.

GROWING WITH YOUR CHILD

Institute of Child Welfare University of Minnesota

Put It Here—Not There!

In their zeal to encourage children to do for themselves, parents often forget that there are many things children simply do not know HOW to do. For instance, they do not know how to take the best care of their belongings. They do not know where is the best place to keep them. They even do not know how to put them away when the right place is shown them.

Now what does this mean? First, it means that we must teach them to care about taking care. This is a specific job with the specific goal of showing Joey that he can find what he wants when he wants it and that it will be in better condition if he has a place for it and keeps it there. If Joey is an only child it matters where his things are kept; if Joey must share space it makes a still greater difference where we put what.

If we put toy dishes (instead of blocks) beside trucks we are inviting misuse of dishes. If we put books next to pounding boards, we are discouraging use of books. If we put Bobby's doorway swing where Joey has his only tricycle exist, the die is cast not only for quarrels but for bumps.

Third, spatial relations have to be learned, and the process is neither simple nor rapid. Judgement of size or shape, larger or smaller, up or down, in or out, upon or under, are not born full-grown any more than is the baby's body. When an adult has something to put into a space experience tells him whether it will fit better horizontally, perpendicularly or diagonally.

The small child has no such crutch; he must try out each idea, and he judges his success or failure only partially. Little wonder, then, that shelves and drawers used by the young child look as they do. They need time to learn and they need encouragement mixed with patience in the adults about them.

The real contribution for parents to provide, the right space for the right thing to avoid the many issues which produce the familiar nagging pattern in many homes. Of course, too, parents should be good examples themselves.

"Be A Creep"

Parents of modern teen agers often find themselves in the uncomfortable position of being controlled by their sons and daughters. This control stems from three remarkable teen age weapons: their weird speech usages; their realization that their parents are at an age to need reassurance that they are valued; their tendency to be extremists in all that they do or say.

Let us trace a teen ager's path from the time she decides that she wants something until she does or does not get it. Carol sees a new type of sweater on one of her friends. It may be cashmere instead of her tycora cable-stitch instead of her ribbed, crew-necked instead of her V-necked—the extent of the difference is irrevelant. First Carol starts referring to 'these rags' or "sad-sack me." Then she says, "Don't you want me to be popular? Don't you want me to be like other kids? YOU always have the very latest things. YOU always look nice (weapon number 2). You know my sweaters are 'for the birds.' I look like a 'peasant!'"

Weapon number 3 begins when she brings the newly sweatered girl friend home. Hereupon mother admires the sweater, to be quoted later when Carol says, "But mother, you yourself said it was 'just out of this world.' Even YOU said so."

Any further parental resistance brings the main club — "Mother, don't be a 'creep'!" (whatever that is). Now no mother wants to be a "creep", and especially no teen ager's mother. One might be a creep, inconspicuously, if the parent of an older or younger child, whereas to get the label from teen agers is a public matter.

But do you know something? Three times in the last month this parent has been a "creep" and nothing dire has happened yet. Come on it, other parents of teen agers, let's say "No" when our better judgment tells us to, and be "creeps" together. Our sons and daughters will profit, and it is entirely possible that we will, too.

Creamery at Grygla Shows Gain in Volume

A good attendance marked the annual meeting of the Grygla Cooperative creamery association at Grygla Monday, February 25. Principal speaker at the meeting was Ralph Godin, director of cooperative auditing in the state department of agriculture, dairy and food.

Clarence Peterson was reelected to the board of directors. There was no change in officers at the reorganization meeting of the board. Officers and directors include Fleet Gilbert, president; Lloyd Hanson, vice president; Robert Sundberg, secretary; Clarence Peterson and Kernal Paulson, directors. Renamed manager for one year was Amos L. Thompson of Grygla.

The annual statistical report covering year's operation between January 1 and December 31, 1956 shows the association made gains and reflected the higher standards to which the dairy industry generally is rising.

The total pounds of cream received in 1956 amounted to 1,022,007 pounds or 4,333 pounds more than in the previous year. Broken down into grades the report points out that of the butterfat received last year, 225,[illegible] pounds were accepted as sweet cream, while a year earlier only 189,568.6 pounds of sweet cream were received. That is a gain of 35,899.2 pounds.

The report also shows that No. 1 grade cream received by the cooperative dropped from 106,178.5 pounds in 1955 to 76,131.7 last year. A similar trend was noted in No. 2 grade cream received when only 1,218.7 pounds were received in 1956 as compared to 5,809.3 taken in during 1955.

The creamery shipped 14,831 pounds more of sweet cream butter out of its plant in 1956 than it did in 1955, for a total of 46,591 pounds. Butter sold to patrons and in the Grygla area amounted to 39,550 pounds or 760 pounds over a year earlier. Meanwhile the creamery dropped 16,384 pounds in production of undergrade butter shipped from the plant in 1956. A total of 301,000 pounds was shipped out in 1956 as compared to 287,616 in 1955.

The total average operating cost per pound of butterfat handled in 1956 was 7.271 cents. This compares favorably with the higher figure of 7.850 cents in 1955.

WHAT GOES INTO 936 PAVED HIGHWAY MILES

Present plans call for 936 miles of the new controlled-access federal highway network to span Minnesota. It is estimated that this construction program will employ some 24,000 persons: 8,000 "on site" workmen and about double that number "off site or behind the scenes, in planning, procurement, and other essential activities. Into the finished product will go approximately 975 tons of steel, 2,500,000 tons of bituminous matter, 28,000,000 barrels of cement, 194,000,000 tons of aggregate, and 266,000,000 gallons of petroleum products.

Four Weekend Car Accidents in City

Area Highways Continue to Be Free of Mishaps

Accidents in the city continue to dominate the traffic scene as rural and trunk highways in the area remain accident free, according to reports from law enforcement officers.

Neither the sheriff or highway patrol had an accident to report, which has been the situation for several weeks running.

City police reported four accidents, all of which caused property damage but no injuries.

Friday John X. Lynskey, driving south on Kendall av. N. was struck in the left-rear fender by a car driven by Sherry Ruth Anderson, who was driving west on Mussey st. Damage to the Anderson car was about $150 and to the Lynskey car, about $125.

Also on Friday Martin E. Mitts, city, was struck from behind as he was waiting for traffic ahead of him at the 1st st.-Main av. intersection, by Eldon E. Moe, rt. 2, city. Moe's car was damaged to about $25 extent, the Mitts car was undamaged.

Two accidents Sunday, neither of which were investigated by police, resulted in property damages to three cars. In the first, the car of Frank Conklin, city, was struck on the right front door and fender by Edward L. Donarski, rt. 5, city, at the Hughes st.-Tindolph av. intersection with damages to the Conklin car estimated at $85. Damages to the Donarski car were not given. Donarski was tagged for leaving the scene of an accident.

LuVerne M. Larson reported to police Monday morning she had hit a parked car belonging to George Poppenhagen as she was driving south on Crocker av. about 2:30 p.m. Sunday. Poppenhagen estimated damages to his car at about $10 while no damage estimate to the Larson car was given.

Friends Rally to Aid of George Ericksons, Recent Fire Victims

Meanwhile, all the men in the neighborhood started looking for a house that could be moved onto the Erickson farm so they can start over in their daily routine.

That's where the folks of St. John's Lutheran church in Thief River Falls come in. A Thief River Falls fireman told Earl Peterson about the new church building the St. John's congregation is going to build next summer and mentioned the possibility of getting one of those houses.

One thing led to another and last Thursday Jennings Jenson started down the airport road with a new house for the Erickson family donated to them by the church, at no cost other than hauling it away. By noon it was in the farmyard and nowadays a crew composed of George, Oscar Houske, Carl Kolseth, Earl Peterson, Clarence Hanson and several others from the neighborhood are full speed at making the house livable. Jenson moved the house for only the cost of the fuel used, another big break for the Ericksons.

In a little over a week the Ericksons probably will be living in the house. It isn't a mansion, it's true, but, as George said, "To To us it will seem like one!"

George admits being quite discouraged after the fire. However, after learning how hard his neighbors, friends and relatives were trying to get him back on his feet again his spirits picked up, although his wife's opinion was yet to be solicited.

"I told her that 'now would be as good time as any to move back to East Grand Forks,' and she answered in two words. They were 'we'll stay.' That's all there was to that!" was how George described the talk with Mrs. Erickson.

George admits getting his start as a farmer hasn't been easy. But, he doesn't feel any self-pity in spite of their misfortune. He's more determined than ever to stay, to continue building up his herd of Holsteins and otherwise make his farm a success.

"It's true we lost all our material goods," he said, as he worked at putting the new home on footings last week, "But we discovered we had resources we never dreamed of in the good neighbors we have. If we quit when our house burned we'd have been letting our neighbors down. We simply can't and won't to that!"

Right now they need a single bed and a roll-away bed as the new house has only four rooms to accomodate the six persons in the family and space will be at a premium. George is also looking for a used refrigerator and electric stove.

"Other than those items we'll have to buy very little to get started in our home again." George went on, "The odds and ends are what will take the most to replace for some time to come. But we'll made out."

Oh yes—George said there is going to be one bang-up housewarming when the Ericksons are settled in their new home. And you can count on everyone in the neighborhood being invited, George said.

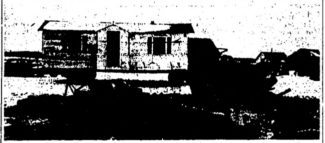
Neighbors Pitch In to Get Erickson House Ready for Occupancy

Several of the friends and neighbors who are helping the George Erickson family get back on their feet after a disastrous fire which leveled their home Feb. 18 are shown here as they work at making a new home livable.

In the photo at left are Oscar Houske, Carl Kolseth, Earl Peterson, who has been one of the leaders in neighborhood efforts to help the Ericksons, and Jennings Jenson, housemover who moved the new house from the St. Johns' Lutheran church building site in Thief River Falls to the Erickson farm for costs.

In the smaller photo Myrl Vettleson and Wally Evenson work on timbers of the house, preparatory to setting it on foundations. Another neighbor who is contributing much help, Clarence Hanson, was not present when the picture was taken.

Erickson's New Home Stands Near Rubble of Old



The remains of the burned-out George Erickson house in Wyandotte township loom in the foreground as the trailer bearing the Erickson's new home arrives at the farmyard last Wednesday. Very little was saved from the fire. Thanks to the generosity of St. John's Lutheran church, in Thief River Falls, friends, neighbors and relatives, the Erickson family will be fairly well supplied with the necessities of life within a very few weeks after the disaster.

Intruder Caught at Ward's Store Thursday Night

attic and routed a very badly scared local boy, who had left home about a week ago, from his hiding place. He told police he had "been looking for a warm place to sleep," after allegedly sleeping in cars on used car lots rather than go home.

He had entered the attic of the Montgomery Ward store through a rooftop entrance and had not entered the store proper; nor had he intended to, he told police, who were inclined to take his story of face value after learning further details of the situation.

Chief Cummings said no specific charges were placed against the boy, who is reportedly a good student at Lincoln high school here. He was brought into juvenile court Saturday morning for disposition of his case.

Although the boy had been in minor trouble before, Probate Court Judge Herman Kjos said the boy's troubles stem largely from domestic misunderstandings and that, rather than prosecuting him for the break-in, steps have been taken to help the boy through appointing a counselor to help him with problems leading to the escapade.

The Montgomery Ward manager concurred in the opinion that more would be accomplished by helping the boy than by pressing charges against him.

county; Mr and Mrs. Emil Tiedeman, Euclid, West Polk county; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Robidoux, Brooks, Red Lake county; Mr. and Mrs. Andy W. Erickson, Badger, Roseau county; and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd H. Doty, Nashua, Wilkin county.

At the banquet, B. E. Youngquist, superintendent of the Northwest School and Experiment Station and president of the Winter Shows' board of managers, served as toastmaster. Invocation was given by the Rev. J. David Larsen. Dr. T. H. Fenske, associate dean of the Institute of Agriculture, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, gave the "recognition" address for the honored Valley Farmers and Homemakers, and O. C. Soine, president of the Red River Valley Development Association, presented the bronze plaque awards. The response for the 1957 Valley Farmers and Homemakers was given by Andy W. Erickson of Badger.

Withholding Tax Bill Progresses in Lower House

the pay-as-you go proposal. He said "as your outgoing commissioner," he felt called upon to express the feeling the department has "never been on top" of the income tax collection.

The vote followed a lengthy statement by Charles P. Stone, counsel for the Minnesota Taxpayers Assn., which opposes withholding.

Stone said the contention of his group is that the plan would cost the state and taxpayers more than it would bring in.

He said it is estimated the cost to the state of processing some 500,000 returns would be at least $250,000, and the cost to some 80,000 employers at $25 each would be about $2,000,000.

Stone said the latest estimate of increased revenue to the state by installing withholding was roughly two million.

Rep. D. D. Wozniak, St. Paul, a supporter, said Stone arrived at his two million dollar cost to employers figure by simply dividing the number of employers by the estimated increased revenue.

Wozniak also indicated adoption of withholding would forestall a state sales tax.

The house labor committee Friday recommended for passage a bill establishing a $1 hourly minimum wage with time and one-half for overtime after 40 hours a week.

The bill would set the $1 minimum for both men and women workers throughout the state in contrast to a current law which sets wage minimums only for women and minors and varies minimums with the size of population.

Chief sponsor of the bill, Rep. Joseph Prifrel, St. Paul, amended the proposal, which has been under committee study for several weeks, to lower the floor figure from a flat $1.25 an hour to $1 for adults and 75 cents for minors under 18.

Big Patient Load at N.W. Hospital During February

Institution Handled an Average of 76 Patients Per Day Throut Month

With 2129 total patient days during the short month of February, Northwestern Hospital had its highest February patient load for the past five years, Harold W. Peterson, administrator, said today. This averaged 76 patients per day throughout the month. In addition 30 babies were born at the hospital.

There were only two deaths during the month, which marks one of the lowest months for deaths in the history of the hospital since 1952. 280 patients, not counting newborn, were admitted during the month. During eight days there were over 80 patients, the highest patient day showing 87 patients and five babies in the nursery.

A total of 29% of all admissions were of children under 16 years of age. This made 81 pediatric patients admitted. 72% of all admitted patients had some kind of hospitalization coverage. Of these 23% were covered by Blue Cross. Only 8% of the admitted patients were receiving county aid and 20% had no insurance coverage.

Eighty surgical patients were discharged during the month. In addition, 171 out-patients received care at the hospital after clinic closing hours.

Pennington 4-H'ers Win at Winter Shows in Dairy Projects

A total of 138 demonstrations were given in the dairy demonstration contest held Tuesday and Wednesday at the Red River Valley Winter Shows. This was a large increase over the number given last year, County Home Agent Marge Olsen announced today.

Pennington County 4-H'ers presented 14 demonstrations in the Wednesday competition. Judges were Mrs. Bill Provance of Roseau, Mrs. Harley Shurson of McIntosh, Miss Eleanor Fitzgerald of Moorhead and Miss Verna Mikesh, extension nutritionist of St. Paul.

In giving the judges comments, Miss Mikesh said, "We would like to see more main dishes using dairy foods as topics of your demonstrations and fewer desserts. Try to use more milk and cheese as ingredients and stress these dairy foods, rather than stressing butter and cream. Milk and cheese give us nutrients which are harder for us to get in other foods; the nutrients found in butter and cream are found easily in other foods. We do a better job of promoting the interests of the dairy people when we stress the use of milk and cheese.

Miss Mikesh also mentioned one feature of the demonstrations that pleased her especially. Very few of the boys and girls used notes in giving their demonstrations, as nearly all of them just talked, which is preferred.

Premiums were presented the demonstrators by the Red River Valley Dairymen's Association. Pennington county's results were as follows:

Bonnie and Virginia Finstad, Rocksbury, red; Catherine Mousley, Rocksbury, red; Carol Lovely, Star, white; Donna Schlofer, Star, red; Anita Swanson, Highlanding, red; Sharon Swanson, Highlanding, red; Marion Swenson, St. Hilaire, blue; Sharon Peltron, St. Hilaire, red; Sharon Peterson, St. Hilaire, red; Nelda Lea Nelson, Smiley, red; Patty Hornseth, Steiner, blue; Diana Bjerke, Silverton, blue; Sharon Pupprecht—and Jeanette Nelson, Silveron, red.

Raymond Nelson of the Silverton 4-H club was awarded a purple ribbon for his demonstration on Making Ice Cream.

Farm Forum Thursday

Thursday is our Big Day — our tri-county Farm Forum here in Thief River Falls. I hope you and your husband are planning to come in — it's a very worthwhile meeting for all women to attend.

Many problems of farm families will be talked over by the three guest speakers whom you've been reading about in the paper. But most important, you'll have a chance to ask these folks their opinions on various farm problems. Several local people will form a panel who will ask and answer questions too — this sounds like Farm Forum is just asking questions, doesn't it? But you'll have a chance to listen and enjoy yourself too.

The Pennington County 4-H Leaders council are serving a noon meal at very low cost. Several door prizes will be given too — one is an Early Bird prize for which folks who come early are eligible. You'll want to come early and stay for the whole Farm Forum.

We want to be informed because we women are important to our families and to the community. Farm Forum will help keep you informed.

We'll see you Thursday, morning at the Thief River Falls Armory.

A Real Treat

As Raymond Nelson said in his dairy demonstration at the Winter Shows last week,

"For those just right,
The plump and the lean,
"There is no more attractive way of serving them,
Than with Homemade Ice Cream."

Raymond, who is a member of the Silverton 4-H club, made a delicious ice cream, which you will want to try. He used home-produced cream in his recipe, from his family's Milking Shorthorn herd.

Raymond won a purple ribbon for his demonstration, so let's call this Raymond Nelson's Purple Ribbon Winning Ice Cream:

3 cups cream, whipped; 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, ¼ cup dry milk, 1 tbsp. vanilla, ⅛ tsp. salt.

Method: Whip 3 cups of cream. Measure 1 cup of sugar and add two eggs, ¼ cup dry milk, vanilla, and salt. Stir until well mixed, then beat until sugar is well dissolved.

Add this mixture to the whipped cream, and pour the mixture into the freezer container. Put into the freezer tub, and pack with salt and ice, alternately, about ⅛ salt and ⅞ ice. Begin turning freezer handle immediately, in a clockwise direction, and continue turning until it is difficult to turn.

You can then remove from the freezer and pack into freezing containers and store in your freezer, or you can store in the ice cream freezer for a limited time.

Variations: Choc. Ice Cream—Add two squares of semi-sweet chocolate, melted.

Orange Ice Cream—1 tbsp. orange extract and 6 drops of orange food coloring.

Maple Nut Ice Cream—1 tsp. maple flavoring and 1 cup chopped nuts.

Raspberry Ice Cream—1 cup drained Raspberries and 6 drops of red food coloring.

Butterscotch — 1 cup brown sugar, omit the white sugar, and 1 cup butterscotch bits, melted.

If you have a youngster who'll soon be starting school, either this year or next, you'll want to look over a bulletin we just received in our office. It's called "Looking Forward to School." You'll find it interesting reading, and maybe you can use some of the suggestions given. Call us at 748 or come down to the office for your copy.

I'll see you at Farm Forum on Thursday, and again here next week!

The protein level in his blood dangerously low, a 10-year-old victim of the kidney disease, nephrosis, showed marked improvement after 20 transfusions of the blood plasma derivative, serum albumin. Top 4-H Dairy Cattle Judging Team

A Pennington county 4-H dairy cattle judging team won top honors at the Red River Valley Winter Shows at Crookston last Tuesday. 4-H'er of the WEEK

Margaret Peterson

All of Margaret Peterson's family have been enrolled in 4-H. Margaret, who is a member of the Silverton 4-H club, has five sisters and one brother who have all been 4-H members. Her youngest sister is still to young, but in a couple of year we expect that she will enroll too.

Margarets parents are Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Peterson, who farm in Silverton township.

Since joining the Silverton Club in 1948, Margaret has taken the clothing, food preparation, garden, and health projects. She has been president, vice-president, secretary and reporter.

In her church, as many older 4-H club members do, she has served as Sunday School teacher, and has been president and vice president of the Luther League. She has also been active in L. D. R.

Margaret sings in the Lincoln high school mixed chorus and in the girls glee club.

"4-H has helped me in many different ways, particularly in the field of home economics, such as the planning and preparing of nutritious meals," Margaret says of 4-H Club work.

Margaret is undecided about her future, but says that she will probably be a secretary or a telephone operator as her three older sisters have been.

4-H CLUB NEWS

New Solum 4-H Club

The New Solum 4-H club held its monthly meeting Tuesday evening February 21, at their club building.

The music and play contest was discussed. Mrs. Thelma Dahl was elected as sewing project leader, and our adult leader informed the members of the new Farm and Home Shop bulletin, which they could pick up at the extension office.

The program, led by Wayne Dahl, was as follows:

A poem was read by John Hellquist and a piano solo was played by Martha Uggerud. A reading was given by Larry Kron, followed by a song by the group.

A recreation period followed, ing the parts of the beef animal. Riddles were asked by Marina Uggerud and Elaine Hellquist, consisting of a contest on names which were enjoyed very much by all.

Invited visitors were Curtiss Bottom, Ronnie and Roger Sever.

A delicious lunch was served by the mothers and leaders.

Safety Topic at Plummer March 6

Glenn Pickett, extension safety specialist, University of Minnesota, will conduct the county-wide leader training meeting on safety Wednesday, March 6, at 1:30 in the Plummer Community Hall, Plummer, according to Red Lake county Home Agent, Eleanor Poltronetti.

Shootin' the Breeze

BY Mack Draper

It's easy to be disgusted with mankind sometimes—until one sees what good deeds can be done for a neighbor in distress, as the folks down in Wyandotte township did for the burned-out Erickson family.

We realize we did mention this once before in our column but after going down there and actually seeing what a wonderful example of "love thy neighbor" those people are practicing, we just couldn't resist talking about it again.

There's a full feature story elsewhere in this issue of the Times about the Erickson's misfortune and how their neighbors came to the rescue.

Anyway, without going into detail here, we'll say it is very refreshing, indeed, to see folks living up to the Golden Rule, instead of fighting among themselves. Too bad we can't live as peacebly on an international scale.

The first robin of the season was reported before 1956 went out—but we're willing to wager the fly the missus killed in one of our windows was the first of the season. A dubious honor, of course!

You can tell it already—spring is on the way, but definitely. Even during recent cold snaps Old Sol has made himself very much in evidence and the days have warmed nicely.

You can also tell spring is on the way by the way men huddle around the fishing tackle displays at the sporting goods stores these days. (We also hear Orvis Olen is working overtime concocting some 1957 model fish stories.)

That freak snowstorm late Thursday afternoon would have been an "April shower" if the temperature had been just a few degrees higher.

And, while speaking of the weather, it might be well to mention that city crews wasted no time in opening the storm sewer at LaBree and Second st. when water threatened to cover the street and get into a nearby store.

Most people believe in everyone's right to his own opinion—so long as the opinion coincides with their own.

An optimist is a man who thinks he can stop paying out money on his automobile after he makes the last monthly installment on it. Heck—that's usually when repair bills come rolling in!

So Long!

Report On Highway Meeting

Ed O. Stennes, who is a member on the Highway 59 committee, attended a meeting held in the state highway commissioner's office at St. Paul on Monday, Feb. 25. The delegation consisted of representatives from Thief River Falls, Newfolden, Strandquist, Karlstad, Lake Bronson and Lancaster.

Wm. LaFave, manager of Bridgeman Creameries, was Thief River Falls delegate. He furnished transportation from Thief River Falls to St. Paul, treated the committee members to a dinner at the Dykeman hotel and a triple deck ice cream at the Downtown Bridgeman Ice Cream parlor. The delegation greatly appreciated this generosity.

The purpose of the meeting was to present the commissioner with sound reasons why it has become necessary to improve and straighten Highway 59 from Thief River Falls to the Canadian border.

The province of Manitoba has done considerable improvement on their side of the boundary and expect to have their part of the highway completed within two years. They have built a custom's office and maintain a Port of Entry staff at the boundary north from Lancaster.

The commissioner and his able assistant A. O. Torgerson, gave the committee a congenial reception but stated that the state department is very low on funds and demands, from all parts of the state, greatly exceeded the money available. For that reason it becomes necessary for them to allot available funds where the need is the greatest. Under these conditions the Highway 59 committee unanimously agreed to request improvement on some specific part of the highway where traffic was heavy and driving was hazardous. The result of this request was that a survey will be made from ½ mile north of Strandquist to Newfolden next summer and that this project will rate on a priority list to be constructed as soon as funds are available, possibly in 1958.

Agile Soldier

PLAIN TWO-ARM PUSHUPS are too easy for these soldiers in Korea. So the Red Cross clubmobile girl has ruled that the contestant can use only one arm in lowering himself to the floor to pick up Kleenex with his teeth. This is typical of the fun taken to servicemen in isolated locations in Korea by Red Cross girls.

Q—I have added the total disability income rider to my GI insurance policy. If anything happens to me so that I receive disability payments, will those payments reduce the face amount of my policy?

A—No. The face amount of your GI policy will not be affected by any payments you might receive under the total disability income provision because you are paying an added premium for this protection.

Q—How much special restorative training may a handicapped young man or woman receive under the War Orphans Education probram?

A—As much as is necessary to overcome or lessen the handicap of the disability to the extent that the young man or woman may pursue a program of education. However, the special training may not exceed 30 months.

Q—I am planning to sell my GI house. How do I go about applying to VA for a release from liability to the Government?

A—You must submit a written request to the VA Regional Office which processed your loan. The request should include your VA loan number if you know it; address of the property; name and address of the proposed purchases, and name and address of the lender who holds the note and mortgage.

Q—If I want to take a course under the Korean GI Bill that often is considered a vocational or recreational in nature, what steps am I supposed to take?

A—You must submit justification to VA that the course will be of bona fide use in your present or contemplated business or occupation. You must get VA's approval before starting the course.

Q—My State gives a bonus to Korea veterans. May I apply for it through the VA?

A—No. VA does not administer State bonuses. You should file your application with your State, not with VA.

Q—I am planning to sell my GI home and allow the buyer to take over the GI loan. When should I apply to VA for release from liability to the Government—before or after I sign the sales contract?

A—You should apply to VA for release from liability before you sign the contract. In that way, you will know whether the buyer is eligible to assume your liability before you commit yourself to sell.

Q—My husband, a World War II veteran, died after January 1, 1957, of a service-connected illness. Would I have a choice of receiving death compensation payments or payments under the new Survivors' Benefits Act?

A—You would not have a choice. Families of veterans who die of service-connected conditions after January 1, 1957, are eligible only for Indemnity Compensation payments under the new Survivors' Benefits Act.

Q—My son is eligible for schooling under the War Orphans education program, since my husband, a World War II veteran, died of a service-connected disability. Eight Teams in Dist. Basketball Tourney Today in Grand Forks

Eight teams—the Thief River Falls Prowlers, the Warren Ponies, the Climax Vikings, the Red Lake Falls Eagles, the Crookston Pirates, the Goodridge Huskies, the East Grand Forks Green Wave, and the Plummer Cardinals—are primed for the 31st district basketball tournament that opened this afternoon at Grand Forks.

First round games will find the Thief River Falls Prowlers playing the Warren Ponies at 2:30 p.m.; the Climax Vikings meeting the Red Lake Falls Eagles at 4:00 p.m.; the Crookston Pirates playing the Goodridge Huskies at 7:30 p.m.; and the Plummer Cardinals playing East Grand Forks at 9:00 p.m.

The semi-finals will be played on Tuesday night, with the district championship final being scheduled for 9:00 p.m. on Wednesday night.

Unlike the 29th district, with its Bemidji Lumberjacks, and the 30th district, with its Mahnomen Indians, its Fertile Falcons, and Halstad Pirates; and the 32nd district, with its Kennedy Rockets and Baudette Burbots, the 31st district doesn't have a standout team.

Given the ratings of eight favorites are the defending champion, Crookston Pirates and the Thief River Falls Prowlers. But such teams as the Climax Vikings and the Plummer Cardinals, by virtue of their fine play during the season, have earned "dark horse" ratings.

Coach Al Adams will have one senior, seven juniors, and four sophomores on the 12-man Prowler cage squad that will compete in the district tournament. The squad members are, senior, Daryl Williamson; juniors, Dave Hanson, Dave Rasmussen, Keith Johnson, Kenny Jonah, Ken DeLap, Dick Hanson, and Jimmy Bennes; and sophomores, Phil Hanson, Mickey Hanson, Lynn Nicholson and Harlie Drees.

Ripplinger Faces Charge of Murder

Red Lake Co. Attorney Boughton Files Charges

Joseph Ripplinger, 62, Red Lake County farmer, Thursday, was charged with second degree murder in the shotgun slaying of his wife and first degree assault in the wounding of his son.

The charges against Ripplinger, were filed by Chales Boughton, Red Lake county attorney.

Sheriff Carl Kankel had testified at an inquest Tuesday that Ripplinger told him he shot his wife in their home Sunday after she came at him with a butcher knife.

Kankel said earlier Ripplinger also admitted shooting his son, Thomas, 17, when the latter came downstairs after hearing the shot. The youth is hospitalized in fair condition.

A grand jury will consider the case.

This an' That

Three Americans will be entered in the Grand Prix at Havana during March. All three regularly drive for Italian auto racing factory teams. They are Harry Shell, Masten Gregory and Phil Hill. Each will drive a privately owned and entered car, as will world champion Juan Manuel Fangio of Argentina, who will also be in the race . . . Perhaps a prospect for somebody's basketball team, the world's tallest man is reportedly "growing up" in New Delhi, India. Mansa Kala enjoyed normal growth until he was 16, then he started shooting skyward. He is now 7 feet, 6 inches and his doctor claims he may grow as tall as 10 feet. But he has never seen a basketball . . . Southeastern Conference Commissioner Bernie Moore has hinted that next season may see a tightening of the rules regarding the practice of member schools playing their "home" games away from their campuses and at near metropolitan centers where the "gate" is always more profitable. Georgia, Mississippi, Mississippi State, Auburn and Alabama switched home games from campus to other sites during the 1956 basketball season.

Thrill Time

The 31st District basketball tournament which opened this afternoon at Grand Forks will undoubtedly produce its quota of thrills, but it's unlikely if any of the games will match the hysteria that accompanied the finals games in 1932 and 1939. Remember?

In 1932, the Prowlers enroute to the state championship, barely edged out the East Grand Forks team, 19 to 18, in the district finals. That was the Prowler club that had Wendell Kielty and Art Myrom at the forwards, Lloyd Aanstad at center, and John Chommie and Arnold Stadum at the guards. The Prowlers built up a "comfortable" 16 to 8 lead at the half-time intermission, only to have the East Siders take charge in the second half, outpointing the locals, 10 to 3. The blue-and-gold fans were in a state of near-collapse at the game's end.

While that 1932 game was hectic, that finals game between the Crookston Pirates and the Prowlers was the "tops" as a heart stimulant. That Crookston club was sparked by a fine center, Tommy Jessen, and in that game the Pirates gained a 5 to 3 first period and a 9 to 5 advantage at the half. In the third period, the Prowlers, on a pair of field goals and free throw, tied the Pirates at 10-all.

Came the fourth period. Both teams stressed ball-control tactics, and were fearful of taking shots at the basket. Late in the period, Crookston converted a free throw try to gain a one-point lead; but then with less than a minute to go, Earl Nicholson flipped in a field goal, giving the Prowlers a 12 to 11 win. Remember? Oh, yes, the boys that played in that game for the Prowlers were Nicholson, Wayne Bredeson, Loren Bones Stadum, Red Eide, and Rube Mickelson.

It's the Forty-fifth

That's the 45th annual district basketball tournament that's being played this week at the North Dakota University fieldhouse. From all reports and indications, the tournament is "wide open" and it wouldn't be a surprise if one of the "have not" teams succeeded in winning the title.

In the forty-four district tournaments that have been played, the Prowlers by a wide margin, are the leading title winners. On sixteen occasions, the blue-and-gold have won the district championship. The Crookston Pirates and the Fosston Greyhounds have won seven championships each; East Grand Forks has won six titles; the Warren Ponies have won five; and Stephen, McIntosh, and Climax have won a championship apiece.

From 1913 through 1924, the Fosston Greyhounds were members of this district, and during that span of years the Greyhounds collected seven district championships. In 1913, the year the first state basketball tournament was held, Fosston won the state championship.

In addition to Fosston in 1913, the Prowlers of 1932 and 1938 were district champions that carried through to win state championships.

Appreciation

We are in receipt of a gracious communication from Oscar Almquist, the coach of the Roseau high school hockey Rams, in which he expreses the thanks and appreciation for the telegrams, and other evidences of moral support, by which the local fans indicated their goodwill towards the Rams as they made the valiant bid for the state hockey title.

From all reports, the Rams, by their play and behavior, proved to be worthy and respected representatives of the Eighth region.

Fair Enough

That was quite a bonspiel that the curling clubs from Fort Rouge, Winnipeg, and the locals put on at the Arena on Saturday afternoon. When all the computations had been made, and the handicaps figured, and the measures made, the score was 37-all. What could be fairer?

There were two bus-loads of curlers from the Fort Rouge Curling Club, and they made the trip down here as a good will gesture. It was all of that.

Worth the Watching

Our operative in charge of 32nd district basketball, informs us that it will be worth our while to watch that district's tournament at Greenbush. We may get an eyeful. He adds that the probabilities are that the two finalists will be the Kennedy Rockets and the Baudette Burbots, and that it wouldn't be too much of an upset if Baudette won the title.

Irv St. John, the former Bemidji Lumberjack, and later a standout for the Bemidji State Beavers, is the coach of the Baudette club, and he's been doing a first-rate job. The Burbots are sparked by their great all-round center, Don Clay, and the 200-pounder will be tough for the more agile Kennedy Rockets to contain. Clay, who gained all-state honors in football, and who is of all-regional caliber as a baseball pitcher, has played a starry role for Baudette all season.

45,000,000 Americans Have Had at Least One Shot of Polio Vaccine

Through the cooperative efforts of public health agencies, the polio vaccine manufacturers, medical science and the public, crippling paralytic poliomyelitis can be virtually wiped out in 1957, reports the Health News Institute of New York.

The potential conquest of polio, hailed as one of the outstanding miracles in the field of modern health progress, wraps up 19 years of effort by medical scientists, supported by the American people through the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, and the five manufacturers of Salk polio vaccine. These companies have produced more than 150,000,000 doses of the vaccine, of which some 135,000,000 doses have been released by the federal government by the beginning of February, 1957.

By the end of 1956 some 45,000,000 Americans had received at least one shot of vaccine, compared with 10,000,000 children of first and second-grade age who had received the protection in 1955. While polio attacked more than 15,000 persons in the United States in 1956, this was a 47 per cent decrease from 1955 and a 58 per cent decrease from the 1951-55 average. Nevertheless, a great step-up in vaccinations is imperative if polio is to be considered conquered.

The supply of vaccine on hand and in production at the beginning of 1957 is considered by the Polio Foundation to be adequate "practically to wipe out paralytic polio if every American up to 35 years received the vaccine's full protection. That means a three-shot series for a total of 97,000,000 men, women and children up to age 35, of whom 53,000,000 have yet to receive their first shots."

That is a large "if", for only 7,000,000 persons in this country have completed the full three-shot course of inoculations.

At the beginning of the "polio year" in 1956, production was running so effectively that the Health News Institute was able to announce that the five manufacturers then making Salk vaccine would produce enough to provide at least two doses each for over 80,000,000 American children up to 19 years of age and expectant mothers before the end of the year. The manufacturers are Eli Lilly & Company and Pitman-Moore Company, Indianapolis; Parke, Davis & Company, Detroit; Merck, Sharp & Dohme Division of Merck & Co., Inc., and Wyeth Laboratories, both of Philadelphia.

The companies exceeded their announced production schedules. By August supplies were so plentiful that the government discontinued controls over distribution, and by November it had raised years to all under 40 years of age.

Kindergarten Education by Miss Ruth Mickelson

The importance of the kindergarten in the educational system of our country has risen rapidly during recent years. Many people used to consider the kindergarten a place where the children could play for a couple or more hours. Others found it a convenient place to leave their children, so they could have some time to themselves. However, the kindergarten is now accepted everywhere as an essential and integral part of the school program. Kindergarten is considered a preparatory year for children who are to enter first grade in another year.

The American Kindergarten of today is a direct descendant of the German Kindergarten started by Frederich Froebel, who has been known as the "Father of the Kindergarten." He believed that man's inner life unfolds as does a plant's, and that with proper nurture it grows and matures into full bloom. As the plant grows in the garden so grows the child in kindergarten.

The kindergarten aims to develop all the child's powers — physical, mental, emotional, and social. We plan to give practice and skill in thinking rather than telling him what he should think. We are interested in discovering the abilities and possibilities of each child, and our curriculum is planned with this in mind.

The child has come a long way in growth and development by the time he enters kindergarten. In our work with the child, we are very conscious of the child's health, because a child who isn't eating the proper foods or getting the full amount of rest as well as plenty of exercise, tends to be listless and lacks interest—very often he is easily irritated and seems to be unhappy. We talk about proper habits of eating and sleeping with the hope it will increase his desire to acquire good sound health habits.

Proper exercise through rhythm and games promotes better motor control. Coordination of the finer muscles comes more slowly—much opportunity is offered for the manipulation of materials. Skill in control and use of fingers, hands, and wrists is a prerequisite to good handwriting.

It has been our good fortune to have a well organized preschool clinic every spring. As every child has the right to free education, so every child should come to school with a sound body.

The development of the emotions is of great importance as well. We must help the child control those emotional responses which are likely to lead to unhappiness for himself and others, as well as help him express other responses which may prove beneficial. The child learns to repress certain impulses, and at the same time he is improving his ability to express other desires, ideas and feelings.

The entire kindergarten program is an experience of social living for the children. It is their first introduction to a large social group. Consequently, kindergarten carries the responsibility for wholesome beginnings of adjustment to society.

The children come from sheltered homes where the families are small compared with the school family. This large group can be frustrating or exciting, depending upon the emotional make-up of the child. He must learn to cooperate, to get along well with others and consider the group before thrusting his own wishes upon them. Problems of leadership and selfishness in use of toys will decrease in number as the children live and play together. Self discipline grows as the teacher shows faith and confidence in the children. The alert teacher guides each child toward emotional security, wholesome physical activity, stable social adjustment, creative use of materials and satisfactory solving of daily problems.

A sense of security comes when the child knows he is wanted, loved, and respected. Each child's personality must be respected — then and only then does the child feel secure. Self-confidence contributes to security as the children mature from dependence upon adults and begin to depend on themselves. They learn to assume responsibility for their own action. Stability is developed through learning to face their own problems.

The child's mental skills or powers must be developed in order that he may fit into the first grade program. There are children who have the advantage over other children, in this development, as their parents are in a position to do a great deal for them, if they so choose.

Oral expression is stressed in kindergarten as this is the foundation for reading. The effective use of language is an important factor in the reading readiness program.

Many children come to kindergarten with a very meager vocabulary, others come with a vocabulary of several thousand words—some express themselves in sentences, others just in phrases and even a few in words alone.

The varied use of books is a major activity. Our kindergarten library is well stocked with books—most of them are in story form, but they contain a wealth of information. They are beautifully illustrated and have definite eye-appeal for the children.

The teacher reads or tells a story, new words are introduced, experiences different from their way of life are discussed; thus adding to their knowledge as well as vocabulary.

A quiet corner is set aside in our rooms just for the children's library. Here they sit down quietly by themselves, looking over the books and discussing them quietly with their friends.

Through oral expression the child learns to enunciate and pronounce words correctly. Habits of clear speech are emphasized. Baby talk and infantile speech can usually be overcome by most children by the end of the kindergarten year. As a child develops in oral expression, he grows in self-confidence and security.

Readiness for writing is essential if children are to achieve any degree of satisfaction and success in writing at a later time. Skill in writing calls for smooth muscular eye-hand coordination and physical and emotional development. The scope of the writing readiness program for kindergarten is as wide as their interests, but in all probability the main concern will be with writing their own names and maybe the names of their family.

The child's first exposure to writing will be in first grade. He will be introduced to manuscript writing which is a cross between cursive writing and the printed page.

The kindergarten experiences provide for the development of muscular coordination through it's various mediums such as clay, crayons, painting at the easel, finger painting, cutting, etc.

We feel a balanced kindergarten program will provide a challenging and rich year of experiences in living and learning with others and the child completes a year of orientation into the school system and is happily looking forward to many interesting years to come in his school life.

Promotion from kindergarten to first grade is usually based on the child's chronological age. The entrance age varies in different states and localities. In our school a child enters first grade if he is six years old on or before January first of the calendar year. And, as in many schools, it is assumed he is ready to learn to read. Little thought is given to the fact that the child's mental age, his physical development, his health record, his degree of emotional stability and his social adjustment may all greatly influence the success he experiences in learning to read.

In many cases we find the younger children are not mature enough to master reading and the other work required of them in first grade.

Careful studies made by authorities in this field of education, have found that the average child must have a mental age of six years and six months before he is ready to master the problems in learning to read effectively.

Retaining the younger child who finds it difficult to do work, while effective, is not a substitute for the later starting age for beginning formal education.

Delaying the child's formal education to a later date does not have any ill effects on his growth in learning. A child learns faster when he comes to the stage where he is ready to learn.

Hurrying a child's formal education does generally have ill effects on the child. Very often he has difficulty in learning to read. He gets behind. This causes frustration or indifference. Many times he becomes a problem child.

We hope to come to some agreement in the near future as to the best age for our children to enter kindergarten and first grade. We know it will improve the kind of work done by the children as they go from grade to grade.

Miss Ruth Mickelson

Ruth Mickelson is a graduate of Miss Wood's Kindergarten School of Minneapolis. She taught first grade at Cannon Falls, Minnesota, prior to coming to Thief River Falls.

She has attended summer school at St. Cloud Teachers College, University of Minnesota and National College at Evanston, Illinois.

During her first year in Thief River Falls she taught first grade at the Knox School, and at the request of Morris Bye, who was the superintendent of schools, she reorganized the kindergarten department which had been discontinued for several years. This was in 1929. She has continued as head of the department since its reorganization.

During the first years only half-day sessions were held in each building, thus necessitating the hiring of a half-time teacher. At the present time there are four full-time kindergarten teachers in the system.

Miss Mickelson has taught at the Knox, Washington and Northrop Schools, and at present she is teaching at the Northrop School.

Pastors Advised on Social Security Tax

Clergymen who want social security protection, but who have not filed waivers of their social security tax exemption, should file the waivers by April 15, 1957, it was announced today by District Director A. R. Knox of the Internal Revenue Service and by Palmer Elden, manager of the Social Security Administration's district office.

By filing waivers last year many ministers, members of religious orders and Christian Science practitioners elected to have their earnings in 1955 and subsequent years count toward old-age, survivors and disability insurance. Those waivers remain in effect and need not be renewed.

Other clergymen who have not yet elected to be covered must file waivers by April 15 if they wish to have their earnings in 1956 and subsequent years count toward social security. The election is made by filing Form 2031 with the district director of internal revenue. Form 2031 may be obtained from the district director or from any Social Security Administration office.

After April 15, 1957, a clergyman who has not filed a waiver is barred by law from electing social security coverage if in each of the years 1955 and 1956 he received $400 or more net earnings from self-employment, including any salary, fees or honoraria as a minister, member of a religious order or Christian Science practitioner.

A clergyman who elects social security coverage pays his tax as a self-employed person. His church is not liable for the tax. The tax rate for 1956 is three per cent of self-employment income up to $4,200.

MIKE HOFFMANN RETIRES

Mike Hoffman is stepping down from his office as state highway commissioner and we join with his many other friends in regretting his retirement. His record of service with the state dates back to 1914 when he was employed as a bridge engineer. During the long span of years that have passed since then, the last 18 of which he has served as commissioner, he has played an important role in the development of our great system of modern highways.

Mr. Hoffmann's greatest public contribution probably was his restoration of integrity to a department that has the responsibility for spending huge sums of public money. No public official has ever administered so large a public works program over a period of so many years with fewer mistakes charged against him.

Our present purpose however is not to write an eulogy but rather to express the hope that a way can be found to make Mr. Hoffmann's long years of experience available in an advisory capacity. We can understand his desire to be relieved of his heavy burden of personal responsibility as commissioner. But, we are certain he is capable of providing a service no person without his wealth of experience could offer.

Could not a way be devised to put so good a public official into semi-retirement?

ATTEND THE FARM SHOW

The farm forum to be held at the Armory Thursday is not exclusively a farmers' forum. The problems to be considered at that meeting are of interest and importance to all people of our farming community, urban as well as rural.

In the formal part of the program three University of Minnesota extension service representatives will speak on "Agriculture and the Nation's Economy"; "How Marketing Costs Affect You", and "How Foreign Aid Affects Northwestern Minnesota." These are good subjects and the speakers are well qualified to discuss them. Following the formal presentation there will be a period of panel discussions which will provide opportunities for audience participation.

Forum meetings of this kind are proving to be popular. If this first attempt in our community proves to be satisfactory it probably can be made an annual event and perhaps broadened in scope.

It is interesting to note that two farm organizations and the organization representing the business and professional interests of Thief River Falls are co-sponsoring this first meeting. We like that combination.

Too much of our failure to find solutions for our farm problems is due to a lack of cooperation among the various organizations that speak for our farming communities. When we cannot agree among ourselves as to what should be done we have little reason to complain because those who speak for agriculture in Washington and in St. Paul are divided.

We urge all of you, city and country folks alike to attend the farm forum Thursday.

CONSTITUTION UP TO DATE

An advocate of constitutional revision by the convention method points up several changes that should be made as justification for such a procedure. He cites the five following provisions as reasons why the document should be rewritten:

(1) Election of United States Senators. The state constitution provides that U.S. Senators be elected by the state legislature. And yet voters have done the electing since 1916.

(2) Voting by Women. The state constitution restricts the rights of women to vote. Yet women have been voting in Minnesota since 1916.

(3) Limiting State Debt. The state constitution limits the state debt to $250,000. The state debt has far exceeded that figure and has done so for several years.

(4) Redistricting. The state constitution requires that the state be redistricted every ten years. The state was last redistricted in 1913.

(5) Indian Voting. The state constitution provides that Indians can vote but only if they have a court order declaring them capable of voting.

As far as we know there is no disagreement over the need for changes in our Constitution, including the deletion of some obsolete provisions. The question is whether or not such changes can be better accomplished by amending the old document, as we have been doing quite successfully in recent elections, or by rewriting it by the convention method.

When we consider the changes that already have been effected by the amendment method we are satisfied that the Constitution can be brought up to date, and revised to meet our modern needs, without resorting to the convention procedure.

In spite of its shortcomings and defects there is no condition at the present time that requires an emergency operation on our Constitution. The needed changes are coming gradually and, if there is no emergency, that is the way they should come.

And let's keep in mind that the convention method has some shortcomings too. We have no reason to believe that the elected delegates to such a convention would be especially wise and altruistic, and it is conceivably that the rewritten document might contain more errors than the one it would displace.

TVA CONTROLS FLOODS

(St. Paul Pioneer-Press)

The Tennessee Valley authority is so involved in the public power versus private power controversy that some of its other phases are overlooked. Flood control is one of these.

Chattanooga and other communities in the Tennessee river valley escaped serious damage in the recent southeastern floods. The reason was TVA's system of flood control reservoirs. It is estimated that the flood crest at Chattanooga was held 20 feet lower by dams than would have been the case without them. Officials say this saved Chattanooga between 50 and 100 million dollars of flood damage.

Other cities and towns and large areas of farm country also were saved from heavy flooding. The TVA has done an excellent job of flood prevention since Congress established itin 1933. In this respect at least few will criticize its activities.

BEAUTY AND THE BILLBOARD

(New York Times)

The outdoor-advertising lobby is showing its usual effrontery in a current campaign against proposed Federal control of billboards along the new 41,000-mile Federal highway system. Latest example is its claim that such restriction would constitute an invasion of states' rights.

The fact is that Senator Neuberger's bill, introduced last month, merely directs the Secretary of Commerce to establish standards to protect scenic beauty along the highways by controlling signs within 500 feet of the right-of-way, and to enforce those standards on Federal property. When it comes to property under state jurisdiction, the standards would be merely advisory, though if a state wanted to abide by them it would receive Federal help in the preclusive purchase of advertising rights along the highway. What could be more reasonable, even to the most sincere states' righter?

Naturally there is no objection, except possibly from a safety point of view, to outdoor advertising in many industrial, commercial or other built-up areas. But there is a deep public interest in preventing the great through routes that are only now beginning to be constructed across the country from becoming long ribbons of billboards and hot-dog stands.

MOLLY-CODDLING NO ANSWER

(Swift County News)

It is apparent to everyone who reads or listens to news accounts, that juvenile crime is a problem of grim dimensions in this country.

A leading authority, J. Edgar Hoover of the FBI, has devoted a signed editorial to it in a recent issue of that organization's law-enforcement bulletin. He says, "Recent happenings in juvenile crime shatter the illusion that soft-hearted molly-coddling is the answer to this problem." And he asks, "Are we to stand idly by while fierce young hoodlums—too often and too long harbored under the glossy misnomer of juvenile delinquents—roam our streets and desecrate our communities? If we do, America might as well witness a resurgence of the brutal criminality and mobsterism of a past era."

Hoover also demolishes the idea, held by some persons, that there isn't any more juvenile crime than there used to be—that it's just better publicized. In the past four years, the population of 10-17-year olds has risen 10 per cent. In the same time, arrests of individuals in that age bracket have increased at twice the rate.

Finally, Mr. Hoover makes a strong case against the common custom of not publishing the names of young criminals. As he puts it, "Publicizing the names as well as crimes for public scrutiny, release of past records to appropriate law-enforcement officials, and finger-printing for future identification are all necessary procedures in the war on the flagrant violator, regardless of age."

We have tried the soft-hearted approach, and it has failed. In the name of self-preservation, it is time to toughen up.

REPORT from the GOVERNOR

Orville L. Freeman

At the time of each biennial legislative session, the heads of state agencies and departments submit reports of their work during the previous two year period. A study of these reports reveals much about our state government, — its accomplishments, its needs, and its problems. Much information of inter*est and importance to all of our* citizens are contained in them.

Division Of Conciliation

I have just read the latest report of the State Labor Conciliator, and would like to share with you some of the things indicated in that report, in which Minnesotans can justly take pride. The Labor Conciliator and his staff have the responsibility to help labor and management arrive at fair solutions of labor disputes. They try to cut down as much as possible, the losses that result from strikes and work stoppages due to labor disputes.

Industry Gains In Importance

In 1951, for the first time in our history, manufacturing passed ahead of agriculture as Minnesota's major industry. And industry countinues to grow in our state. Moreover, the report shows that the growth of industry outside of the Twin Cities metropolitan area has been greater than that within the two major cities and their suburbs. In the eight years between 1947 and 1955, the increase in the number of wage and salary workers in the state as a whole was 13 percent. But in the metropolitan area that increase was only 8 percent, whereas in the rest of the state the increase amounted to 19 percent. This indicates a wholesome spread in our industrial development.

Good Labor Force

A major factor in encouraging industrial expansion is the high quality of our labor force. Minnesota wage earners show high ability and adaptability, and excellent morale. Our record in labor relations, as measured by the proportion of days of work lost as a result of labor disputes, is much better than the average for the United States as a whole. This has been true for many years, yet we continue to improve. The Labor Conciliator reports this year that "Minnesota's work stoppages due to labor disputes during the past two years has been such that a period of industrial peace unequalled in any previous biennium has resulted."

Everyone Benefits

Everyone benefits from this level of industrial peace. It testifies to the maturity and responsibility of the leadership in our unions and in our industrial management, and to the quality of work done by the state agency concerned,—the Division of Conciliation. As a result wage earners have received greater income, production has been higher and more profitable, and the public has been served better.

With the spread of industry to many parts of our state, it is no longer true that labor relations are matters of immediate concern only in the Twin Cities metropolitan area and the area around Duluth. These centers still contain the greater share of our industry. But the trend to locate small industry in out-state areas seems likely to continue. It will therefore become increasingly important to people in all parts of our state that we maintain and continue to improve our record for good industrial relations.

PUBLIC OPINION

Editor Times:

Have read your Editorial in the last issue of the Times. I do agree with you on a self-help program for the dairy industry and any other industry. But wouldn't it also be proper to ask our Foreign friends to do the same? instead of running for our pocket book every time they holler "Communist" and dump a few million in their laps.

Wouldn't it be a glorious day if we had Dulles for our Secretary of Agriculture instead of Benson, as long as our Government is so free and easy to give away money for foreign aid. How about giving away some for Domestic aid? Fair enough?

But you might ask a question, "Who will pay for the Domestic Aid?" let me ask another question, "Who will pay for the Foreign Aid?" If you have the answer for the last question then you have the answer to the first question.

Maybe if we famers all wrote to our congressman and asked them for Dulles instead of Benson it might pay off. Who knows. So long. Engval Christoferson, Oklee, Minn.

Norman Co. Youth Win Grain Clinic at Winter Shows

A pair of Norman county youths each had perfect scores to tie for first place in the annual 4-H Grain Clinic and Crops Judging Contest at the Red River Valley Winter Shows and Northwest School Farmers' Week, it was announced today.

Top winners were David Hoff, 15, Perley and Kenneth Strand, 17, Ada. Each received a plaque from the F. H. Peavey and Company, Minneapolis, and each received two bushels of certified Norland Flax seed from the Minnesota Crop Improvement association.

County winners included: Pennington, Donald Wald, St. Hilaire; Marshall, Elton Hornseth, Thief River Falls.

Marshall Engineer Urges Bituminous Work on Highways

Severe Spring Breakup Last Year Called for Big Regraveling Jobs

All future designs on Marshall county's primary road system should be made with the final objective in mind of placing some type of bituminous surfacing on the roads, H. I. Knutson, Marshall county highway engineer, recommended in his annual report of the county highway department for the last fiscal year, says the Warren Sheaf.

Passage of Amendment No. 2 last fall has created for Marshall county the opportunity to start a vigorous program on the proposed new Primary system, said Knutson. Traffic count and maintenance cost of graveling should be the yardstick for priority for this surfacing program in the future, the engineer declared.

Maintenance costs increased more than $100,000 in 1956 over 1955, mainly attributed to the late heavy snows and break-up last spring, said Knutson.

As a result of the break-up it was necessary for the county to spend roughly 100,000 for regraveling of roads in the system last summer. Maintenance costs this year are way down so far due to the little snow in the county, so if the spring break-up is not too severe a huge sum of money can be saved, reported the engineer.

Ask Nominations of Candidates for F. Blair Trophy

Minnesotans are urged to nominate boys and girls for the Frank Blair junior conservation achievement trophy. This will be awarded to the state junior champion during the Northwest Boat, Sports and Travel show at the Minneapolis auditorium, April 5 thru 14.

The competition for this trophy is open to all Minnesota boys and girls 12 to 21 years of age last year. The winner and a parent will be given an all-expense paid trip to the show and will be presented the trophy from the auditorium stage on Saturday afternoon, April 13.

Contestants will be judged on conservation practices which save soil and water. This includes crop rotation, strip cropping, contouring, stream, ditch pond or lake improvement, wood lot and hedgerow planting and improvement.

Good sportsmanship is an important factor and credit will be given for activity in beneficial youth organizations like the Future Farmers, Scouts and 4-H.

Any individual or organizations may make nominations. The complete data with pictures if possible should be mailed before March 23 to Robert Rupp, chairman of the State Selection Committee, care of the Northwest Sports Show, 409 Times Building, Minneapolis.

The trophy is in honor of Blair's 40 years in conservation work in Minnesota.

Total attendance for the 1957 edition of the five-day event stood at 16,000, about the same as last year, with approximately 2,700 on hand for the final day's activities.

The figure for cattle sales this year compares favorably with the 1956 total of $17,965. However, with Futurity beef and dairy animals added to this figure, total cattle sales were $20,381.

Grand total for two days of livestock sales was $28,517, more than $4,000 over last year's record. Hogs Thursday sold for $5,372 with 50 gilts being sold, and 52 sheep the same day brought $2,754. The gilts averaged $107.44, up $39.66 from last year's average, and sheep averaged $53 per head, down $1.37 from the 1956 average.

Fifty-seven beef cows and bulls and seven Futurity heifers brought a total of $15,155, while 23 dairy cows and bulls and six Futurity animals brought $5,236.

The offspring of a Hereford bull purchased three years ago by Schermerhorn Farms of Mahnomen for $17,000 brought $825 for the Mahnomen concern to top the cattle sale list.

The bull was purchased by Stanley Swanson of Karlstad. The top Hereford bull last year sold for $800.

Contrasts American Education with Russian

Soviet Russia is able to rapidly get more engineers, surveyors and other technicians simply by "ordering it to happen," George Grim, Minneapolis Tribune columnist, told some 900 Winter Shows visitors at Central High auditorium in Crookston Wednesday night.

Speaking on "One Man's Russia," Grim compared educational systems in the United States and in Russia. He recently traveled 5,000 miles in the Soviet Union.

"We in the U. S. can only appeal to a high school senior who has an aptitude for engineering," he pointed out. "But we cannot prevent his becoming a disc jockey, a salesman, or anything else. We must appeal to the individual intelligence.

"That is the key to democracy. We can not force, cannot command," the speaker added.

In Russia, on the other hand, the government decides who shall be educated and how, Grim said.

"The Soviet system of education has as its key, a set of aptitude tests given to all children at about age 12 in the rural areas, 14 in the cities.

"On this basis, the engineers, for instance, are selected at this early age and trained. Thus, the Soviets can train as many engineers, surveyors, or whatever they want. They just order it to happen."

Grim told of the life of average Russians and described state and collective farms in the USSR.

"They are permitted no agricultural machinery," he said. "This is all kept in a central government can maintain tight control over all farming."

Graceton Youth Wins Spelldown at Winter Shows

Lloyd Johnson, Age 13, Places First in Contest, Outspelling Eleven Girls

Words like "cognizant," "extravagant," and "abeyance," proved to be no problem today for 13-year-old Lloyd Johnson, from Granceton, Lake of the Woods county, an 8th grader in the Williams school. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Johnson.

He missed only four of 89 words and outspelled 11 girls to win first place in the district elementary schools spelling contest at the Red River Valley Winter Shows, Crookston. Lloyd received a $7 prize, a bronze plaque, and a certificate of achievement from the Red River Valley Development association.

Second place winner was Anita Hanson, 13, Underwood, Otter Tail county, who won $5. Third place and a $3 prize went to Marilyn Joyce Gjesvald, 12, Bejou, Mahnomen county, and Kathryn Kenworthy, 13, Roseau, Roseau county, won fourth prize and $2 cash.

There were 12 students representing as many counties in the spelling contest. Other contestants included Linda Ann Shukle, Red Lake Falls; Sharon Lunden, Oklee, Pennington county; and Rebecca Shagen, Gatzke, Marshall county.

NSP Taxes Take Company Revenue for Three Months

Northern States Power Company paid Pennington county $961 in personal property and transmission line taxes last week, company officials report.

Taxes charged to operation represent more than 25 cents out of every dollar paid to NSP. The company's operating taxes have increased more than 12 per cent over last year to a total of nearly $35,000,000.

Checks totaling $2,106,000 were distributed by NSP to 51 Minnesota counties last week for personal property, and transmission line, taxes. The total of all personal property and transmission line taxes. The total of all taxes to be paid this year by NSP to these counties in its service area will be $9,602,406.

By 1965, the United States armed forces except their peacetime requirements for jet fuel to exceed 14 million gallons daily.

THE MINNESOTA STORY

Prepared by the
Minnesota Historical Society

[illegible] TRAIL

Jefferson Davis helped to lay out one of the most important highways of early Minnesota. This was in the days when the man who was later to become president of the Confederacy was secretary of war of the United States. On April [illegible] the war department received the report of Captain J. [illegible] which mapped a road from the mouth of the Big Sioux, where this stream enters the Missouri, to Mendota where the Minnesota joined the Mississippi.

A [illegible] party of engineers had left St. Louis by [illegible] May 8, 1853. They went up the river as far as Council Bluffs, then took to land for the 180 mile trek to the Big Sioux. Here they began their work which took all summer.

The party sought out the best route for a road. The engineers noted in their report the nature of the land, its streams, timber, and other features of interest. They traveled 190 miles without seeing a white settler. Then they came to Mankato [illegible] they were surprised at a community of two hundred [illegible] and energetic people. At [illegible] they found a road recently cut through from Mendota by Captain Dodd. This [illegible] had required the [illegible] for 100 days, [illegible] the [illegible] of the largest [illegible] community at [illegible].

The engineers computed the cost of [illegible] miles of road at $25, [illegible] an amount less than the present cost of a mile of modern highway. They urged that money be appropriated for a rapidly growing number of people needed access to their lands.

UP THE MINNESOTA

The first steamboat to work its way up the Minnesota River was the Anthony Wayne. In the summer of 1850 this steamer came up from St. Louis with some seventy pleasure bound tourists and a brass band. A stop at St. Paul was made and the visitors were asked to look at the high Minnesota valley. A hat was passed to raise the money for this extended hospitality. $225 was contributed and 114 St. Paul citizens climbed aboard.

The visitors were interested in Fort Snelling on the bluff. Then came Black Dog's village where the squaws were hoeing corn and beans. Next was Man's Cloud village and the settlement of Chief Six. Here Samuel Pond was maintaining a mission.

The Wayne continued its progress upriver. At Chaska was seen the trading post of Louis Robert. They came Carver with its rapids. The big boat watched a smaller craft try to make its way over the swift water and decided to turn back.

It was at this time that the supply of dry wood to fire the boilers gave out and all turned to and picked up dry poles and wood from an Indian burying ground. Enough fuel was so obtained to get the travelers back to St. Paul.

Later other large craft came often on the Minnesota and went further. Under the most favorable conditions steamboats could go most of the way across the state. The last steamboat on this river was recorded in 1897.

AITKIN COUNTY

In what is now Aitkin county was once one of the earliest settlements in all Minnesota. This was at Sandy Lake where the Northwest Company established a trading post in 1794. Later there was a mission and a school and Sandy saw many visitors for it was approached from the east by way of the St. Louis river and portages and from the south by the Father of Waters.

Aitkin county was named from one of its earliest traders. But after the fur trading days there was little activity until the Northern Pacific built its line east and west through the county in the early 1870ies. This led to the establishment of the county seat which took the name of the county.

The founder of the village of Aitkin was one Nathaniel Tibbetts. He was a member of the railroad surveying party and selected 160 acres in what appeared to him as a likely place for a town. He was right. Nathaniel Tibbetts not only owned the original townsite but he held about every public office that a man could hold and was a first in about everything.

Aitkin did much better than a townsite platted during the boom days of 1856. The site of another community named Ojibway was laid out and advertised in the east and other likely markets for town lots. Many people put their money into the town which collapsed when the panic of 1857 hit the boom in Minnesota lots. Ojibway never had a building of any kind.

RESERVATION COUNTY

Mahnomen county is this year observing the fiftieth anniversary of its founding. This county has an unusual history.

The background of this county is indicated by its Chippewa name. The county was once completely within the White Earth Indian Reservation, the last residing place of many of the native people of Minnesota.

The first people came to the area which is now Mahnomen with the building of the Soo from Glenwood to Winnipeg. The land was held in trust for the Chippewas. But, as usual, the whitemen who wanted good soil got what they wished. The Indian Bureau first allowed the sale of the allotments of those of the tribe who had died. Congress later permitted those of mixed white and Indian blood to sell their land. Since most of those described as Indians were of mixed blood there was a lively business in land and many settlers entered the area.

The area which is now Mahnomen was once part of Norman county. Agitation for a separate county began in 1905 and culminated successfully the following year. The county seat was first known as Wild Rice. On the petition of the Indians all villages of the county were later given Chippewa names and the capital community became Mahnomen in 1908.

Mahnomen is one of the newer counties of Minnesota. Much of its area is still in the condition that the original Chippewas desired. Its population in 1000 are listed by the census as Indians.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

175 at S[illegible]ion of Sugar Beet Association

Harry Oen Retained as President of Tri-county Group

About 175 persons, representing five northwestern Minnesota counties, attended the first annual meeting of the Tri-county Sugar Beet Development association here Wednesday afternoon in the city auditorium.

Harry Oen, association president, presided, with Stan Nelson acting as secretary in the absence of J. M. Roche, who was unable to attend.

The meeting was preceded by an ASC film on good soil practices, after which Nelson gave the reading of the 1956 organizational meeting minutes.

Oen, in tracing developments within the organization and progress since the last meeting, described the contents of a brochure published by the Minnesota-North Dakota Beet Growers association and also told of sugar beet meetings attended by officers and directors of the Tri-county association in the year since the group was organized.

He also outlined four possible ways the American Crystal Sugar Co. could expand to handle additional acreage in coming years, as described by a company official at one of the meetings attended. Oen said the official said present plants in Minnesota could handle about 20,000 additional acres of sugar beets before reaching capacity. However, he said the American Crystal Sugar Co. is not interested in building extra plants, according to the unnamed company official's statement.

Oen also outlined a plan whereby Pennington and Red Lake counties could possibly get small allotments and go into limited beet production in a few years if plans of the association board go through.

He advised farmers who want beet allotments to prepare for the day when the counties are given allotments by conducting good soil and crop rotation practices and by filing a general outline and soil map of their farms with their local ASC offices.

Oen's statements were backed up by Claude Ebling, Soo Line agricultural agent, who also emphasized that sugar beets did not offer the lone source of additional agricultural development in northern Minnesota. He mentioned sunflowers and hogs as bright prospects for increasing the farm income in the area, based on experiences of farmers in nearby areas of North Dakota and Manitoba.

Replacement of minerals in the soil was highly important to the success of raising any crop, Ebling said. While soils here offer good prospects for the various crops, the soil can become depleted and he advised that farmers take steps to prevent mineral

Newfolden Band to Offer Variety Program March 15

'Musical Wonderland' Is Theme of Presentation in School Auditorium

The Newfolden community school band will present its third annual variety show, "Musical Wonderland," on Friday evening, March 15, at 8 o'clock in the school auditorium, according to Betty Masoner, Newfolden band director.

This year's show will again take the audience to the four corners of the world as the students present scenes from foreign countries as well as sections of our own country while performing their various solos and ensembles.

As in past editions of "Musical Wonderland" solos and ensembles are presented with the participants in costume and backed up with settings suggestive of the area in which the type of music originated or became famous.

With variety the key note, there is certain to be at least one number to please every type of music lover from the straight-laced classical admirers to the rock and roll enthusiasts, Miss Masoner said.

Original Don Cossack Chorus and Dancers Appear Here Sunday

One of the most famous vocal ensembles in the world will be heard in Thief River Falls, Sunday, March 10 when the Original Don Cossack Chorus and Dancers, conducted by Serge Jaroff, appear on the Northwest Concert series.

The concert, which is the third in this season's series for members of the Northwest Concert association, will begin at 8 at the Lincoln high school auditorium.

The Don Cossacks, who have just returned to this country after a full year of concerts in Europe and the Far East, are now on their 27th transcontinental tour of America, during which time they will sing 104 concerts in four months. So great has their success been that they have been forced to rename themselves the "Original" Don Cossack Chorus and Dancers to avoid confusion with imitators.

The group, which first began touring in 1923, still has four of the original members, including the organizer and conductor, Serge Jaroff. In a dramatic 1936 ceremony, all the members of the chorus as then constituted took the oath of U. S. citizenship en masse, and today all the singers except eight new members who are awaiting final citizenship papers carry U. S. passports.

Originally the Cossacks were horsemen of Tartar and Slavonic origin which supplied the Czars of Russia with their most dashing cavalry divisions from the vast Don River Valley. After the Russian revolution, many of them wound up in the Crimea, and after some weeks of negotiations they were allowed to land on islands like Gallipoli near Constantinople. Here they lived in leaking tents and around their campfires sang of the homes they would never again see.

After nine months they were given permission to go to Bulgaria, and, through the intercession of a Dutch diplomat, the chorus which Jaroff had formed sang in the Russian Consular Church. The Russian ballerina, Tamara Karsavina, who had become the wife of a British diplomat, attended this church, and much impressed by the chorus, she engaged them to entertain at diplomatic functions. Through her encouragement and contacts, a concert manager offered the chorus its first western tour.

Since their first concert in Vienna on July 4, 1923, the Don Cossacks have sung in virtually every country in the world ex-

Red Cross Home Service Agency Assists 51 in '56

R. S. Eldevik, Chairman, Reports on Activities During the Past Year

Information released today by R. S. Eldevik, home service chairman of the American Red Cross in Pennington County, reveals that a total of 51 persons or families were given Red Cross home service assistance of various types during 1956. The majority of cases handled were requests for financial assistance and emergency communications service between families at home and servicemen serving in the armed forces.

Eldevik stated that Red Cross home service acts as a direct line of contact between servicemen wherever stationed and their mothers and fathers, wives and children back home. In emergency cases, the American Red Cross will establish contact with the serviceman whether he be stationed in the United States, overseas, or on a ship at sea.

This is done through the reporting and communications unit of national Red Cross headquarters in Washington, D. C. or directly with Red Cross field directors located in military installations in the United States.

Red Cross home service in Pennington County is a voluntary service that is available at any time to those who may need its help.

House Passes Bill to Change Election Laws

Also Passes Bill to Hike Unemployment Compensation Pay

The Minnesota House passed Monday, 112 to 5, a bill to revise the presidential primary law. A companion measure is pending in a senate committee.

The presidential primary proposal makes three important changes in the present law. It substitutes a consolidated ballot for the present separate party ballots, provides for party conventions now elected at the primary, and fixes the date for the presidential primary on the second Tuesday in March instead of the third Tuesday.

The House also passed unanimously the bill supported by Gov. Freeman to revise the law relating to licenses for operating motor vehicles. The proposal, part of Freeman's highway safety program, stiffens the jail sentences and fines for driving after license revocation. A 30-day license suspension would follow the first revocation and up to 90 days for the second conviction, with the penalty up a year for subsequent violations.

A Senate approved resolution urging Congress to adopt the corn tassel as the national flower was passed by the House, 90-30. The resolution now will be forwarded to Washington.

Board Acts on Drainage and Road Projects

Hears Delegation Asking Exclusion From Ditch 13 Area

Highway and drainage matters occupied the attention of the Pennington county board at its March session Tuesday.

A large delegation of residents of Star and Reiner townships in the east end of the county was present to object to the inclusion of their lands in the area served by Judicial Ditch 13, and asked a diversion of water thru another outlet. The board advised the delegation to engage an attorney and petition the district court for the release of their lands.

The board approved a road construction program for the county submitted by County Engineer Joseph Seidel. Included are the building up of a six and one-half mile section of State Aid Road 1 west from Highway 32 at St. Hilaire, and also the building up of State Aid Road 7 extending from Highway 1 to State Aid Road 1 at a point one and one-half miles west of River Valley.

Also to be carried out are the seal-coating of State Aid Road 8 extending south from Thief River Falls past the airport, and the completion of three projects carried over from 1956.

It was voted to open bids at the board's April session on a tank of 10,000 gallons capacity to be used for storing road oil purchased for use on county roads.

A delegation from Silverton township asked the cooperation of the county in a project calling for construction of a three-mile section of road in the township running north from Highway 1. The board agreed to share in the construction of the road and allocation of the [illegible] gravel on a 50-50 basis, with the understanding that the section would remain as a township road.

Bids for the rental of road construction equipment that may be needed by the county this season were accepted, the county engineer being authorized to select the equipment needed on the basis of low bids and the availability of contractors.

County Auditor C. W. Rodekuhr submitted to the board the annual county financial statement, which will be published in the Times shortly.

Dr. A. Axilrod Case to Be Appealed to U. S. Supreme Court

Minneapolis Dentist to Appeal Conviction in Slaying of Mary Moonen

The Axilrod case will be appealed to the United States supreme court, it was learned Friday. Sydney Goff, St. Paul attorney, said he is preparing a petition asking the high court to review state supreme court proceedings under which the conviction of his client, Dr. A. Arnold Axilrod, former Minneapolis dentist, was upheld.

Axilrod is in Stillwater state prison serving a 5 to 20 year term in the strangulation death of Mrs. Mary Moonen, formerly of Thief River Falls and Plummer, whose body was found in a Minneapolis alley in April 1955.

A Hennepin county district court jury found him guilty of first degree manslaughter.

The case was appealed to the state supreme court and last Nov. 15 the lower court action was upheld. A month later a petition for rehearing was denied by the court.

Goff said he hopes to have all the necessary documents before the supreme court in Washington by March 14.

47,000 State Youth Noting 4-H Club Week

More than 47,000 boys and girls and 8,000 adult leaders in Minnesota will observe National 4-H Club Week March 2-9, Leonard Harkness, state 4-H club leader at the University of Minnesota, said today.

Through exhibits, open house meetings, newspapers, radio and television they will tell the public about the 4-H program of "learning by doing."

The 4-H program is part of the national educational system of cooperative extension work in which the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the state land-grant colleges and the county extension service share.

Climax of the observances will be the state 4-H radio speaking contest on Saturday, March 9. Seventeen district winners will take part in the finals Saturday morning on the University of Minnesota's St. Paul campus. Winner of the state radio speaking title will be announced following broadcast of the speeches of the two highest-scoring contestants over WCCO radio between 3:30 and 4 p.m.

More than 800 4-H members in Minnesota have taken part in this year's radio speaking contest, writing their own speeches on "How the International Farm Youth Exchange Program Builds Better World Understanding."

According to Harkness, the International Farm Youth Exchange program is a major project being supported by Minnesota 4-H clubs, in cooperation with other groups and industry.

Under the program, 16 young people from other countries will come to Minnesota this summer to live and work with farm families. Minnesota will send three young men and two young women to five different countries in 1957. Since 1948, 20 Minnesota youths have gone abroad to 15 different countries under the program and 74 young people from 32 countries have come to Minnesota.

Houske said there will be no inquest. Loock is believed survived by a brother in Moorhead and a daughter, address unknown.

Shootin' the Breeze

BY Mack Draper

Seasons come ... seasons go—but hunters (and fishermen) talk on forever, seems like.

At least there's lots of talk in the various state legislatures about new laws involving two of our favorite outdoor sports. Several good ones have been proposed in the Minnesota legislature and are now under consideration. Then there are some proposed laws that aren't so good.

For instance, there was one proposal that would make it illegal for hunters to hunt on land used for agricultural purposes without permission from the owner. Nor would it, as we understood the proposal as read at the March meeting of the Pennington county Sportsmen's Club, be necessary for the farmer to post his land under this law.

Naturally the local club went on record as being opposed to this one. They were also skeptical about a measure that would deny state financed conservation work to be done on any lake to which the public is denied access. There was considerable hassling over this one before the phrasing of the law was rehashed so that everyone understood it would not effect such lakes as Union Lake, and others where there is no publicly owned beach or boat landing.

However, access is not denied in this case, so the local sportsmen were mollified and also went on record as favoring the group of proposals of which this one was a part.

We hear that one fellow, who had been bragging about being a self-made man, suddenly clammed up when one of the gang suggested he'd knocked off work too soon.

The hunting law passed in 1957 that intrigues us most is the one signed a few days ago by Gov. John Davis of North Dakota, and which would permit N.D. residents to have one week end of migratory waterfowl hunting before the regular season opens.

Here's a clear-cut case of states' rights legislation that could stir up a hornet's nest. The federal game and fish men say that state will be filled with federal wardens if the law goes into effect, but Governor Davis signed the law anyway.

The outcome of this is going to be interesting to watch. We don't necessarily favor North Dakota but we would like to see an earlier duck season in these latitudes and the N.D. arguments in the courts (some cases are bound to follow) may have some bearing on season openings in the future.

If we could get the season opened a week or two earlier in these latitudes as a result of this hassle we'd be indebted to the N.D. legislature for stirring up this action! (We're merely speculating on what could happen—we aren't saying what WILL happen.)

We heard of a wag who notes that most kids are descended from a long line [illegible] their mothers listened to.

A fellow at the Sportsman's Club meeting Tuesday evening remarked that the legislature could legislate until they're blue in the face and still not be able to solve the problem of the smart aleck hunter.

They wouldn't let a little thing like that keep them from legislating until they're blue in the face!

It doesn't do a gal much good to be as pretty as a picture if she doesn't have a good frame to go with it.

Who was it said that flatterers are the cleverest mind readers—they always tell us what we think. SO TRUE!

cept Red China and Soviet Russia. They have presented more than 7,800 concerts, have appeared in movies, on radio and television, and on numerous recordings. They have sung for most of the royalty of Europe, and on their 1956 tour of Japan they were the first western entertainers ever invited to perform at the Emperor's Court.

Although the majority of the Cossacks left their homeland many years ago, their programs still retain the stamp of national authenticity as they present the stirring selections from Russian liturgy and the folk songs and hilarious soldiers songs which they do with verve and humor. The dancers, fabulous gymnasts, continue to defy the laws of gravity in the old Cossack style.

Tri-county Sugar Beet Association Met Wednesday

depletion before it occurs, rather than using the land constantly without fertilization and proper crop rotation. He closed by wishing the Tri county Association success in sugar beet development, saying what helps agriculture in the area also helps the railroad he represents.

Elmer Bradlie, Climax, of the state ASC committee, spoke on his experiences as a sugar beet grower and described the allotment system. He said for some time in the 1930's it was hard to find farmers who would sign up to raise sugar beets.

However, the situation improved in the early 1940's when it became difficult to get sufficient labor to handle the beets. It was then that mechanization started and now, he said, practically every beet grower is mechanized to the point where he is no longer dependent on the labor supply in raising beets.

Bradlie emphasized that, for economically feasible sugar beet operations, each farm should have an allotment of at least 10 acres. He also emphasized the importance of good soil practices and said that weeds are the deadly enemy of the sugar beet grower.

C. Enar Johnson, president of the Western Beet Growers association told the audience that the Red River Valley, including the area served by the Tri county group is in the "sugar bowl" and that if the Valley got its fair share of increased acreage three new plants would not handle the production. He also said the Red River Valley should get a high percentage if not all, the increased allotments if and when the 1948 sugar act is amended.

After Johnson's report the meeting was thrown open for discussion at which time the Clearwater county members of the association asked that they be given representation on the board of directors. It was decided by vote to give them a directorship in an advisory capacity until the next annual meeting, when the association by laws tomobiles a three-foot "tolerance" beyond the present 45-foot limit.

Sen. Arthur Giles of South St. Paul, a sponsor of the 50-foot truck bill, argued that the transport measure should be laid over until the committee considers his bill.

The Minnesota House late Wednesday passed a bill raising unemployment compensation benefits after several hours of spirited debate. The vote was 73-54.

The bill, which follows recommendations of Gov. Freeman, would pay benefits ranging from $14 to $40 a week. The present minimum is $12 and the maximum $33 a week.

The vote was chiefly along party lines, with conservatives being opposed to the bill and liberals favoring it. Two liberals broke from their ranks and voted against the bill while seven conservatives went along with the liberal majority for the proposal.

TRF Prowlers Win Title in District 31

In a game that throbbed with excitement and drama, Coach Al Adams' Prowlers upended the defending district champion Crookston Pirates, 66 to 56, in a tournament finals game played on the North Dakota fieldhouse court Wednesday night. By their well-earned triumph, the Prowlers gained a berth in the regional tournament which will be played at Grand Forks on Thursday and Friday, March 14th and 15th. In a first round game, the Prowlers will be paired against the 32nd District champions.

The Prowlers were "sparked" to their district title by the record-shattering point-getting of their rangy center, Dave Hanson. Hanson looped in 16 field goals and 5 free throws, for an aggregate of 37 points, breaking his previous single game scoring record of 34 points.

The game, perhaps, had its "break open" spot early in the fourth period. Entering the final period of play, the Pirates held a 45 to 44 lead. Dave Hanson notched a field goal, but Crookston's Ken Wold came back with a fielder, and the Pirates regained the lead. Sophomore Phil Hanson hit on a field goal, and then, on the play that "broke" the game, Phil intercepted a Pirate play and dribbled in for lay-up shot.

The Prowlers moved ahead to hold a 50 to 50 lead with two minutes to play in the game. Herschel Pepper Lysaker, Crookston's veteran all-round performer, playing in what proved to be his last high school game, hit on a jump shot; Jim Doda added a field goal; and when Mark Larsen converted on a two-shot foul, the Prowler lead was peeled to 59 to 56.

Keith Johnson, who played a brilliant floor game, tossed in a free throw, and Jim Bennes followed with a gift toss. Dave Hanson racked up a field goal, to "insure" the game. Rasmussen added a point on a free throw, and Dave Hanson looped in his 36th and 37th points on a fielder just at the buzzer.

In a preliminary game, the Climax Vikings, by a 72 to 57 score, defeated the Plummer Cardinals to gain third place in the tournament standings.

In district tournament semi-finals game on Tuesday night the Prowlers, although winning by a 63 to 50 score, were hard pressed all the way to subdue an agressive and gritty Climax squad.

In the other district semi-finals encounter, the Crookston Pirates, with Lysaker tallying 20 points, and having an advantage in man-power and height, defeated the Plummer Cardinals, 63 to 43.

Dave Hanson turned in another high-scoring game against the Climax squad, hitting for 13 field goals and 8 free throws, for a 34-point total.

The Prowler led at all the periods stops, having a 16 to 12 margin at the end of the first period, a 28 to 22 lead at the intermission, and a 42 to 34 advantage at the end of third period.

The Vikings, with Brent Amundson and Vern Wegge, their two sharp-shooting front-line men, doing the scoring, whittled the Prowlers lead to 5 points, 49 to 44, with 4:01 to play. And with 2:46 remaining to be played the game score was 53 to 50 for the Prowlers. Dave Rasmussen dropped in four valuable free-throw points; Phil Hanson tossed in a pair of gift shots, and Dave Hanson dunked in a field goal, giving the Prowlers their 13-point win, 63 to 50.

Sportsmen Name Ray Johnson as Club Head

Raymond Johnson was elected president of the Pennington County Sportsman's club at its annual meeting Tuesday night at the city Auditorium, to succeed D. D. Gifford.

Other officers elected were Bernard Meyers, vice president, to succeed E. J. Rustad; Robert Larson, secretary, succeeding Johnson, and Elmer Bratsch was re-elected treasurer.

A film, "Northern Harvest" which showed Morey Fish Co. operations in Canadian waters during the winter fish harvest, was shown preceding the business meeting.

The annual financial report was read by Bratsch and passed as read.

Several letters were read, one from John Carlson formerly at the Mud Lake refuge here and now stationed at a Wisc. preserve, saying hunters in northern Minnesota aren't completely aware how well off they are compared to the Wisconsin hunters.

Other letters from state conservation groups, asking the local sportsman's club to write in support of various game, fish and conservation laws now before the legislature, were read.

The club went on record as favoring the proposed legislation with the exception of one anti-trespassing law which would require hunters to ask permission before hunting on any agricultural lands and would thus eliminate the necessity of farmers posting their lands in order to keep hunters out.

Members were reminded by Gifford that they should renew their efforts to sign as many new members as possible.

Outgoing president Gifford was applauded by the group for doing a good job during his tenure. A lunch was served after the meeting.

Lady Curler Displays Fine Form

Marilyn Durham, a member of the Ft. Rouge Legion curling aggregation here last Saturday to compete with the local curling club, shows great finesse in launching a stone during one of the afternoon events at the city arena. Although Miss Durham curls with the Ft. Rouge Legion club she is a physical education instructor in Winnipeg when not sweeping or otherwise participating in curling events. Saturday's match ended in a 37-37 draw.

Keeping Score with "Huck" Olson

The All-District Team

Doug Tegtmeier and I have collaborated to select what we euphemistically have termed the "press and radio" unofficial all-district basketball tournament team.

And here it is: at the forwards, Vern Wegge of Climax and Harold Waldal of Plummer; at center, Dave Hanson of Thief River Falls; at the guards, Herschel Pepper Lysaker of Crookston and Keith Johnson of Thief River Falls. These five boys were standouts in the tournament that was concluded at Grand Forks on Wednesday night, and we think they are deserving of all-district recognition.

The Climax Viking fans may produce some arguments about the omission of their fine forward, Brent Amundson. And we gave him much consideration, too; but we didn't think he possessed the all-around ability of Wegge and Waldal. Amundson, with his easy southpaw motion was deadly with a left-hand hook and against the Prowlers on Tuesday night he racked up 21 points.

Dave Hanson, the Prowler big junior center, was, without a doubt, the tournament's "marked" man. How to "defense" against him, that's the problem that confronts the coaches who send teams against the Prowlers. And it's not easy. Dave's 31-point effort on Tuesday night was a near-record performance and if he had been "hot" he would unquestionably have set a new Lincoln high single-game scoring record. As it was, Dave tied the 34-point mark he set last season in a game against the Red Lake Falls Eagles.

There shouldn't be any complaints about the selection of the Crookston Pirates' Lysaker and the Prowlers' Johnson to the guard positions. Lysaker is one of the district's more versatile players, being a fine ball-handler and an expert scorer. Johnson is a strong floor-man, and we thought he did a very able job against the "pressing" Climax Vikings on Tuesday night. Climax had a pair of agile and aggressive "front" men in George Taus and Ralph Peterson, with Taus being especially cat-quick in making his attempts to intercept the Prowler passes. But Johnson handled the back-court floor play in an able manner, and not once did the Prowlers lose the ball because of a time-line violation.

The First Annual Bonspiel

The week-end's athletic highlight, from a local point of view, will be the first annual State-Dominion bonspiel that will be held at the Arena on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday.

Thirty-two rinks have entered the 'spiel, with quite a number of out-of-town rinks in the draw. The first round matches will take the ice at 6:30 p.m. on Friday evening.

While curling is more of a participating sport than a spectator sport, it will perhaps be of interest for local sports fans to make a trip or two to the Arena this week-end to watch the "roaring game."

The furious wielding of the brooms will, at first glance, look like so many silly gestures, but it's a fact that adept broom-work can move a stone six or eight feet, or more. The theory is that the sweeping "keens," or "slicks," the ice, and makes it possible for the 40-pound rock to glide more easily. Sounds reasonable.

And, too, the more expert curlers are able to curve, or as they call it, "curl" the rock a couple of feet. The curlers put a slow spin, and in-turn or out turn, to the rock and, if the ice is "pebbled" properly, a curve will develop.

He's Fired

Our scout, who has been pussy-footing around the basketball courts in the 32nd district, and who came up with the information that the Baudette Burbots would be the team to watch. Score of a Monday night first round tournament game at Greenbush: Stephen, 64; Baudette, 58.

That scout, as of now, has been fired. He can now concentrate all his energies on this week's curling bonspiel.

Two-game Winning Streak

Said Tom Fuller, defenseman of the ever-victorious Firemen's hockey team. "We'll play hockey as long as the Arena ice holds out."

The Firemen scored their second successive win over the Bartenders last Sunday night when they marked up a 5 to 2 triumph. The win just added substance to the Firemen's claim to the "industrial" hockey championship.

The two teams are scheduled to resume their lively series at the Arena on Sunday night. Face off time will be about 8:00 p.m., or whenever the boys don their uniforms.

The feature of last Sunday night's game was the goal scored by Bob Carlson in the third period, and which, apparently, broke the morale of the Bartenders. A two-man rush by the Firemen, with Duane Noel at right wing and Carlson at center, started from the Bartender's blue-line, and as the duo came to the goal-mouth, Noel flipped a pass to Carlson, and Bob, with a back-hand shot, unravelled the net. That goal brought tears to the eyes of strong men.

Miscellany

Here's a paragraph clipped from Maurice's Smith's "Time Out" column in the Winnipeg Free Press: "The other day we happened to mention here that the Detroit Red Wings were interested in Oscar Mahle, a member of the International Falls high school team. We now understand that Mahle and the Minneapolis Roosevelt high school ace of last season, Larry Johnson, are on the Winnipeg Warriors negotiation list." — Here's a free ad: Anyone wishing to have small outbuildings, garages, or picket-fences white-washed should contact the "painting" firm of Slap & Dash (Walt Kinghorn, the high-ladder man, and Phil LeGault, the low-ladder man).

What a Shot!

RUSS EMBURY

President of the Thief River Falls curling club grimaces as he casts his stone in the curling match here in the city arena Saturday between the local curlers and the Ft. Rouge Legion team. Despite Embury's facial contortions the situation wasn't bad — his rink went on to take this particular match.

Ask Youth to Join Safety Program for Gun Handlers

Applications Now Being Accepted from Young People, Says Dr. Disse

Youths who wish to take part in the Minnesota gun safety program this spring are urged to apply to Everett Amundgaard, Darrel Wood, Dr. J. O. Disse or any local hardware store, according to Dr. Disse, local gun safety instructor and program chairman.

Dr. Disse said special emphasis is being placed on those youths who are nearing their 16th birthday and plan to buy hunting licenses for the next hunting season, as certificates of completion of the gun safety course will be required of all such youths before licenses will be issued to them.

The first group will begin the course March 13. Each group is composed of boys and girls in the 12-16 year age bracket with 12 to each group.

The course consists of safe gun handling procedure and as an added attraction the youths get some marksmanship training.

Disse said youths interested in getting in one of the early groups receiving the training should apply at the earliest possible date.

The busiest man in the world is the fellow who attempts to idle away his time.

L. P. Zimmerman to Succeed M. Hoffmann as Road Chief Apr. 21

Similar background and professional experiences have contributed to the careers of M. J. Hoffmann, state highway commissioner, and L. P. Zimmerman; who will succeed him in that post April 21. Both are natives and lifelong residents of Minnesota, both were educated in the state and both have spent most of their adult lives in highway engineering in the state, including extended service with the state highway department.

Governor Orville L. Freeman named Zimmerman to Minnesota's top highway position several days ago after Commissioner Hoffmann notified the governor that he did not wish to be considered for reappointment to the post he has occupied since 1939. Zimmerman has been the department's chief engineer since August, 1955. He is 63 years old, Hoffmann, 68.

Zimmerman, a native of Wadena and a 1916 engineering graduate of the University of Minnesota, was Wadena village engineer in 1916-1918, served in World War I and was Big Stone county highway engineer 1919-21. In the state highway department 1921-33, he was successively maintenance superintendent in the Morris district and southwestern and metropolitan divisional engineer. After holding various state appointments and engaging in private practice for the next decade, he was planning and highway engineer of Hennepin county until he became chief engineer of the highway department in 1955.

Born in St. Paul and graduated in civil engineering from the University of Minnesota in 1911, Hoffmann was a railroad bridge draftsman until he entered the Minnesota highway department in 1914. Except for World War I service, Hoffmann has continued in the department since then, contributing to the state's extensive highway development and gaining a broad experience as a bridge draftsman, surveyor, district engineer in northwestern and southeastern Minnesota, assistant maintenance engineer and chief bridge engineer previous to his appointment as commissioner 18 years ago.

Hoffmann's state highway services has spanned the development of Minnesota's highways from locally administered dirt roads to a present state trunk highway system of more than 11,000 miles and thousands of additional miles of improved secondary roads. Zimmerman becomes commissioner as the state enters a new era of greatly needed super-highways, to be built at an increased pace through a greatly expanded program of federal aid.

Grygla Conservation Award Winner Uses Up-to-date Practices

Arnold Stanley, Grygla, who was honored as conservation farmer of the year in the Marshall-Beltrami Soil Conservation district at the annual meeting on February 28th, has a farm of 500 acres on which he milks about fifteen cows. He ultimately expects to expand his herd to about thirty cows. To provide pasture for his cows, he has adopted a four-year pasture rotation on which he seeds down one pasture each year, leaving three other good pastures to rotate his cattle on through out the year.

For winter feed, Arnold has taken a thirteen acre field next to his barn on which he seeds oats, peas for silage and an annual alfalfa. With a heavy fertilization program, he gets a heavy stand of forage. The oats provides the bulk of the feed; the peas provide protein; and the alfalfa provides nitrogen and organic matter for the next year's silage crop.

On his 415 acres of cropland, Arnold has adopted a seven-year rotation consisting of two years of grain, a green manure-summer fallow crop, two more years of grain, and two years of alfalfa and timothy. He will havest seed from these fields during the two years he normally takes hay.

In order for his crop rotations to function properly, a drainage system was needed. Accordingly technicians from the Soil Conservation Service assisting the Marshall-Beltrami SCD planned an open-ditch drainage system. Arnold has installed most of the needed ditches with his own bulldozer. The resulting drainage will eliminate nuisance potholes and will help to insure that crops will not be damaged by flooding.

The farm plan was developed with the aid of Ted Kusmak, veterans agriculture instructor in Thief River Falls and John McMartin, SCS farm planner.

Bass Season Opens Saturday, June 8

Selke Says 1957 Season to Open 2 Weeks Ahead of '56

Conservation Commissioner George A. Selke announced today that under existing legislation the season for the taking of bass will open Saturday, June 8, this year.

In making this announcement Selke said, "While legislation already passed would permit advancing the opening of the bass season to May 29 we have decided to take a more conservative position this initial year. The June 8 opening will permit a two weeks earlier season this year and, at the same time, give us an opportunity to evaluate the effects of such a season."

"The information we have now," added Selke, "seems to indicate the bulk of the spawning and hatching period is from May 20 to June 5, in the major bass waters. The northeastern region has a slightly later spawning season but as that area is generally underfished for bass we feel that angling during this period may not prove harmful."

It is during the spawning period that bass are most vulnerable to angling, as they seek to protect their nests.

"This date of June 8 has been previously established and agreed upon between Ontario and Minnesota, as the opening date for bass fishing in boundary waters," concluded Selke.

Similar agreements on boundary waters exist between North and South Dakota, Iowa and Wisconsin. The oppening dates for bass fishing on these waters will remain as previously established.

Ask Bids on 4-lane Highway on No. 10

State Plans to Widen Route Near Lake Park

Completion of U.S. highway 10 as a four-lane divided highway between Moorhead and Detroit Lakes was advanced another step today by State Highway Commissioner M. J. Hoffmann. In a call for bids issued by the commissioner and returnable March 22 were two projects for U.S. 10, one for 11½ miles of concrete paving between Hawley and a point a mile east of Lake Park and the other for two bridges on U.S. 10 just west of Hawley. This route is one of the most heavily traveled highways in Minnesota.

The U.S. 10 paving will provide two lanes to parallel the present two-lane paved roadway over the 11½-mile stretch. U.S. 10 already is a four-lane paved highway between Moorhead and Hawley.

One of the bridges will carry three tracks of the Northern Pacific railroad over the four-lane highway replacing a bridge now crossing the present two lanes. The other bridge will carry the new paving over the Buffalo river.

Now under construction is the expansion of U.S. 10 from two to four lanes between Lake Park and Detroit Lakes.

SPRING BREAKUP COMING

March brings Spring and Spring brings road problems in the country and street problems in the city. Members of the city council realize that the spring breakup is going to bring with it a great deal of justifiable complaining about the condition of our city streets. It is a problem that we can just as well start talking about before the evil day arrives.

According to city engineer Doug Stewart, what we need most of now in the street improvement line is a plan. He suggests a ten-year plan, or at least a five-year program, taking into consideration the new financial aid, and the regulations governing this aid, that will be made available under the new state highway fund distribution.

For practical purposes this new program will not become effective until 1958. It appears therefore that progress in 1957 will be limited largely to the repair and maintenance of the streets as they are now.

Looking ahead to a sensible long-range program of street improvement, Mr. Stewart has several things in mind.

We need to adopt a specific assessment formula that will prescribe the share of street improvement costs that shall be charged to the property owners, and the portion that shall be paid by the city.

There should be a classification of streets, with load restrictions and heavy truck traffic limited to arterial thruways.

And there should be standards of construction that can be expected to provide trouble-free service for at least ten years. Practically all of the streets rebuilt in recent years are breaking up because of an inadequate base, he says.

This is a sound approach to the problem and we like another suggestion, that the council appoint a citizens committee to study all of our street improvement needs, including storm sewers. Such a study committee could be helpful in finding satisfactory solutions to all of the proposals made by Mr. Stewart.

COLONIALISM OUT

A new country took its place among the nations of the world yesterday when the African Gold Coast achieved its independence. Vice President Nixon headed an official delegation representing our country at the ceremonies. The new country will be known as Ghana.

This occasion was significant mainly because it provided another example of the peaceful liquidation of the British Empire. It is an encouraging development in this era of strained international relationships that probably has not received the attention it deserves.

In an interesting discussion of this empire liquidation, Scott Long, in the Minneapolis Sunday Tribune, reviewed the liberation of colonies that already has been effected peacefully. He pointed out that since 1946 some 600 million persons, formerly subjects of the British government, have achieved citizenship within the British Commonwealth, a voluntary association of independent nations.

Ghana now is associated in this partnership and according to the present schedule three more British colonies will join this group by 1960.

This federation extends over all portions of the world and includes people of all colors and creeds. It is an encouraging development and an effective answer to the charges of the communists that the spread of European colonialism is a threat to the freedom of the world. Colonialism, in its bad sense, is out.

STRENGTH IN UNITY

By a vote of 72 to 19 the Senate approved the Eisenhower program in the Middle East Tuesday and the next day the Israeli parliament gave Prime Minister Ben-Gurion a vote of confidence, supporting his orders for the withdrawal of troops from occupied areas.

If our Senate had failed to back the administration program it is quite likely that Israel would have found several more good reasons for not complying with the United Nations order to bring its armed forces back home.

It is another example of the importance of unity on foreign policy here at home, in the interests of world peace.

DISASTER RELIEF

President Eisenhower suggests that any state seeking disaster relief be required to participate in the costs to the extent of at least 25 per cent. That makes sense. And there probably would be justification for the states to establish standards for local participation to match state contributions.

We are inclined to become hysterical when disaster strikes on an area basis. For the individual who suffers a loss, the experience is just as terrible if he is the only victime or is one of a group. The group disaster is more dramatic however.

UNJUST EXCISE TAX

(St. Paul Pioneer-Press)

One issue on which the railroads and the trucking industry are agreed is that the federal excise tax on freight shipments should be repealed. Their objection to the levy is well justified.

Railroads and truck lines pay their regular federal taxes, as do other businesses. In addition a special 3 per cent tax is added to their charges for freight shipments. This in itself is poor tax policy, for it singles out shippers for a special penalty.

But the greatest injustice arises from the fact that a company owning its own trucks can carry freight without paying the 3 per cent tax. This is a direct discrimination against the transportation companies which serve the public. It not only is an unfair blow to the rail and truck industries, but also constitutes a glaring discrimination against all persons and companies sending shipments over public transportation lines.

This excise levy is an obvious injustice and should be abandoned.

Regardless of degrees, good teachers are underpaid, poor teachers overpaid. That isn't true only of education, it is true in almost all fields. It is the reverse of the situation 50 years ago when apprentices and the inexperienced worked for two, three and up to five years for far less than they were worth. Now the poor workman gets almost, if not fully as much as the one who accomplishes twice as much. The system makes for mediocrity in all fields and will tend to slow down progress unless the trend is reversed. —Sleepy Eye Herald-Dispatch.

PUBLIC OPINION

Editor, The Times:

Our free enterprise system has become a Frankenstein. Our Bill of Rights has been stretched and stretched to cover and protect the vices and crimes instead of protecting our up-coming generations, from the hammering influences toward alcoholism and cigarette addiction — both of which are in the narcotic class.

Both of these are habit forming enslavers and become 'must-haves' so that they take precedence over all other necessities regardless of meagerness of income. All families from babyhood to adult are systematically subjected to and unprotected from these influences.

These fabulous moneymakers for the distillers, brewers and tobacco companies as well as the handlers and promoters are foisted on a defenseless and largely unaware people by way of the psychological route thru T.V., radio, movies, billboards and press advertising.

Vice and crime are related and has become such a problem that each separate state government is wallowing in a morass of incredible cost magnitude, each year becoming more costly. There are not enough penal and corrective institutions to hold the ever-growing crime crop; produced by the aforesaid intensive cultivation still rampant and unrestrained thru picture channels mainly.

Judging from a few cautious newspaper reports from heads of institutions and comments from [illegible] minority of aroused citizens, there seems to be a growing awareness of the nation's mounting derelict population and the reasons for its dereliction but what can a powerless public do when this is tied up with and involves liberty and free enterprise protected by that revered document, The Bill of Rights?

The founding fathers never dreamed that that hardwon protector of human rights could ever be prostituted to protection for promoters of vice and crime. But it has come to pass.

Parents cannot compete in the raising of their children against such powerful adversaries. What about the wreckers paying for the damage? There is not money enough in the world to cure the life-long heartaches and too-late regrets of parents and victims of these misleading drives. They were caught in the spider's web —from which few ever escape.

The Legislature

By Orlin Folwick

St. Paul.—A major clash between labor and management over union demands for widely extended coverage and benefits under the state unemployment insurance law is in the offing when the 1957 legislature gets down to examining two bills introduced by the unions.

Most important in the proposals is the extension of unemployment insurance coverage to all employees outside farm and domestic service. Next is a proposal to raise unemployment benefits to a maximum of $40 a week for 26 weeks.

Would Cover All Employees

The unemployment insurance law now provides that employers of one or more persons in communities over 10,000 population must provide unemployment insurance through a state fund. Depending upon their ratings, these employers pay up to a maximum of 2.7 per cent of the employee's earnings into the fund.

In communities under 10,000, the law exempted employers of less than eight persons, but a recent federal regulation cut the figure to four persons.

The labor bill now before the legislature would start the new program next January 1, when all employers of one or more persons in all communities of the state would start paying their premiums into the fund.

Labor's efforts to expand coverage under the fund has met with stiff resistance each time it has sought a change. The fight has come principally from the small towns, employers in which contend that the added expense would hurt their business. Labor has countered with the claim that unemployment is just as difficult in a small town as in a large city. Employers, however, say their employees rarely are out of a job, since they maintain closer relationships with them and hire only those persons needed in the business.

Will Raise Costs

Observers who are studying the proposal say that a small town business man with a payroll of $10,000 a year would pay at least $270 a year in unemployment insurance premiums. With another proposal before the legislature to raise the rate maximum from the present 2.7 to 3.3 per cent, this cost could raise to $330 per year.

Many rural legislators also are businessmen in their home towns. They are expected to rouse merchants and other businessmen [illegible] likely will bring up a sizable protest when the bill comes up for hearings.

$40 Weekly Benefit

The proposal to raise benefits payable to the unemployed calls for a $2 weekly raise, beginning with a minimum allowance of $14 a week and going to a maximum of $40. The present range is from a minimum of $12 a week to a maximum of $33, payable for a maximum period of 26 weeks. Thus, under the proposal, an unemployed craftsman whose pay has been in the upper wage brackets could collect $1,040 in unemployment benefits if he remained idle the entire 26-week period.

Legislative liberals are backing the labor organizations on the two bills. But may find the going rough when the home town businessmen faced with increased costs of doing business put on the pressure.

There is a current of feeling in some legislative quarters that the unions are exceeding the possibilities in seeking to increase benefits under unemployment insurance. Contending that employees have loafed through the entire 26-week period before taking another job, some legislators have given thought to scaling down the benefits after a short period allowing the unemployed person the maximum benefits for a few weeks to spur him into taking another job but cutting him down as time goes on. These legislators argue that unemployment with a good income is more attractive to some person that a good job.

"Pill" Bill

Another subject for considerable debate is in a bill introduced by Senator Walter J. Franz of Mountain Lake. It would give grocers the privilege of selling packaged aspirin, cough medicines, petroleum jelly and similar items. Sale of these commodities now is limited to drug stores.

Senator Franz had a similar bill in the legislature earlier in the session, but it was killed by the senate public health committee. His new bill provides for licenses to sell such items to be issued by the state pharmacy board.

Senator Franz contends that the items he proposes for sale in food stores can just as readily be sold in such places under regulation as a convenience to the public. The druggists of the state, however, are ready to give him quite a fight.

Washington College in Maryland is the only one to hold that name with the consent of George Washington.

Chevy is America's "hot" car —officially!

Chevrolet Wins Coveted Manufacturers' Trophy at Daytona Beach as "best performing U. S. automobile"!

Want facts about performance?

Then look at the official figures from NASCAR's* internationally famous Daytona Beach competition for stock cars. Here's what you'll find: Chevrolet, in two weeks of blistering competition, proved itself as America's Number One performance car. Nothing in the low-price field could touch it.

No other car, regardless of price, scored such a sweep. And Chevy walked away with the famous Manufacturers' Trophy, hands down!

The 1957 Chevrolet is, by all odds, the most astonishing performer ever produced in the low-price field. Best of all, this superiority isn't limited to just a few extra-cost high-performance models. Every type of Chevy—from the six-cylinder models right up to the 283-horsepower "Super Turbo-Fire" V8's, from the single-carburetor V8's with Powerglide to the stick-shift "270's"—is a championship car.

Retirement Test for Social Security Is Explained by Kistler

More than 9,000,000 individuals are now receiving old-age and survivors insurance monthly checks. Each of these who is under age 72 is subject to the retirement test, it was pointed out by Walter Kistler, district manager of the Grand Forks office of the Social Security Administration.

A representative of the Grand Forks office will be in Thief River Falls at the city Auditorium on Tuesday, March 12, at 10:00 a.m. Individuals who have questions regarding social security may contact him on that date. He will also be here March 14th.

The retirement test works this way. A beneficiary who earns no more than $1200.00 per year is considered a fully retired individual. If he earns more than $1200.00 and no more than $2080 he is partially retired. His earned income in excess of $1200 per year will be allotted to the months of the year at the rate of $80 per month. A beneficiary earning $1600 in a year would have $400 in excess of $1200. Dividing the $400 by $80 equals five. Thus there would be five months' benefits withheld and he would be paid for seven months.

Mr. Kistler explained that earned income means salary and wages from all sources, whether subject to social security tax or not, and net earnings from any self-employment. In other words, any income derived from rendering services of any kind must be included in the $1200 retirement test.

All beneficiaries should notify the Social Security Administration as soon as it appears that earnings may exceed $1200 in a year. Unless this is done it may become necessary to repay some benefits received.

1957 School Patrol Training Course Set

The twentieth annual session of the school safety patrol training center, Legionville, will open on Sunday, June 9, and continue for seven scheduled weeks. This safety training camp, operated by The American Legion, and for which the highway department is a joint sponsor, is expected to have more than 840 school safety and bus patrol officers enrolled from throughout Minnesota. Assembling there in weekly relays for intensive training in traffic safety, their program also will include water safety, recreation and educational trips in the vicinity.

Dates of the camp were announced by Horace Henry, St. Cloud, camp operating committee chairman, who pointed out that this will be the largest season in the camp's history.

"Last summer, [illegible] boys and girls received advanced training in school safety patrol methods," Henry said. "This was the largest enrollment in the [illegible] years the training center has operated.

"This summer we expect an enrollment of 720 boys for the first six weeks and 120 girls during the last week. However, we are prepared to train as many patrol leaders as may be sent to the camp."

This will be the first full camp season at the new site of the training center on North Long Lake in Crow Wing county. Almost $100,000 has been spent preparing the 550 acre center which includes class rooms, simulated school intersections, swimming beach and living quarters.

Cooperating with The American Legion in the operation of the camp are the Minnesota departments of highways, education and conservation. Minnesota highway patrol officers and other safety and conservation leaders will serve as instructors.

Each of the seven training periods will begin on a Sunday and close the following Saturday with special graduation exercises on Friday evening. Joining Legion posts and their auxiliary units in sponsoring youngsters in attendance are parent-teacher associations, chamber of commerce, service clubs, churches, business firms and individuals.

Patrol members passing the final examination in safety, given by adult instructors, will receive certificates of graduation. Next fall they'll be back in schools passing their training on to other school safety patrol officers.

Full information regarding Legionville, the nation's only statewide traffic safety training center for youth, may be secured from the Chairman, Legionville School Safety Patrol camp, Veterans Service building, St. Paul 1, Minn., or from the Minnesota Highway Patrol, 1270 University Ave., St. Paul.

DETROIT, MICH.—The first vehicle built by Henry Ford for sale was a truck, sold to a company here in 1899. Above it is compared to the latest 1957 Ford truck, the new styleside pickup. The 1899 model chugged along on an eight-horsepower engine. In contrast, the 1957 pickup has up to 171 horsepower. Compared to last year's pickup, the new Ford is three full inches lower, has three inches more elbow room in the cab, and was completely redesigned and restyled. The styleside pickup box is standard equipment.

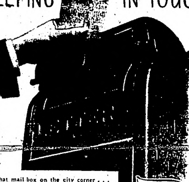
KEEPING IN TOUCH

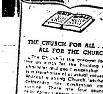


That mail box on the city corner . . . that post office at the country crossroads . . . what would we do without them?

Life is too complex for us to live by ourselves. Man's interests and his welfare reach far beyond the boundaries of his community. Communication with people and corporations hundreds of miles away is a part of modern living that we take for granted. We have to "keep in touch."

But long before life became so complex, men discovered their need for another kind of communication—prayer. The courage and faith and hope which steel men for the challenge of each day come from God. The deep spiritual needs of the soul can be supplied only by keeping in touch with God.

We think our mail-boxes are indispensable! Even so, one church means more to a community than all its postal facilities. For not so long ago men lived very happily without a postal system. But men have never lived happily without God!



THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Implement Firm at RLF Hit by Blaze

E. A. Benson Property Destroyed Saturday

Considerable loss was sustained about 6 a.m. Saturday when a Red Lake Falls fuel and implement firm on the city's main street burned to the ground, according to Leo Cartier, Red Lake Falls fire chief.

A salesman passing through the city saw the fire coming through the roof of the E. A. Benson Highway Service and Implement Co. and turned in the alarm, Cartier said.

An estimate of the loss was unavailable and the firm was believed to have been insured. Cartier said two trucks, one a fuel delivery truck and a panel truck in the garage for repairs, were known to have been destroyed.

He also said some farm implements and electrical appliances were believed destroyed in the fire. The Benson firm was the Ford implement dealer in Red Lake Falls and also handled appliances and Socony-Vacuum oil products.

Cartier said firemen could not control the fire as it was well out of hand by the time the fire department was called to the scene. There was no difficulty in keeping the flames from spreading and the underground fuel tanks did not burn, although the pumps were damaged by severe heat.

In the hope of making driving safer on highways in Marshall county, members of the county board approved a program at their session Tuesday to place "Yield Right of Way" or "Stop" signs at intersections [illegible] state and county aid roads.

On many major roads in the county drivers are in the habit of not watching too closely for intersections and commissioners hope that motorists will heed these signs to make driving more safe.

Board members also ordered the repair and improvement of County Ditch 35 in Cedar township. This will divert part of the system directly into the Mud Lake refuge from the former outlet into Thief river.

Named as viewers for the ditch project were Anton Anderson, Carl Adolphson of Arygle and August Nyblad of Stephen. Ken S. Nelson of Warren was named as an alternate viewer.

Costs to Total $680,000; L. W. Best of TRF Has Low Bid on Electrical Work

A campaign for funds to raise the Warren community's contributions for the new Warren Hospital to $130,000 is now under way following the opening of construction bids by the Board of Charities of the Red River Valley Conference in Warren March 1.

When bid figures had been compiled together with other costs necessary for building and equipping the institution it was found that a total of approximately $680,000 will be needed, Dr. C. H. Holmstrom, member of the board of charities, reported.

Arrangements had been made to finance up to $600,000 of the costs. The conference will take on an additional $50,000 but has requested the local community to raise its total contribution to $130,000. Slightly more than $100,000 was raised in the community drive last spring.

Dean L. Wichter, Inc., Minneapolis contractor, was the low bidder on the general contract with a proposal of $364,290.

Legislature's Tempo Speeds up This Week

House Passes Bill to Curb Teen-age Drivers at Night

With the session well past its midway point, the tempo in the Minnesota legislature is stepping up this week after solons enjoyed what may be their last two-day recess before the term reaches its end.

Youngsters under 17 years of age could not drive an automobile between 11 p.m. and 5 a.m. without being accompanied by an adult under a bill passed by the House Friday afternoon. Vote was 70-49.

The bill, which now goes to the Senate for action, calls for suspension of a driver's license for 30 days on the first violation and 60 days for the second. For a subsequent violation the penalty is revocation of the driver's license.

Both houses passed a bill to permit merchants to detain for questioning suspected shop-lifters without the threat of false arrest suits. They then reversed the course and recalled the bill to study its constitutionality.

The senate passed a bill raising maximum loans from $300 to $750 under the small loan act. The house approved a bill requiring courts to order posting of bonds in certain cases with suits filed against the metropolitan airports commission.

Committees in both houses and senate approved a bill banning new and used car sales on Sundays and held hearings on the proposal to outlaw trading stamps in the state.

The house civil administration committee okayed an increase of 171 officers to the present 225-man state highway patrol.

A $1 minimum wage was approved by the house labor committee and brought considerable rural opposition.

Agricultural Issues Topic of 3 Speakers at Program Thursday

More than 500 persons attended the tri-county farm forum held at the Thief River Falls armory Thursday to hear speeches by agricultural specialists and a panel discussion on farm and marketing problems. The forum got under way at 10 a.m. with a movie, "The Magic Formula," about parity. Mayor O. D. Beich delivered the address of welcome.

The first speaker on the program was Dr. Lutheran J. Pickrel, agricultural economist at the University of Minnesota who spoke on "Agriculture in the Nation's Economy."

Pickrel traced the nation's farm problems from the days when the U. S. had a predominantly agrarian economy to the present industrial or urban economy.

He said that many problems have confronted the farm population of the nation in and since that changeover, and that the problems involved are still far from solved. He emphasized that the various farm programs initiated since the 1920's have not solved them, nor has the cooperative movement, which was advocated as a cure-all in the early years of the century.

Pickrel described the soil bank as a step toward elimination of a major fault of farm programs in the past, when acreages were taken from one crop and put to another, thus putting a strain on growers of the same crop in other parts of the country. The soil bank itself, he emphasized, [illegible] to be called a success at this stage, but it is a forward step.

Pickrel also said there is a limit to the foodstuffs the nation can produce or market abroad and he opposed any "farm plan" that ignores this fact. He illustrated part of his speech with a crop map of the nation, describing each section's problems as he went to show that no one section of the country has a monopoly on farm problems.

Furthermore, he emphasized, farm problems here are affected by world problems, and have a bearing on any future solution. He concluded by saying (1) production, per man, on the farm is still increasing, (2) the farmer sells more and buys more now and is therefore more vulnerable to ups and downs in prices, cost factors, etc. Nevertheless, he said, the farmer is more important than ever before to the nation's economy.

297 Acreage Allotments on Wheat Signed

Pennington County Farmers Cooperate Well, Says Culkins

The 1957 sign-up period for the Acreage Reserve part of the Soil Bank program came to an end at the close of business on Friday, March 8. The following figures were released today by Patrick W. Culkins, office manager of the Pennington County ASC office.

297 wheat acreage allotment [illegible] contracts with the USDA for reducing their wheat acreage in 1957. The acreage contracted equals 50.3% of the total wheat acreage allotment in the county.

Culkins stated that, in his opinion, if other wheat producers in other wheat-producing counties of the United States cooperated one half as well as Pennington county producers in 1957 that the burdensome wheat surplus problem would be well on its way to being solved in 1957.

The 1957 Agricultural Conservation program will open in Pennington county on Monday, March 18. All landowners and operators who wish to cooperate with this program in 1957 should call at the ASC office in Thief River Falls for the purpose of formulating a farm plan for carrying out soil and water conservation on their farms. The closing date for accepting cost-share requests under this program for spring practices is April 5.

Practices that are available for Pennington county farmers will be carried in the Thief River Falls Times beginning March 21. It is suggested that all prospective cooperators familiarize themselves with the practices available and decide which ones would best meet their conservation needs prior to the time they come into the ASC office to sign-up.

Don Cossack Chorus Gives 'Different' Program Here

By Bryant Ulseth

The Don Cossack Chorus and Dancers, complete with shining black boots and characteristic uniforms were warmly received by patrons of the Northwest Concert series Sunday evening.

The presentation is severely different in choral style from what is familiar to a Minnesotan. Many of the qualities which are desirable in choral music were not present in the chorus. Tenors, or would you say "sopranos" had difficulty in keeping some of the higher phrases on pitch, there was evident sliding or "scooping" to reach a tone, and occasionally a lack of balance between the sections.

Perhaps the latter is caused because each individual of the chorus appeared to have a feeling or sense of approach for a composition. The program was tempered then, with what might be termed a deep-rooted Russian technique.

"Meadowland," marching song for the Cavalry, was rendered with a gradual crescendo throughout; even the contra-basses entered smoothly. The chorus produced many enjoyable effects such as a Russian accordion, a Bandura or string instrument and bells. The latter was used as accompaniment to a well executed solo in the first encore, perhaps the finest number of the program.

Great changes in dynamics were produced instantly on sign from the diminutive director, Serge Jaroff. The lighter selections featuring the gay and balding whistler were welcome in the program.

It is hoped that no vertebrae are misplaced today as a result of mimicking the colorful Cossack dances.

In addition to state and national awards there are many district prizes awarded in the preliminary finals to be held in each district in the early fall. Winners in state finals to be held later in the fall receive trips to Salt Lake City, where national competitions will be held. Trip expenses will be presented by F. W. Woolworth Company.

Plummer Polio Victim Improved

Jasperson Girl to Come Home from Denver in May

LaVonne Jasperson, who has been at a Denver chiropractic sanatorium since last September, is making good progress in her fight to regain use of her legs, her mother, Mrs. William Jasperson, of Plummer, said last week.

Mrs. Jasperson said LaVonne reports she is now able to take several steps unassisted, and can walk a whole city block by hanging on to a therapist's arm.

She was stricken by polio in August 1949 and has been trying to learn to walk again ever since. Last summer neighbors in the Highlanding neighborhood gave a benefit dance in her honor to partly defray costs of her stay in Denver.

Mrs. Jasperson said LaVonne expects to return home about May 1.

Elevator Fire at Ulen Causes Loss of over $150,000

Fire, going full blast before it was discovered, destroyed the grain-filled Tri-county Cooperative elevator at Ulen early Friday. Damage was estimated at $150,000 to $200,000.

A strong southeast wind sent a shower of sparks over the community, but a fresh snowfall which dampened roofs prevented the embers from taking effect. Firemen from Hawley and Twin Valley were called on a standby basis. The elevator contained about 33,000 to 40,000 bushels of grain.

The entire middle section of the elevator was aflame by the time the blaze was discovered at 5:30 a.m. Three silos adjacent to the elevator were destroyed or damaged. Firemen soaked down a nearby auto service station, preventing flames from

by Bud Kelly

Do your floors look a little worse for wear? If they do, it's time for a refinishing job. Sound hard? It's not if you do it right.

If your floors are really in bad shape you should probably rent a floor sander and refinish them completely. Most floors, however, don't need a complete refinishing.

Let's concentrate on floors that don't need a complete refinishing job. The floor should be thoroughly washed with a good cleaning compound to remove all dust, wax, grease and soil. If you want to remove the old finish, use SUPERMIX No-Wash remover for a really slick job with a minimum of work.

Allow the floor to dry. Fill all cracks (SUPERMIX Crack Filler does a swell job). Worn spots should be touched up with wood stain to match the rest of the surface. Cover these spots with a thin coat of varnish ahead of the first coat.

After the surface has been properly prepared, apply one or two coats of SUPERMIX 4-Hour Varnish or SUPERMIX Plasti-Film Varnish. Allow 24 hours drying time between coats.

If you want an enamel finish, you can't find a better one than SUPERMIX Floor Enamel. Thin the first coat about one-fourth with turpentine. The final coat should be applied as it comes from the can. If you use three coats, the second should also be thinned a little.

Before you start the job — no matter what kind of a paint job it is — come in and talk it over with us. We can probably save you time and money.

Sewing Methods Are Studied By Leaders

Leader training meetings on basic sewing methods were given last week, County Home Agent Marge Olsen announced today. Leaders from extension home program groups throughout the county attended.

The basic information of the lessons is to show home sewers how to make professional-looking garments. The importance of handling the fabric properly so the grain line is accurate was stressed in the lesson.

Suggestions on choosing patterns and fabrics were given, with several swatches of fabric being discussed and examined.

Each homemaker attending the meeting learned how to prepare the pattern pieces and the fabric, and how to lay, cut, and mark pattern pieces. Since many homemakers feel that their sewing methods could be improved the basic instructions in the lesson were important to these women.

Leaders who attended the leader training meetings will now hold meetings in their own homemaker groups, Miss Olson said. In fact, the meeting of the Kratka group has already been held and reported to the office. These homemakers found the careful laying and cutting of the pattern, and the method of shrinking wool the best-received part of the lesson.

This is the second last lesson to be given in the extension program this year. Better breakfasts, spending your clothing dollar, and the family life conference have already been given. Backgrounds in home furnishings, the last lesson, will be given at the end of March.

Homemakers will officially close the program this year with their annual Achievement Day which will be held in the spring or early summer.

The University of Michigan is the oldest state university in the country and was also the first state university to admit coeds.

Big New Catholic Church at Brooks Finished Shortly

Brick Edifice Measures 103 by 40 Feet; Dedication Tentatively Set April 14

Workmen are putting final work on the construction of the St. Joseph's Catholic church at Brooks. Tentative date set for the dedication of the new church edifice is April 14, according to the Rev. Henry Carriere, parish priest.

Work on the new church which is located on the site occupied by the old structure began August 1, 1956 following the disposal of the old building. Contracts were let last May 10.

Of brick and concrete construction the new church is modernistic in design and is representative of the new trend in church architecture. The main structure is 103 feet by 40 feet and the entry and vestibule at the front of the church is 16 feet by 12 feet. The annex and saristy is 10 feet by 10 feet and extends along the east side of the church from the tower unit.

The tower unit is located in the center of the east side and serves also as a side entry to the church annex and sacisty as well as to the church hall located in the basement. Architects for the project is the firm of Wells & Denbrook of Grand Forks, N. D. Ed Koskovich of Fosston was subcontractor and George Jackson also of Fosston was the foreman of the erection crew.

The Brooks parish was formed in 1916 from Lambert parish and part of the Terrebonne parish. The old structure was built in 1916 and was of frame construction. The Brooks-Terrebonne American Legion Post purchased the old structure and moved it to a new site in Brooks.

Fr. Henry Carriere, born and reared in the Red Lake Falls community was ordained following attendance at the St. Paul Seminary, St. Paul, Minn. Prior to his arrival in Brooks two years ago he served as parish priest at Park Rapids, Minn. In addition he served as hospital chaplain there and also served missions at Guthrie and LaPorte.

Shootin' the Breeze

BY Mack Draper

Everything comes in the mail these days . . . everything but our tax refund check, that is.

Saturday we got notice that we're the recipients of a gift subscription to a certain religious periodical. We hereby wish to thank the sender but do wish he (or she) had furnished identification.

We promise to read the periodical. And, we might add, we're sorry the lack of the sender's name makes it impossible for us to reciprocate so he or she could do the same!

Ever notice how so many people, including a great many who do a lot of public speaking, butcher the English language?

One thing that bothers us no end is that so many public speakers, in describing some program, etc., say "It was very excellent."

"Excellent" means it was just about the best. How do you improve on that? How can you have a superlative superlative?

Oh yes—so often one hears "anymore" used when "nowadays" or something similar would be far more appropriate. For instance, wouldn't "He doesn't live there now," sound far better than "He doesn't live there anymore?" That's the worst sample we can think of now—but we've heard some usages that were positively atrocious.

Last, but not least (and by far the worst!) is the way some of our acquaintances insist on using "youse" for "you." Ohhhh, brother!

Before some of you get the urge to clobber us over this language business because we use "aint" occasionally, we might remind you that this word will eventually be accepted into the language, or will be here in the U. S., at least.

One of our English instructors at N.D.U. said use of the word is far more acceptable than the way some people string together sentences formed of poorly-used acceptable words. He also states it was a matter of time before "aint" is accepted, since it fulfills a definite need in the language.

Aint, youse and anymore—well, they're just out the window!

Well, youse guys, we're tired of writing anymore and aint going to stay any longer, cuz, as any English teacher will tell you, lecturing on usage of the language is a frustrating proposition. So—SO LONG!

(Nice weather we're havin', aint it?)

Father of County Agt. Stelmaschuk Died on Thursday

Pennington County Agent Paul Stelmaschuk received word during the Tri-county Farm forum Thursday that his father, Joseph Stelmaschuk, had died of a stroke last Tuesday at his home in Edmonton, Alta., Can.

Paul Stelmaschuk left Thief River Falls for Edmonton immediately upon receiving the news. He had returned from there only a few weeks previously, after his mother had died Feb. 15.

The elder Stelmaschuk, about 72, had been in good health up to within a few weeks of his wife's death, when he had a slight stroke. According to Mrs. Paul Stelmaschuk, the county agent's father had suffered a severe stroke when his wife died, from which he never recovered.

Stelmaschuk was born in Poland and was married there. After the death of their first son the Stelmaschuks moved to Canada, about 1906 coming to Stedden, Alta., where they farmed 30 years before moving to Vancouver, B. C. They moved to Edmonton last year.

County Agent Paul Stelmaschuk is the only surviving son. Six daughters also survive.

Total damage was [illegible] to the Taylor vehicle, none to the Kiewel truck.

Chief Elroy Cummings said theft of two hubcaps from each of two cars in the city was also reported. He said such thefts appear to be on the increase and requested that anyone seeing persons acting suspiciously around automobiles in the city report it to the police department.

Over 500 Attend Farm Forum at Armory Thursday

(3) The farm problem is still caused by the balance between supply and demand. (4) Management is one of the big problems of the farm today and in the future.

Pickrel did not advocate any particular plan as a solution of the farm problem. He did, however, emphasize that before any local farm problem is subjected to attempted solution the effect of the solution on other farmers should be studied thoroughly.

He devoted much of his talk to an explanation of the purposes of the series of farm forums being held throut the state, pointing to the need of an understanding of the problems of agriculture in their many phases as essential to the finding of solutions.

Harold Pederson, extension economics specialist at the University of Minnesota, spoke on "How Marketing Costs Affect you." He discussed various problems of marketing and the effects of more processing and packaging on food prices.

Using wheat as an example he illustrated by slides the shrinking share the producer gets of the consumers' dollars as the processing and packaging of the product is increased. He estimated that the farmer gets 50% of the consumers' dollar in the purchase of a 100 pound bag of flour but only 30% of what the consumer pays for flour in two pound packages.

He cited examples of breads, breakfast foods and other products in which the processing costs are a big factor in the retail price, pointing out one instance of a $2.00 bushel of wheat bringing $40 as the retail price of the finished product. In such products the cost of the raw material is a relatively small item and there is little retail price fluctuation as the market value of wheat rises or falls.

Pederson stressed the importance of efficiency in marketing and quality in products to obtain the maximum returns.

The afternoon program started with a talk by George Peterson of the U. S. department of agriculture. He has represented the department in Europe since the beginning of the Marshall Plan and discussed the effects of our foreign aid program on the agriculture of this country.

Since 1949 this program has cost our country $37½ billion or an average of from $4½ to $5½ billion a year, he said. Thirty-six per cent of this total was contributed in the form of agricultural products, most of them necessarily of the non-perishable type.

He justified this program as having been essential to our own security. Europe is no longer receiving economic aid from us, he stated, and European nations are now making important and steadily increasing contributions to their own defense. Our exports on a commercial basis are steadily increasing as the rest of the free world develops economically and friendly nations become more prosperous.

Twelve citizens representing various groups in the tri-county area made up the discussion panel that was the concluding feature of the farm forum program. Questions directed to them covered a wide range of problems, including the probable fate of the small farm operation, the effectiveness of flexible price supports, the relative merits of a two-price system, the problems involved in the control of their own markets by farmers, and the inconsistency of reducing acreage by one government program while another government agency increases acreage by irrigation.

A noon lunch was served by the Leaders' Council of the Pennington County 4-H Clubs. Sponsoring organizations were the Farmers Union of all three counties, the Farm Bureau and the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce.

Liquor Store and Steak House to Be Built at Brooks

Erskine and Crookston Men Plan for Erection of $40,000 Structure

The Brooks village council Thursday evening, March 7, approved the formal application for a liquor license by a private operator. The application has been forwarded to the state liquor control commission and a spokesman for the council said Friday the license may be issued about May 1, pending processing by the state agency.

Applying for the license was the partnership of Moran and Grammer, who the council understood would erect a new 50 ft. by 100 ft. building near the intersection of Highway 59 and T. H. No. 92.

Moran and Grammer indicated to the council the cost of construction would be in the neighborhood of $40,000 or $50,000. It would be a liquor store and a steak house, according to the best information available. Moran is from Erskine and Earl Grammer is from Crookston.

Members of the Brooks village council are A. J. Parenteau, president; James Sabourin, clerk; Harvey Page, Joe Thiebert and Joe Pastir, councilmen.

Ford Thunderbird to Aid Orchestra

Minneapolis Symphony Launches Prize Contest

A 1957 Ford Thunderbird will do its part to support the activities of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra during the month of March. The gleaming new sportscar, fully equipped and ready for the road, will be the grand prize in a contest of skill and knowledge open to everyone in the upper midwest subject to state, federal and local regulations.

The contest, sponsored by the Women's Association of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra—is based on the fact that more than one hundred thousand persons attended home concerts of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra last year. Careful research and surveys have shown that there are eight primary reasons for such attendance and has listed them in the order of their importance.

Contest entrants have only to list those eight in correct sequence on an official entry blank available at any Ford dealer's with a $1.00 donation to the Symphony to try for the grand prize. All entries will be sent to the Symphony Contest in care of the Northwestern National Bank of Minneapolis. The sealed answers to the question will also be held in the vault of the same bank, until the final date of the contest midnight, April 5, 1957.

Spring Seems to Be Arriving Here

Mercury Sunday Rose to High Reading of 36

Can spring be here? The forecast would make it seem so, with the possibility of showers it mentions.

While it would probably be unwise to put storm coats in mothballs the prospects for an early demise of old man winter are good—and after all, spring is officially only ten days away!

Early morning temperatures since Thursday prove winter hasn't been entirely de-fanged. However, the highs show a rising trend which probably won't be broken before mid-week, according to the KTRF forecast.

Here are the temperatures for the period since Thursday:

Date	High	Low
Thurs., March 7	16	—4
Friday, March 8	28	0
Sat., March 9	19	—11
Sunday, March 10	36	15

The Monday low was a pleasant 25. A trace of precipitation was received during the period.

The forecast: considerable cloudiness, scattered light showers or snow and little temperature change today. Tuesday will be mostly fair with little temperature change.

Highs will range from 30 to 40 and lows will be 15 to 25. The Wednesday outlook is for partly cloudy and warmer weather with the possibility of scattered light showers.

Soils

Over 75 farmers attended a meeting on soils in the court house a week ago. I am sorry I couldn't be with you at the time. It is well to review for those who weren't there the statements made by Curtis Overdahl.

Overdahl, extension soils specialist from the University of Minnesota, explained the consequences of the "high lime" soils in this area. He pointed out that crops grown on these soils are in general seriously deficient in phosphorous and, in many cases, also iron-deficient. That's because the high lime content "fixes" the iron or phosphorous in a form that plants can't use.

Overdahl recommended applications up to 60 pounds of P2O5 per acre for most crops which is approximately 125 pounds of 0-47-0 fertilizer. He added, though, that since most grain crops respond well to nitrogen and that soil tests indicate potash levels to be only medium, that a mixed fertilizer, such as 6-24-12 at 250 pounds per acre, would be very desirable.

Results are best, Overdahl said, when you apply the fertilizer with an attachment on the drill.

Overdahl also advised farmers to use a soil test to figure fertilizer needs. Years of research, he pointed out, have shown an excellent relationship between soil tests and field results which bring research to the farmer's individual fields and make more efficient use of the fertilizer dollar.

Solving the problem of iron-deficiency is more complicated, Overdahl said. "Chelated" iron compounds can be added to the soil to correct the condition, but these compounds are very expensive and many of them aren't available commercially. Ordinary iron compounds are no help, but the chelated compounds are protected from fixation by the high lime condition, and therefore improve the iron situation in the soil. Research on chelated iron compounds is now in progress, and the coming year should supply many of the answers still needed correcting iron deficiency on a practical basis.

Don Lawrence, work unit conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service, described the variability of soils in the county and explained the general fertility practices necessary for each of the soil types.

Trees In The Soil Bank

Under the Soil Bank Conservation Reserve, you can get $1.75 in cost-sharing payments for every 100 trees you plant.

To get this cost-sharing help, though, you need to comply with practice A-7 of the Soil Bank for "the initial establishment of trees and shrubs for erosion control, watershed protection and forestry purposes."

Minimum rate is 1,000 trees per acre, meaning the landowner will receive $17.50 per acre in cost-sharing payments. He will also receive an annual rent payment of about $10 per acre during the contract period.

The deadline for taking out a tree planting contract with government under the Conservation Reserve is April 15th, so it's not too early to begin planning for 1957 plantings. Last year the demand for stock from the State Department of Conservation far outstripped the supply.

With the Soil Bank Conservation Reserve tree planting program, the demand will be still greater this year.

During the contract period, you'll have to protect your plantings from fire and grazing. A survival of 750 trees per acre must be shown after the first year, and you can't remove any Christmas trees, ornamentals or greens.

You can plant shrub windbreaks for wildlife and get paid $1.75 per hundred. There are also provisions for leaving good plots for wildlife.

The land rent payments provide an income while you wait for your reforested land to grow and produce. At the end of the 10-year contract period the land should be producing pulpwood, posts, lumber and furnishing shelterbelt protection and protective areas for wildlife.

Sheep

Oats silage is just as good as corn silage in a fattening ration for lambs.

But with either kind of silage, the lambs will do better if they also get some hay.

In feeding experiments with lambs in 1956, University of Minnesota research workers compared lambs fed oats silage with lambs fed corn silage—with and without hay.

Lambs on oats silage without hay gained .22 pounds daily, compared with .21 pounds for lambs on corn silage and no hay.

In both cases, though, adding half a pound of hay to the ration boosted the gains by more than 20 per cent. Average daily gains for lambs on oats silage and hay were .26 pounds and .27 pounds for lambs fed corn silage and hay.

Pelleting complete rations doesn't pay for lambs. Even though complete pelleted rations make lambs gain faster, the high cost of pelleting in most cases more than eats up the extra profits a farmer would otherwise make from increased rate of gain and feed efficiency. Pelleting cost around $9.10 per ton of feed.

"A Thank You"

To all the 4-H mothers and leaders who turned out to help with the Farm Forum dinner last Thursday. They worked so well together that nearly 300 people were fed in about 20 minutes. Several folks have mentioned to me that the serving was fast and efficient.

The committee who planned the dinner included Mrs. I. J. Russell, chairman; Mrs. Charles Svendsgaard; Mrs. Alvin Fjeld; Mrs. George Swanson; and Mrs. Gust Gustafson.

These homemakers and the mothers and leaders who helped with the serving did a real good job, and our special thanks to them.

Made Me Feel Good . .

to see so many women out with their husbands at the Farm Forum. I'm sure you enjoyed it as much as he did. Mrs. Legvold and Mrs. Gagnan represented women on the panel well, didn't they?

Make Room For Beef

A glance at meat market supplies and attractive tags of high-quality beef will tell you it's time to stock your freezer. In the next few weeks you'll find a larger supply than usual of beef from the grain fed cattle that produce the better grade of beef. Best guide to quality is the official Department of Agriculture grade lable, enclosed in a purple shield. Top grade is U. S. Prime, but the next best grade — U. S. Choice — is found more readily at retail stores. The third best grade, U. S. Good, carries less fat than Prime or Choice.

Kitchen Planning

If you're planning a new kitchen, be sure to have the work counters at a comfortable height for you. Home management specialists say that a kitchen has has been built more for appearance than for efficiency if all the work surfaces are at the same height as the range.

The height of your work counter affects the energy you use in doing a job. A counter is too high you have to lift your elbow or arm to work at it; it's too low if you find yourself stooping or bending over it to do the job. Check the heighth of your counters soon.

How's Your Equipment Storage?

Is your equipment stored for greatest efficiency? It's true you can save time by storing it at the place where it's used first. But here's another tip to keep in mind from Mrs. Esther Trammell, assistant professor of home economics at the University of Minnesota. Store the heavier items and those most frequently used on shelves that are within easy reach, preferably located at a level near the center of the body. It requires less energy to lift small items down from a high shelf than heavy ones.

Room Colors Affect Light

How light or dark the rooms in your home may be well depend partly on the color of walls and ceilings. That's one point to keep in mind when you select colors for decorating.

Home improvement specialists at the University of Minnesota say that, in general, dark colors and finishes absorb light, while light colors and finishes tend to reflect light. White ceilings, for example, reflect 8' percent of the light which strikes them: Light cream, gray and yellow reflect 75 percent. When colors are used in a medium value, they reflect much less light. Medium yellow reflects 65 percent medium gray and green 55 percent, and medium blue reflects only 35 percent.

Dark colors reflect very little light. Brown reflects only 10 percent of the light that strikes it, dark green only 7 percent. Dark wood finishes like walnut and mahogany reflect only 16 and 12 per cent respectively. Maple finish, or the other hand, reflects 42 percent.

Illumination Important

Central ceiling light fixtures seem to be coming back into vogue.

Extension home improvement specialists at the University of Minnesota say that fact is all to the good. A central ceiling fixture, like cove lighting and valance lighting, provides general illumination. Good quality lighting for a room, the specialist say, requires that there be general room illumination as well as light at specific places. If the only light in a room is provided by portable lamps, the areas surrounding the lamp will be dark. This condition is hard on the eyes, since they must then constantly adjusty themselves to thees contrasts every time they look around the room.

Bemidji Top Winner in States-Dominion Bonspiel Held in TRF

Two smoothly-skipped Bemidji rinks monopolized the honors as the first annual States-Dominion bonspiel was concluded at the Arena on Sunday night.

The Hal Haluptzok rink, with Haluptzok as skip, Ken Daniel at third, Don Hirt at second, and Tom Lepp at lead, defeated the Al Derrett rink from the Granite Curling club of Winnipeg, 13 to 10, in the finals of the first, or championship event.

In the second event, the Harry Hunt rink, also of Bemidji, with Hunt as skip, Max Hirt at third, Ron Batchelder at second, and Paul Gravel at lead, defeated the local club's Henry Thorson rink in the finals.

In the third or consolation event, which was concluded late Sunday night, the Jim Doyle rink, also from the Granite Curling club of Winnipeg, defeated the V. Peterson rink of Drayton, No. Dak.

Thirty-two rinks participated in the bonspiel, with the opening draws being curled on Friday night and Saturday morning. First round play was completed on Saturday, with the quarter-finals, semi-finals, and finals being curled on Sunday.

In progressing through the first event competition, Hal Haluptzok defeated E. L. Gunerlous of Pembina in a first round match, defeated Warren Clow of St. Vincent in the second round, edged out the Al Fahrner rink of Winnipeg in the quarter-finals, and defeated Duluth's P. E. Maxwell rink in the semi-finals.

The Al Derrett rink, the other first event finalist, defeated Art Moe of the local club in a first round encounter, defeated Winnipeg's Don Trakalo in the second round, and, with a five-ender on the last end, eliminated the Ray Peritz rink of Eveleth in the semi-finals.

In the second event competition, Harry Hunt defeated the C. Wittmar rink in a first round match, bested Pembina's Gunerlous' rink in a second round match, and defeated Emerson's T. Sanders rink in the semi-finals. Hunt was eliminated from the first event competition when [illegible] the local club's Glen Gilleshammer.

The Henry Thorson, the rink that carried the local club's colors to a runner-up position in the second event, defeated Ray Erdmann Olson in a first round match, Orvis Olen in a second round draw, and Art Moe in the semi-finals. The Thorson rink were taken out the first event play when they dropped their opening round match to the Ray Peritz rink of Eveleth.

In the third event play, Jim Doyle defeated Warren Clow in the first round, edged out the local club's Tom Cochrane in the second round, defeated Emerson's Lou Moore rink in the semi-finals, and then defeated the Peterson rink in the finals.

Peterson, meanwhile, moved through the upper bracket by defeated Ray Olson in a first round encounter, Ed Dolan in a second match, and Glen Gilleshammer in the semi-finals.

He's A Great One

Dave Hanson, the Prowlers' six-foot, five-inch junior center, has been rewriting the local high school's individual scoring book this season.

Last Wednesday night, and he could not have chosen a more opportune time, Dave, in leading the Prowlers to a 66 to 56 win over the Crookston Pirates in the finals of the 31st district basketball tournament, poured 37 points through the baskets. In the first half he stuffed six field goals and four free throws into the hoop, and in the second half he hit for ten field goals and a free throw.

That 37-point production broke the old record of 31 points, set by Dave against Red Lake Falls last season and tied, by Dave himself, on Tuesday night in a district semi-finals tilt against Climax.

That 37-point effort on Wednesday night also boosted Dave's point total for the season to 517, and it carried the smooth-moving, deft-fingered center past the old record of 482 points, set by Art Johnson in 1951.

While its Dave's scoring ability that is the focus of most of the basketball fans, it should also be noted that Hanson has developed into a strong defensive player. During the district tournament games, Dave was especially effective in clearing the backboards. It appeared that Dave will leave his feet better to clear a defensive rebound than he will in attempting to score on a rebond off the offensive board.

Yes, Dave has tremendous potential, and it's surely comforting to know that he will return for next season's campaign.

It's Uncanny

Did you follow the progress of the Mahnomen Indians vs. Halstad Pirates 30th district basketball tournament finals game on Friday night? The Halstad club, scoring what can be termed a minor upset, defeated the Indians 71 to 70, and there by gain a berth in this week's regional tournament at Grand Forks.

But what so surprising and noteworthy about the Halstad victory was the manner in which Coach Ray Kerrigan's Pirates rallied to scalp the Indians. The Pirates trailed by a 26 to 13 score at the end of the first period, and a 41 to 29 score at the half-time intermission. That appeared to be enough of a point-cushion for Coach Lute Olson's veteran Mahnomen club. But then the Halstad Pirates turned on one of their typical (or at least it's been typical of Pirate club since Coach Kerrigan took over the reins) second half rallies, and the result was a 71 to 70 win. It's uncanny the way the Pirates can make these never-say-die rallies. Remember last year's regional finals, between the Pirates and the Bemidji Lumberjacks, and in which the Jacks were well-satisfied to settle for a 73 to 72 victory.

But while Halstad's win over Mahnomen on Friday night verges upon the uncanny, it doubtful if the Pirates will be uncanny, or canny enough, to defeat the Bemidji Lumberjacks when they play a regional tournament first round game on Thursday night. The adds-makers have established the Jacks as top-heavy favorites. And on the season's record, Coach Bun Fortier has developed a club that must be rated with the better teams to represent Bemidji. It's a good out-fit, and may be a great one.

Note To Wally DuChamp

A weekly sports magazine, with nation-wide circulation, has [illegible] "The Modern Fundamentals of Golf" by Ben Hogan.

In its preamble it states that the information given in these articles, if properly applied, "Will enable the average golfer to shoot in the 70's." And this shooting in the 70's will be accomplished without conceding yourself those four and five foot putts. These articles are for you, Wally.

Some of the local golfers are already feeling the urge to get their swinging muscles in shape, using weighted clubs and their basement "driving ranges."

We hear that John Moura is building up a handicap argument, basing his reasoning on a touch of bursitis that has affected his right shoulder. Phil and Jack and Stan will perhaps have to give big John a stroke or two. That's maybe, of course. John states that he'll be able to play Wally even-up, bursitis or not.

We hear, too, that the recent trip to Phoenix, and the discovery of a new golf pro, has caused Lloyd Bennes to completely overhaul his golf game. From the stance, to a deliberate pause at the top of his backswing, to the follow-through, Lloyd's game will be brand-new.

Congratulations, Art

Big Art Johnson, the Prowlers' gift to the Concordia College basketball squad, was honored by his team-mates this week by being elected captain of the Cobber squad for the 1957-58 season.

Art, a sixfoot five-inch center, weighing better than 225 pounds, has been "power" in the Concordia lineup for the past several seasons, and he has justly earned the captaincy. The Cobbers haven't been too successful in their basketball campaigns in the Minnesota college conference, but this past season they provided the league with an upset or two; and next year's outlook is rated as being fair to good.

It's sure that the Cobbers, in Art Johnson, will have a captain that possesses the talents of leadership, and who is an A-1 competitor. Let's hope that Art proves to be the basketball Moses that will lead Concordia out the basketball "wilderness".

City Bonspiel to Be Held at Arena Saturday, Sunday

Given favorable weather and ice conditions, the local curling club will hold its annual city-wide bonspiel at the Arena on Saturday and Sunday. The bonspiel, [illegible] city championship, will be limited to teams that hold membership in the local curling club.

Team skips wishing to enter their rinks in this week-end's bonspiel are asked to register with Roger Tunberg or Tom Cochrane. Cochrane stated that these entries should be filled promptly, so that the bonspiel draw can be published on Thursday.

THORNY PATH LEADS TO CROWN

Minnesota's basketball cream is rapidly coming to the top, with District contests already well under way to determine which eight regional teams will compete for the state crown Saturday, March 23.

Art "Basketball" Johlfs, unquestionably the most-traveled and thoroughly analytical amateur sports observers in Minnesota, estimates that the 10,000 games played by the 490 League schools during the past season drew total atendance exceeding in numbers the entire population of the state.

Though early season scores were comparatively low, the end of the season finds more schools than ever before with game scores of 100 or more: Barnum, Brainerd, Cromwell, Hackensack, Lakefield, Madelia, Minneapolis Roosevelt, Preston, Red Lake. Preston Lanesboro 102-94 for a 196 game may prove to be an all-time record. Another season's record is eight undefeated teams: Alden, Anoka, Fergus Falls, Kennedy, Lewiston, Minneapolis Roosevelt, Pequot Lakes, St. Louis Park.

Less Than Half U. S. Citizens Have Been Given Salk Vaccine

Despite a recent increase in use of the Salk vaccine, only two-thirds of the population under 20 and expectant mothers of the nation had received any vaccine by March 1 and a mere 17 per cent of those form 20 through 39 had even begun the series of three shots.

This was revealed today by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, based on the new estimates of vaccine usage made in cooperation with the U. S. Public Health Service.

There are now 51,000,000 persons under 40 years of age who have had one or more shots, leaving 58,000,000 without Salk protection. The goal of the spring vaccination program on which the American Medical Association; the Public Health Service and the National Foundation are concentrating is to see that as many as possible of he 109,000,000 individuals under 40 in the nation receive at least two shots of vaccine by June 30.

"These estimates show that since Jan. 1 some 6,000,000 people have realized the urgency of getting polio vaccinations before the summer season," said Basil O'Connor, National Foundation president. "But many millions more must be made aware of the necessity to act while there still is time to prevent polio epidemics in 1957.

"There are 23,000,000 unvaccinated individuals who are either under 20 or expectant mothers. Among these the most important to reach are those of preschool age and teenagers. Both are highly susceptible to paralytic polio. Last year the highest incidence of the crippling form of the disease was in children under 5. Teenagers, too, should heed the message 'Vaccinate Before Too Late.' They often think they are too old to worry about the disease. But statistics show that one out of every three paralytic cases occurs at 15 years of age or older—and these are the most severe cases."

N.W. Bell Workers Have Few Mishaps

Workers in State Set New Low Record for Accidents

In 1956, Northwestern Bell Telephone company's employees in Minnesota sustained fewer disabling injuries on-th-job than in any previous year in the history of the company's operations in the state.

Although Northwestern Bell has almost 10,000 telephone men women in Minnesota, only three employees had lost-time accidents during the year. A fourth employee was off the job in 1956 due to an injury received in 1955.

The small number of lost-time accidents is praticularly significant in view of the fact that the employees include installers who regularly climb poles, splicers who work in manholes or on aerial ladders on trucks, and construction workers who set poles and place cables, using heavy machinery. Occasionally these men drive on icy roads to get to the job. In 1956, the company's 1,500 motor vehicles were driven 12,245,000 miles.

Last year also saw the fewest number of lost-time on-the-job accidents among the 25,000 employees in the entire five-state area served by Northwestern Bell.

Waterfowl Count in U. S. Declines

Annual Midwinter Census Taken During January

The annual international midwinter waterfowl survey was conducted in January. This survey was participated in by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the Canadian Wildlife officials, state conservation departments, the department of defense and other conservation agencies. It was less complete this year than last because of the lack of coverage in Mexico.

Preliminary figures show the total wintering waterfowl population of the United States to be down 17% from last year. The majority of the dabbling ducks and canvasback appear to show little change from last year and their status is considered to be good. Late nesting waterfowl, including mostly divers, showed up poorly in the survey.

The central flyway count was down 44% in total waterfowl. Mallards were up 14%, while all geese were down 36%.

In the Atlantic flyway the total count was down 21%. All geese in the Atlantic Flyway were down 29% from last year.

The Mississippi flyway portion of this international watrefowl survey was conducted from January 5-18, including the 14 states of this flyway which extends from Minnesota to Louisana and from Ohio to Iowa. More than 900 waterfowl specialists flew, drove, paddled or walked over 70,000 miles to obtain the desired information.

These trained observers found little change over last winter's waterfowl population in the Mississippi flyway. Ducks were up 4%, coots up 37%, but geese were down 9%. Ducks composed 90% of the total waterfowl population and of these 70% were mallards. Again this year more than half the mallards were still north of the Ohio River, when the counts were made, evidently reflecting the availability of sufficient food to meet their needs. Total mallard numbers this year were almost identical to those of last year.

Blue and snow geese decreased in the Mississippi flyway; however, Canada geese increased by 7%. Most of this increase was found in the Mississippi Valley flock which winters in Southern Illinois, portions of Kentucky and Tennessee.

Booklet Offers Hints on Selling Wood Products

A new 8 page illustrated booklet, giving pointers and general information on marketing forest products in Minnesota, has been printed for state-wide distribution to Tree Farmers and woodlot owners.

According to John V. Hoene, Executive Secretary, Timber Producers Association, Duluth, this booklet is designed to give private owners of forest land basic information regarding Minnesota's trees, their uses and specifications. In addition, the booklet is designed primarily for those who have not been actively engaged in producing forest products and for Tree Farmers who are beginning to improve their lands to the point where they will have marketable products.

For more than 30 years, the South African Red Cross has cooperated with its nation's mining industry in training miners to give emergency help to injured workmates. In the last complete fiscal year, more than 53,000 non-European workers attended the special practical first aid course.

More than 4 tons of bituminous coal (in the form of coke) are used to make the steel components of a modern, 6-room house.

YOUR SCHOOLS AS WE SEE THEM

The Knox Elementary School
By Miss Olga Bloomaness

"Elementary education" says Dr. Gertrude Hildreth, assistant professor of education, at Brooklyn College, New York, "should be a broad highway along which children travel toward citizenship." Once a traveler asked a stranger what line he carried. He promptly replied, "My job is directing the energies of America's greatest resource, the children." He was a school teacher. The world's children with their potentialities are our greatest national asset because on them depend the development of our world. The elementary school is the stepping stone to the high school as the high school is the stepping stone to college. We are all responsible for the development of our nation's great resource, the children.

There are many goals in the training of these children on the pathway to citizenship. Among them are personal growth, physical well being, social responsibility, speaking and writing effectively, training in skills and habits of science, art and music, a sense of good moral conduct and skills and knowledges for earing a living. How does the Knox Elementary School with four hundred eighty-seven pupils and fifteen teachers fit into this educational picture. The Knox School with its fourteen brightly decorated classrooms, library, gymnasium, lunch room and auditorium equipped with modern adjustable furniture, good lighting, bulletin boards, tables, book shelves, pictures, record players and projectors is an excellent place for a good school life. A school must have curious, alert and eager children as well as skilled an competent teachers. Teachers must have faith in children and a respect and love for them if the school environment is to have value. Good living in the elementary school is a condition characterized by teachers and children living together in a satisfying atmosphere where growth and development can take place.

The whole child goes to school meaning that a child is very complex with many sides or facts including physical, social, emotional, spiritual and mental attributes. He learns as a single organism but is affected by his intelligence, his emotional state, his social acceptance as well as his moral standards. It is upon all of these that we plan our curriculum. Children are alike in that they need to eat, sleep, breathe, grow, have ambitions, need appreciation, recognition, love and security. They differ not only in size and appearance but in habits, outlooks, talents, personalities, capabilities and potentialities. It is these differences that make teaching so complicated. In modern education these differences are recognized and the training program is adapted to them. Children of a certain age are not the same in aptitude and accomplishment and can not all achieve the same standards and learn equally well from the same textbook. They vary in interest and ability and have independent drives and response patterns. Therefore a teacher must learn to know each child's needs by testing and observation.

What are some of these needs? The need to develop skills in the tools of learning, to learn the fundamentals of health, to be creative, to learn a system of values in their daily behavior, to learn to live with a group, and to acquire some concepts, within their abilities of understanding, [illegible] tal living.

Each teacher at the Knox has a home room so a child has the same teacher for all subjects all year. A daily program in the elementary school incudes a planning period, language arts involving reading, language, writing and spelling, numbers or arithmetic, science and health, social studies (geography, history, citizenship), physical education, music and art. Time must also be found for evaluation and appraisal of the day's work. In an integrated program most of these learnings take place in the experience units. These units are developed around a central theme, such as the farm, the circus, trains, the story of wool, transportation or conserving our plant life.

In the elementary school children range in age from 5 to 12 years and are placed in grades kindergarten to six. Of all the subjects taught in these grades, reading is the key subject for upon it depends the success of other subjects. "Reading, or getting meaning from the printed page is a gradual and sequential development that helps the child meet successfully more mature and increasingly difficult and varied material" says Mr. Paul Witty, an authority on reading. We have watched little children and know that they walk and talk when they are ready. They are sequential processes—step by step, level by level. So it is with reading. Many children come to school ready to read. Some are not ready. Reasons for this may be immaturity, poor vision or hearing, speech defects, emotional upsets, lack of a good speaking vocabulary or a meager home background. To help these children, the teacher plans a reading readiness program. Once a child is introduced to reading he progresses at his own rate through the various levels. We have many fine reading texts at the Knox in our graded reading material, among our supplementary readers, and among our library books. As they grown in reading processes they learn that reading is more than recreational and learn to handle materials from science books, social studies books, dictionaries, and encyclopedias. As they grow in ability more independence and worthwhile interest are established. Reading becomes more and more a thinking process which is an important goal in education.

Other desirable experiences in the language arts come through speaking, writing and listening. Here they learn to express themselves clearly, to participate in group discussions, to appreciate beauty in story and poetry and learn the skills needed in speaking and writing activities. A visit to each room on a given day one might find a first grade dramatizing a story, a second grade enjoying a story or rhyme, a third grade writing an invitation or a letter, a fourth grade giving a book report, a fifth grade learning the use of the comma, and a sixth grade might be doing some creative writing or planning articles for a news paper. All these activities require skills and understandings that we recognize as vital tools needed for communication. We approach spelling with a practical view. It must be functional. The major aim of spelling is to enable children to write what they want and need to write. Spelling is difficult because of so many troublesome inconsistencies and unphonetic forms. Many spelling problems are caused by writing difficulties for spelling and writing go hand in hand. As a child gains muscular control there will be improvement in legibility, neatness and a recognition of good writing. Since this is a listening age when children are bombarded with sounds from conversations, discussion, reports, radios, movies, and television, to name a few, they must learn to discriminate about them—to accept or discard. The school program tries to help them in this. These judgments are but a beginning but are extremely important in this modern age.

Arithmetic is also a very definite subject in the elementary school with its various facts and processes that demand systematic arrangement for each grade. Simple facts must come before the complex, the concrete before the abstract. Sequence is very important in arithmetic. Addition must be learned before multiplication, simple counting and recognition of the numbers in kindergarten and first grade before the measurement concepts in grade six. Many school experiences help in arithmetic learning such as, counting milk bottles, playing store, reading a thermometer and finding percentage gains in height and weight. Arithmetic is the "art of computing with figures" but in a broader sense it is the ability to deal with the quantitative aspects of daily life.

These are just a few of the subjects in various areas of learning that are taught at the Knox School. There is much yet to be said about the social studies program, the guidance program, the recreational program, the health and cultural interests, the room clubs and the student council program. It would take more space than is allotted here. Suffice it to say that all of these are an integrated part of our curriculum and all are there to help our children along the highway of learning.

Airline Purchase by North Central Approved by Court

Contract to Buy Lake Central Airlines Upheld by U. S. Appeals Court

The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago today announced its decision upholding North Central Airlines' contract for the purchase of Lake Central Airlines (LCA).

This reverses the Sept. 20 finding of the U. S. District Court at Indianapolis, Ind., in which the court declared that North Central had breached its contract made in 1952 for the purchase of 98 per cent of the LCA stock.

The purchase now awaits approval by the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB). The CAB, which must approve airline mergers, had deferred its decision pending outcome of the appeal. Following public hearing and other Board proceedings, CAB Examiner Paul N. Pfeiffer last July recommended approval of the purchase.

The systems of Lake Central and North Central demonstrated that it could provide nearly 50 per cent more flight service to the cities on the LCA routes and at the same time save the taxpayers over $100,000 annually in airmail subsidy. North Central officials assert the employees of both airlines would benefit by working for a larger, financially stronger organization.

THE TREND CONTINUES

Figures released by State Department of Health officials last week show an estimated population loss of 4,132 for nine northwestern Minnesota counties since 1950. Two counties showed a gain, due probably to city growth. In the eleven counties the loss in rural population probably was more than 5,000.

In these eleven counties there probably has been increased production over this period of years. We now have fewer but larger farms, the continuation of a trend that has been general for some time. The significant thing about these figures is that they indicate the trend is not losing momentum.

It is a trend that can be looked upon as good and bad. It probably brings with it a little of each.

To the extent that this trend represents an increase in the size of the family farm it certainly is not disturbing. All will agree that a family sized farm, operated without hired help, is and should be a larger unit now than it was thirty years ago.

To the extent that the trend represents an increase in the large corporation-type operations it is something to be concerned about.

Ours, fortunately, is still a community of family-sized farms.

IMPROVED RELATIONSHIP

The only remaining obstacle to restoring the status quo in the Middle East apparently is the Suez canal and its operation. This problem probably is not any more difficult now than it was before the shooting started.

The circumstances are a little more favorable perhaps. Middle East countries, now know that world commerce can be maintained without the canal and that Europe is not dependent upon them for oil. They should now realize that they are just as much, if not more, dependent on the rest of the world as the rest of the world is dependent on them.

The realization that the world can get along without us is a little humiliating but the discovery of this fact does tend to make better citizens of us.

Possibly the little flare-up, that could have been so disastrous, will prove to have been a good thing. As a result of the eruption several issues have been clarified, if not resolved. In some ways the relationship between the Arab nations and the free world has been improved by the peaceful settlement of the hot war that was extinguished before it caused serious damage.

Our guess is that there is less prejudice against our country in that area than there was before.

U. N. SESSION NEARS END

The United Nations is nearing the end of its eleventh session. In some respects this has been the most trying session of the organization that was formed in 1945.

Looking back over the performance record of this young organization a critical observer [illegible] fumbling during this trial-and-error period. But considering the nature of the problems, the character of the membership and the circumstances under which it has operated, we are satisfied that it has served a good purpose.

Much of the effectiveness of the United Nations has been curbed by the abuse of the veto power in the Security Council. As this branch of the organization has been found incapable of meeting its responsibilities, however, the General Assembly has grown in stature, and now has emerged as a great clearing house for international differences. It has demonstrated that to some extent it has the power to act when the Security Council ceases to function because of the veto power.

Regardless of all its shortcomings, as the St. Paul Pioneer-Press expresses it:

> " . . . . no one can deny that the United Nations has proved an excellent sounding board for international issues, that it can create an emergency police force that offers increasing possibilities, or that it is constantly gaining experience and prestige as an international arbiter and expression of world law."

FORTY DAYS OF CHARITY
(The New Prague Times)

In a feature entitled, "Let's give up hate for Lent," Phyllis McGinley writes in the March 3 American Weekly: "Hate is the solace of the fanatic, the crutch of the lame-spirited, the ladder upon which small-minded men perch and think themselves tall. And who of us is quite free of its taint . . . Forty days of uprooting hate and replanting the heart's soil with charity — what a job that would prove for us poor, weak, opinionated (but on the whole quite decent) members of the human race. But what a sowing it could be — and if the habit remained, what a harvest!"

America has a mission to prove to a troubled hate-infested world that we may differ in opinion politics, religious belief, national origin, color of skin or station in life yet live together in mutual respect and understanding as fellow citizens in a free republic.

ALL CONGRESSMEN PLEASE COPY
(Wall Street Journal)

We do not mean to infer that there are not other Senators and Representatives who feel about spending just the way Senator Frank Lausche of Ohio feels.

It's just that it isn't often you hear Congressmen making the same distinction about essential and non-essential spending that the Ohioan makes. Maybe we've got that backward, on second thought. Maybe what we mean is that Senator Lausche doesn't make the fine distinctions so many others do.

The distinction is generally found in the geographical location of the contemplated spending; if it happens to be a project in the Congressman's district or state, it's likely to be essential as all get-out. If it is elsewhere, it's not nearly so essential.

Anyway, here's the story: A $5 million Federal appropriation has been proposed for the Pan American Games which are to be held in 1959. Mr. Lausche is against this expenditure; he considers it completely non-essential. The Mayor of Cleveland, Ohio, is furious, because the games are scheduled for Cleveland, the biggest city in Senator Lausche's home state. Mayor Celebrezze pointed all this out to the Senator.

And the answer he got from Senator Lausche was this: "The Federal budget must be cut. I cannot support for Ohio something which I would oppose for another state."

Senator Lausche is a new Senator, and this [illegible] We certainly don't expect him to be the broom that sweeps out right away all the Congressional notions about local Federal spending. But if more Congressmen would forthrightly refuse to support pork barrel spending that benefits only the people in their states, the trim in Federal spending could be considerable.

And the chances are that the people in their states would end up having more money to spend the way they want.

REPORT from the GOVERNOR

Orville L. Freeman

At this mid-point in the session of the Minnesota Legislature a substantial number of major bills have been introduced. Many have been considered by committees and sub-committees, and others await their turn. Some have been enacted into law.

Most of the programs that I have recommended have been incorporated into bills that are now under consideration. I am eager to do all I can to facilitate favorable action on these programs, because I believe they represent opportunities for real progress in Minnesota government. Therefore I intend to explain several of them in these columns.

Among the highlights of the recommendations I have made are:

(1) a more equitable and adequate tax structure, representing a remarkable achievement of the bi-partisan tax committee that I appointed to study this complicated problem;

(2) programs to advance education on all levels, including elementary and secondary schools, higher education, and education of physically and mentally handicapped children and exceptional children;

(3) adequate welfare services with special emphasis on our increasing numbers of aging citizens;

(4) effective measures in the broad field of conservation, with a new and necessary attention to our water resources;

(5) programs to raise the standards for labor, to provide better opportunities for agriculture, and for greater business expansion;

(6) renewed attack on the problems of highway safety; and

(7) measures to secure improved government organization and efficiency.

I have sent special messages all of these fields.

The Task Ahead

The introduction of bills is only the beginning in the enactment of a program. It is a good beginning when such bills have been prepared as a result of careful study. I believe that which went into the preparation of the program now before our legislature.

Information Essential

It is important that the public know as much as possible about this program. For example, acquaintance with the facts about the need for nursing homes for our aging is essential to wise action on this proposal. Information about the increasing numbers of our young people who seek higher education is important in our plans for aid to junior colleges.

Benefits for Farmers

It is critically important for our farmers to realize the benefits they would gain from the recommended tax program. Some idea of the importance of these benefits is the fact that, had this program been in effect in 1955 it would have meant a direct dollar saving to Minnesota farmers amounting to more than the nearly $7 million dollars of direct U. S. Government payments to Minnesota farmers during that year.

In subsequent columns I shall try to present some of the major features of the programs now being considered in our Legislature.

THE MINNESOTA STORY
Prepared by the

LAW IN McLEOD

The Minnesota frontier must have been comparatively peaceful and law abiding despite the influx of many strangers some of very rough exteriors and shrewd purposes.

It is probably a fact that most of the communities built churches and school houses before they made jails.

That was the condition in many counties which sent their law violators to the Minnesota state prison at Stillwater. When the counties did not pay the keep of their culprits the prisoners were released.

McLeod county is also a case in point. Four years after the county was founded there was still no jail. In the Christmas season of 1859 the sheriff picked up one William Coombs for breaking into a store. A justice of the peace sentenced him to jail. Adjoining counties refused to take the prisoner unless his board was paid in advance. The sheriff had no funds. So the guilty man was taken to Glencoe and locked up in the rear of Dean's store.

The prisoner liked it there. His [illegible] He was being well fed by the sheriff at the expense of that officer of law. The sheriff implored him to leave. He said that if he could break in, he also could break out. Finally, the door was left open and the guilty burglar shooed out.

When the county approved the plat of the village of Hutchinson, it was decreed that no lot should be used for any building occupied by a saloon, bowling alley or billiard room.

THE PRAIRIES

The early people of Minnesota never ceased to marvel at the great prairies which marked the western part of the state. Many of them came from timbered lands and to these the great rolling prairies of the west were a never ending source of speculation and wonderment.

For years there was discussion among people and scientists concerning the cause of the great prairies. The question of their creation as been debated and discussed even to this day.

One of the reasons for the prairies was attributed to their soil. Experts in agriculture pointed out the fact that the prairie [illegible] little gravel or stones. It was contended that grass would grow on the fine soil while timber took to the land of gravel and stones.

Perhaps the outstanding cause of the creation of the prairies was due to rainfall, influenced by great geographical factors. Certainly it is true that rainfall in the prairie areas has always varied. This, in the minds of many, accounted for the failures of trees to mature.

The factor of the Indian and the buffalo was long considered. The early Indians could kill more bison on the prairies than they could kill other animals in te woods. Consequently, the forests were fired to destroy trees and bring grass. While this element may have added to the parries it has been discounted as an important cause for them.

HARD ON THE PIONEER

The pioneer farmer of Minnesota has troubles beyond understanding. He had to come from a distant land. A home, first little but a crude shelter of sod or logs, had to be put together. Wild lands, with tough grass or big stumps, had to be subdued.

When farming become better established other troubles came. In the 1870's the grasshopper ate everything that was green in many areas.

Then came disease that attacked everything that the farmer raised.

The cabbage that would make kraut for the German family would rot. So also would the apples grown after so much hope and effort. Smut would attack the grains, especially oats, rye, and barley. The farmer who would grow corn might lose his crop to the elements and disease.

Minnesota suffered especially large losses on three important commodities. The Irish were starved out of their native land by potato blights and diseases. The Irish pioneer in Minnesota often lost his crop to the same afflictions which had decimated his native land.

Another easy victim of disease was flax. The virgin lands were especially favorable to this grain. But a wilt soon attacked the flax and after two or three years the land that would bring a thriving crop would be desolate.

With the growth of wheat production the rust came. In 1888 the loss of wheat by rust was considered greater than all the loss ever inflicted by the grasshopper scourge.

FISH NAME A COUNTY

Kandiyohi county, as a presently constituted, is made up of two older counties. One was the original Kandiyohi, named by the legislature. The other part was created as the county of Monongalia.

This northern half of the persent county was established and named for the home county of the group of Virginians who made the first settlement on Green lake, known a hundred years ago as Carnelian lake. The county was organized in 1858 with New London as the county seat.

The original Kandiyohi county was organized in the same year. There were high hopes that the capital of the state would be located at the townsite of Kandiyohi, located on the shores of Kasota and Minnetaga lakes. But the capital stayed where it was placed in territorial days. In 1870 after the St. Paul & Pacific had been built along the dividing line of the two counties, there was a consolidation of these two ambitious subdivisions of government.

Kandiyohi is one of Minnesota's counties which bears an Indian name, in this case from the Sioux. Kandi was the term for the buffalo fish, or red horse. Yohi means to come to or arrive at. The combined term meant that the streams of the area spear fish in he spring. This name was first given to the world on Nicollet's map of the area drawn during his explorations in 1838 through 1841. A modern translation "place to go fishing" might have well qualified Kandiyohi as the name of the state.

Western end of Minnesota's Mesabi Iron Range. Most remaining iron ore deposits in this area are low grade.

These Minnesota towns are kept on the map by low grade iron ores!

Between Grand Rapids and Hibbing, on Minnesota's Mesabi Range, are nine communities supported by the mining of low grade iron ores. These ores must all be beneficiated—treated to upgrade and improve them—before they can be shipped. New methods make it possible to use ores today that were worthless just a few years ago. And if we could not beneficiate these low grade ores, there would be little, if any, mining activity in this area at the present time.

Minnesota's future in iron ore mining depends on still further development of still better methods of upgrading our low grade ores. To do this, we must attract the investment of many millions of dollars for research and new plants. Every Minnesotan has a stake in encouraging this investment climate, and should support it.

RESEARCH AND INVESTMENT CAN KEEP MINNESOTA'S IRON ORE FUTURE BRIGHT!

Strandquist . . .

Vanity or Snuff!

While Emil Kiegstad was plowing on his farm east of town last fall he found a small box of metal about 2x3 inches. The box has two compartments which can be opened from either side. One compartment had a mirror. Some have called it a (massing dozer) Swedish war snuff box, but what do they want a mirror in a snuff box for unless it is to see the juice dripping off their chin?

Inside were three folded slips of paper which fell apart where they were creased. They were receipts of registered letters from the year 1904. Fifty-three years ago! One dated Nov. [illegible], 1904 was sent by Erick Carlson of Strandquist addressed to J. Johnson at Brandon, S. D. signed by "J. Strandquist p.m. by A. J. Strandquist."

The second one dated Oct. (blank) 1904 sent by Erick Carlson to an address in Sweden.

The date on the 3rd slip had blanked out but was sent by the same party to Jonas P. Frodell at Kinistino, Sask. Canada and signed by J. Strandquist P. M.

Evidently some one lost the "Massing dozer" while hunting.

Announce Program of Guard Enlistments

New National Guard enlistment programs recently established by Department of the Army were announced today by Minnesota's Adjutant General, Major General J. E. Nelson. These programs, all of which require a period of active duty training at a Regular Army or Air Force training camp, are the result of a compromise between the House Armed Services Committee and Department of the Army.

Effective April 1, all men without prior service who join National Guard units will be required to begin active duty for training of 11 weeks or more within 120 days after enlistment. Exception is made in the case of high-school students, who may obtain a deferment of training up to one year to permit them to complete their high-school course.

Men joining between the ages of 17 and 18½ will be offered to alternative plans. They may volunteer for 11 weeks of active duty training, after which they will return to serve the balance of their period of obligated service in a National Guard unit. Men selecting this option will not complete their period of obligated service until reaching age 28.

The second alternative available to men in the 17 to 18½ age bracket is to volunteer for 6 months of active duty for training. Men who select this option will be required to serve in the National Guard for only 3 years following completion of their active duty training. Thereafter they are eligible for assignment to Standby Reserve until they have completed a total of 8 years of service.

Men between 18½ and 26 who join the Guard must agree to a 6-year program, of which 6 months' active duty for training. They do not, however, incur any military obligation beyond the 3-year term of their enlistment.

Those who have had active duty in any of the Armed Forces can continue to join National Guard units without signing up for any extended active duty.

Enrollment in the 11 weeks' training program is expected to be very small, General Nelson said. The advantages to young men of taking the 6 months' program are so great that he believes most of them in the 17-18½ bracket will choose the longer period of active duty in order to reduce their over-all obligation.

Welfare Week in State Proclaimed for March 17-22

Governor Freeman Calls Attention to Work of Public, Private Groups

Governor Orville Freeman today declared the week of March 17-22, as "Minnesota Welfare Week." Established in 1950 as an annual statewide observance, "Welfare Week" will again call attention to the services of both governmental and privately sponsored activity designed to meet social welfare needs of Minnesota citizens.

In setting aside the period for this statewide observance, Governor Freeman urged "all citizens of Minnesota to give particular attention to the efforts of our welfare agencies in meeting vital human needs." He pointed out that this task "must be carried out through the efforts of professionally trained and skilled personnel together with local officials and volunteers who are charged with welfare responsibility in their respective communities."

Don L. Olson, chairman of the Pennington county welfare board stated that the commissioners are particularly happy that such an observance is to take place. In addition to the service given by our own welfare board staff," he continued, "dedicated and skilled social workers from private church and non-sectarian agencies are helping to deal with problems of people of Pennington county."

Welfare week will run concurrently with the 64th annual meeting of the Minnesota welfare conference.

Equipment for Washington School Bought

School Board Acts Monday Night on Bids Totaling $7,222.80

The Thief River Falls board of education, at its March session Monday evening accepted bids amounting to $7,222.80 for desks and kindergarten furniture for the new Washington grade school building now under construction. Six firms bid on the equipment.

In other business, the board voted to apply to the state department of education for a one-year continuance of the teacher training department at Lincoln high school on condition that the historical room in the court house, now being used for a classroom, will be available next year.

The board deferred further consideration on continuing the class for mentally retarded children until after the legislature has taken action on school aids for the coming year.

In the equipment purchase, the Farnham Stationery & Supply Co. of Minneapolis was given contracts to supply 120 pupils' desks for Grades 4, 5 and 6 on its bid of $2,818.20; and also to furnish 12 teachers' desks and chairs at a cost of $1,038.

Also accepted was the bid of the Northern School Supply Co. of Fargo, N. D., to supply 120 pupils' desks for grades 1, 2 and 4 at a price of $2,885.30. The Hagenstein, Burmeister Co. of Minneapolis was awarded the contract to supply kindergarten furniture on its bid of $476.10.

Work Advancing Steadily on New TRF Grade School

[illegible]

The present outlook is that work on construction of the new Washington grade school will be about completed by May 1, Francis Capistrant, superintendent in charge of the project, announced this week.

The exterior is now finished, he said, and the roofing contractors have completed their work, while the brick layers Wednesday finished their work on the inside.

The plumbers have started installing the fixtures. Painters are painting the millwork and walls, laying of acoustic tile on the ceilings started Wednesday, and the carpenters are engaged in hanging the doors and will soon start installing the cabinet work.

The laying of the asphalt tile flooring and of the hardwood floor in the gymnasium will get under way in about two weeks.

Capistrant stated that most of the steelwork on the Lincoln high school-area vocational school addition has been set up, and that the laying of brick will start there in about ten days.

District Vocal Clinic Held Today

Paul J. Christiansen of Moorhead Was in Charge

A vocal clinic for high school students from District 31 was held today in the Lincoln high school Auditorium. All schools from the district were represented by varying numbers of mixed quartets depending upon the size of the choir in that school. Approximately 130 students took part in the annual event.

Paul J. Christiansen, director of the Concordia concert choir, Moorhead, Minnesota, conducted the clinic. The purpose was to encourage better vocal production, to obtain finer technique and to identify the problems involved in ensemble singing.

The students involved in the clinic today will make up the massed chorus at the district music festival and contest to be held at Crookston, April 5 and 6. Seven selections have been chosen for the festival and these were rehearsed today.

Marshall Co. to Vote on Soil Conservation District Wednesday

On Wednesday, March 20 farmers in Marshall county go to the polls to decide if the remaining unorganized 36 townships of Marshall county are to become organized into a soil conservation district. If they vote no, all proceedings will be dropped. If they vote yes in favor, as the previous public hearings indicated, then the wheels of progress will be in motion and a district will formally be on its way.

Up until now, a great amount of planning and effort has been spent by many people to get the proceedings as far as they have in order that the farmers will have a chance to vote for what they think is best, not only for themselves but for future generations.

As with most legal proceedings, the processes are slow so that no public issue may be "railroaded" in. In the case of a soil conservation district, this is also true. These proceedings are governed by law and are under the supervision of the state soil conservation committee.

First of all, a steering committee of interested people is organized. Second, educational meetings are held to tell the people the facts on a district. Thirdly, public hearing dates are arranged and then must be legally published in the paper for two weeks before the hearing can be held. Fourth, the hearing is held. If the hearing is satisfactory, a referendum date must be picked and announced with polling places and precincts arranged before hand as they must also be published ahead of time. If the vote or referendum is satisfactory, a final vote must be taken to vote for the farmer representatives from three of the 5 areas represented in the district.

The vote coming up on March 20 is on whether or not to have a district. This is by far the most important issue of all. It is the responsibility of every farmer, landowner, lessee, renter, tenant or otherwise to vote, said Fred Heck of the soil conservation staff.

The following voting places in Eastern Marshall county will be open from 10:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. for the vote.

House Passes Withholding Tax Proposal

Bill Is Approved Wednesday Evening by Vote of 69-56

The administration backed income tax withholding bill was passed Wednesday night by the Minnesota House after three hours of warm debate.

The vote was 69-56.

The measure is known as the pay-as-you-go plan and is patterned after the federal system of withholding income taxes. It is one of the principal planks in Gov. Freeman's revenue program.

Rep. D. D. Wozniak of St. Paul chief author, said installation of the withholding system would bring the state additional revenue of 5 million dollars a year, while Rep. B. J. Bergeson of Twin Valley, a liberal, said he thought it would bring even more than that, based on experience of other states that have instituted the plan.

A number of conservative lawmakers voiced vigorous opposition, and one described the bill as "a sales tax on income — pure and simple," while another labeled it a "ridiculous" plan.

In a speech in Moorhead, Gov. Freeman repeated his criticism of "extremists" who oppose his program and the Senate finance committee received a report that the governor's program could be financed without the new tax program.

The committee's staff report showed that present tax sources, plus reenactment of the temporary taxes imposed two years ago could carry the budget.

This would not provide for cancelling personal property taxes, as proposed by the governor.

The Senate passed a bill for establishment of a 120-bed hospital in the Twin Cities area for emotionally disturbed and psychotic children. Another bill to provide the necessary three million dollar appropriation is awaiting action.

The Senate soldier's welfare committee approved a bill for a constitutional amendment, to be voted on at the 1958 general election, to authorize payment of a Korean bonus. It was indicated this bill will be pushed if another, calling for payment now, is not enacted.

Grygla Man Hurt in Head-on Crash Near Goodridge

A Grygla man suffered serious chest injuries and four passengers in the car he was driving escaped with lesser injuries when they were involved in a head-on collision with another Grygla resident on highway 219 north of Goodridge Sunday evening.

Kenneth T. Hanson suffered a punctured right lung and facial lacerations when a car driven north by Mrs. Tilda Erickson swerved into the wrong lane when she applied the brakes on icy surface in an attempt to miss a parked car.

According to the highway patrol Mrs. Erickson applied the brakes when she saw a car owned by Benny Groven parked partly on the pavement ahead of her and lost control of her car on the slippery pavement. It swerved into the opposite lane in the path of the southbound Hanson car and the collision resulted.

Both Marvin Hanson and Ronald Anderson suffered minor injuries for which were treated in Thief River Falls. Ernest Hanson and George O'Brien, also passengers in the car with Kenneth Hanson, were uninjured, as was Mrs. Erickson. Kenneth Hanson is hospitalized at Northwestern hospital here, where his condition Wednesday was described as "good" by hospital authorities.

The Groven car was disabled and Groven had parked it without lights while he walked back into Goodridge to seek help, he told the patrol. He was charged with improper parking and brought into court Monday. Both cars involved in the collision were almost completely demolished.

Big Crew Installing Dial Switching Gear in New Phone Building

A Western Electric company crew has started installing dial switching equipment in the nearly-completed Thief River Falls telephone building, A. K. Bacon, Northwestern Bell Telephone company manager, said today.

This is the latest step in the $800,000 program that will bring dial service and the new two-letter five-figure numbering plan to Thief River Falls early this fall.

Bacon said a seven-man crew started installing the new equipment February 28. As of March 12th, the crew had grown to 27 men and it is anticipated the peak crew will number approximately 40 men.

The Western Electric installation forces are headed by the supervisor, Merle Haugen, of Minneapolis; Don Benkufski, of Moorhead; Andy Horvath and Tom Brass of Minneapolis; and Charlie Fellman of Crookston.

The company is still in the process of contacting customers to install dials on their telephone instruments. It will be necessary for all Thief River Falls customers to have the type of dial that has both letters and numerals rather than numerals only. Approximately 1330 of 3100 telephones in the exchange have been readied for dial service.

Under the new numbering plan, the central office here will be designated MUrdock 1, and customer's new numbers will consist of MU 1 plus four other figures. These new numbers will be listed in a directory to be

Local PTA Council Considers School Vaccination Plan

School Nurse Reports That Only 200 Pupils Have Been Immunized

The school immunization program was reviewed by the PTA council at a meeting Monday with Mrs. Margaret Race, school nurse, and Dr. Dan Greene, representing local physicians. Both present to give their views.

It was brought out by Mrs. Race that the new system of conducting the vaccination program on a voluntary basis was not working out well, only slightly more than two hundred pupils having completed their vaccinations this year.

Dr. Greene stated that the change had been instituted as a means of keeping more complete clinical records and that when a student took his shots at the clinic, a more accurate medical record was kept.

Previously, a day had been set aside at school and mass inoculations were made. According to Dr. Greene, in many instances a child was given booster shots when he hadn't had preliminary shots to provide proper disease immunity.

The main drawback of the new system, it was stated, was that parents are neglecting to see that their children receive the necessary shots. Several suggestions were heard from PTA council members and a committee was set up to work out a more organized vaccination program. Dr. Greene indicated that parents should make haste to assure that their children are vaccinated, because diptheria is known to be in the area at this time.

Members of this committee are Mrs. Race, Dr. Greene, health authorities; F. Miles Nelson and Kermit Eastman, school representatives; and Mrs. Kendall Gustafson, Lloyd Spray and Ormond Johnson, representing the parents.

In other action by the council, it was voted to extend an invitation for the fall district PTA conference to be held late next summer.

Council Gives More Study to Minnkota Pact

Matter of Getting Power Needed in Fall Discussed Tuesday

At an adjourned session Tuesday evening, members of the city council further discussed details of the proposed contract with Minnkota Power Cooperative of Grand Forks to supply additional electric power to Thief River Falls, which will be needed by next fall when the local demand for power is expected to exceed the capacity of the municipal plant.

The council also adopted a resolution requesting the U. S. Bureau of Reclamation to supply the city with secondary power, starting next spring and continuing until such time as firm power becomes available from the Missouri Valley Authority.

City Engineer Douglas Stewart reported that after studying contracts between other area cities and the Otter Tail Power Co., he considered the Minnkota offer as reasonable.

The co-op proposes to construct a substation here at a cost of approximately $150,000 with the city contributing toward its cost with a monthly payment of $1,500. Minnkota will supply current at a charge of one cent per kilowatt in such quantities as are needed to supplement the output of the local plant, starting November 1 of this year.

Under the proposed arrangement, the city would be required to spend an additional $20,000 to $30,000 in connection with the new arrangement, and Stewart was instructed to prepare plans and specifications for the necessary electrical work, as well as for the heating equipment that will be installed.

In anticipation of the change over to the dial telephone system here next fall, when the operators no longer will notify volunteer firemen of fire calls, the council approved a contract with the local exchange for a private number to be allotted which firemen can call to learn the location of a fire.

In a letter to the council, Mrs. Cora Lein, owner of property on Fourth st. asked that two-hour parking restrictions be set up there to end the practice of all-day parking of cars and trucks. Members of the council indicated they favored two-hour parking on Fourth st. between Main and Horace ave., but deferred adoption of the necessary resolution until its regular March session next Tuesday.

Times Adds Cut-making Equipment

Times' Scan-A-Graver Increases Use of Pictures

Robert Mattson sets the Times' Scan-A-Graver Cadet to engrave a photograph as V. M. Draper, left, and Clarence Mattson look on to see if Robert is getting the right kind of impression on the plastic sheet. The machine was put into use just this week and makes possible the use of more pictures that are right up to date with the news. The above engraving was made with the Scan-A-Graver, as were practically all illustrations used in this edition.

A great stride forward was made in the process of publishing the Times this week as a new electronic photoengraving machine was installed in the shop of this newspaper.

This new machine, called a Scan-A-Graver does in a few minutes what formerly required at least 36 hours — that is, pictures taken here in Thief River Falls can be engraved and run in the Times the same day they were taken if such speed is necessary. Formerly, pictures had to be sent to Fargo for engraving, which was a time consuming process and made use of timely photographs very difficult.

Scan-A-Gravers are not bought — they're leased from the Fairchild Camera and Instrument Co. of Long Island, N. Y. The Fairchild firm is the same which makes many types of aerial cameras and developed the Scan-A-Graver into a practical machine after World War II. It comes in two models, the regular model and the smaller Cadet. The latter is the type used by the Times.

The CADET Scan-A-Graver looks more like a piece of office equipment than the typical newspaper machine.

About four feet long and two feet deep it rests on top of a bench under which are the elec-

Pennington County ASC Lists Some 1957 Practices under ACP

The following are some of the ACP practices that are available to Pennington county producers under the 1957 agricultural conservation program it was announced by P. W. Culkins, office manager. Additions to these practices will be presented later.

A-2. Initial establishment of permanent vegetative cover for soil protection or as a needed land-use adjustment. This practice is applicable only to land which should be established or re-established in permanent vegetative cover for protection against wind or water erosion, and to cropland which, as a part of a needed land-use adjustment, is being shifted to permanent protective vegetative cover other than as a part of a regular crop rotation. This practice is not applicable to land occupied by a merchantable stand of timber or pulpwood, or to land which, if cleared, would be suitable for continued production of cultivated crops.

Federal cost-sharing for commercial fertilizers is authorized.

(a) Initial establishment — A suitable seedbed must be established by plowing, disking, or spring toothing and performing such other operations as are necessary in the area for the establishment of a satisfactory seedbed. The area seeded must be protected from continuous grazing until a stand is established. Periodic grazing to hold down the companion crop is permissible.

Eligible legumes are: Alfalfa, birdsfoot trefoil, sweet clover, red clover, alsike clover.

Eligible grasses are: Bromegrass, meadow fescue, timothy, meadow foxtail, and reed canary grass.

Seeding requirements—A minimum seeding per acre of: 8 pounds of wilt-resistant and adapted variety of alfalfa (when seeded alone), 6 pounds of reed canary grass on low wet land, 4 pounds of birdsfoot trefoil, 8 pounds of grasses, or 10 pounds of a mixture of legumes and grasses, containing at least 5 pounds of grasses.

Cost-share rates: Seedbed preparation, seed, and seeding — $3.00 per acre.

A-3. Establishment of additional acreages of vegetative cover in crop rotation to retard erosion and to improve soil structure, permeability, or water-holding capacity. This practice is applicable only to cropland which needs such cover to retard erosion or to improve soil structure, permeability, or water-holding capacity, and to types of cover which will protect the land until at least August 1, 1958. Federal cost-sharing will be limited to that acreage which the county committee determines represents a desirable increase over what would be the normal plantings of eligible crops on the farm in 1957 under the normal crop rotation for the farm. In making this determination, consideration should be given to the need for this practice on cropland which the farmer intends to divert from the production of crops for which allotments are established for the farm for 1957.

A suitable seedbed must be established by plowing, disking, or spring toothing and performing such other operations as are necessary for the establishment of a satisfactory seedbed. The area seeded must be proctected from continuous grazing until a stand is established. Periodic grazing to hold down the companion crop is permissable.

Eligible legumes are Biennial sweet clover, alfalfa, red clover, Ladino clover seeded in a mixture, and alsike clover.

Eligible grasses are: Bromegrass, timothy, and meadow fescue.

Seeding requirements: At least 6 pounds per acre of (1) sweet clover, red clover, or alfalfa, or (2) a mixture of any of the legumes, or (3) a mixture of legumes and grasses consisting of not less than 50 per cent legumes or (4) 4 pounds per acre of alsike alone.

Federal cost-sharing for commercial fertilizers is authorized.

Maximum Federal cost-share: Seedbed preparation, seed and seeding—$2.00 per acre.

D-3. Establishment of a vegetative cover for green manure and for protection from erosion. Federal cost-sharing will be limited to acreages of biennial or perennial legumes, or mixtures of such legumes, seeded during the 1957 program year. A good stand and growth must be obtained. Pasturing consistent with good management may be permitted, but none of the growth may be harvested for hay or seed. Volunteer stands will not qualify for cost-sharing. The green manure crop should be incorporated into the soil in the normal manner and time for the particular area.

Eligible legumes are: Alfalfa, sweet clover, red clover, alsike clover, and Ladino clover.

Seeding requirements: At least 6 pounds per acre, except that the seeding of alsike clover or Ladino clover alone will not be eligible for cost-sharing.

Maximum Federal cost-share: $0.65 per acre.

Dr. Axilrod's Lawyers Appeal to High Court

Attorneys for Dr. A. Arnold Axilrod have asked the United State supreme court to review state supreme court proceedings under which the conviction of the former Minneapolis dentist was upheld.

Sydney Goff, St. Paul attorney, Monday served George Scott, Hennepin county attorney, with a copy of the petition to the highest court.

Axilrod is serving a 5-to-20 year term in Stillwater prison after being convicted of the strangulation death of one of his patients, Mrs. Mary Moonen, in the spring of 1955.

The petition allegees that Axilrod was:

Deniel equal protection of the laws under the 14th amendment by "arbitrary denial" of his motion for an order permitting pre-trial dispositions.

Deprived of due process because of "erroneous" instructions of the district court.

Deprived of due process because of failure of the court to instruct the jury that the state had to prove all the elements of charges lesser than those of first degree murder under the indictment.

A district court jury found Axilrod guilty of first degree manslaughter. The case was appealed to the state supreme court and last Nov. 15 the lower court action was upheld. A petition for rehearing was denied by the court a month later.

PUBLIC OPINION

Editor, The Times:

As the panel discussion was cut short at the Farm Forum, I would like to express some views in your paper. As prices have been sliding downward each year and prices of machinery, gasoline freight rates, etc. have been going up, the margin of profit is getting so narrow that a farmer either has to produce more or quit and find a job on the Iron Range, in the Cities or elsewhere.

As I am a turkey farmer I know that low prices do not account for less turkeys, but it makes us raise more. This is also the case with grain unless there are strict controls, and these are made in favor of the big operators. My wheat allotment is 15 acres, I am not allowed to raise more even for turkey feed.

Having a surplus of food should be a blessing to a nation and a good line of defense. Just see what is being spent for war machines, etc. that become obsolete in a short time, then are sold as war surplus for a few cents on the dollar. If surpluses are the only reason for low prices, why not reduce them wherever possible, even if at a loss. Two years ago we were able to buy surplus wheat for feed, but someone put up the stop sign. The loss would be recovered in more buying power and added income taxes; getting less then 70 cents on the dollar as the parity prices are now make profits pretty slim. If we are to have lasting prosperity, farmers must have their fair share.

Editor the Times:

I agree wholeheartedly with Mr. Erlandsons letter in the Times. I would like to see the children learn more out of books. We do not need to send our children to school for exercises. Anyone knows a farm child has plenty of exercise, so why go to school to learn to skate and dance etc. I know all religions are not against dancing but my opinion is, they learn that soon enough, if they want to, and as one teacher threatens that if the children don't all go skating they have to stay one hour after school. What do they expect? A child to walk 12 miles home after 5 o'clock? They sure know the bus leaves at 4 o'clock.

Sincerely:
Mrs. J. E. Finn, Rt. 5, City.

Postmaster Asks Earlier Mailing

Don't Wait until End of Day, Businessmen Urged

Postmaster R. L. Dryden, said today that mailers of Thief River Falls can often speed delivery of their mail as much as a full day by depositing it earlier in the day.

Explaining that many local mailers, particularly businessmen, hold their daily mail until the end of the day and then deposit it in the post office or mail box, Dryden said these advantages would be realized, if these patrons would mail earlier and more often in the day:

1. The mail that is deposited earlier will frequently make earlier same day transportation connections, whereas, if it is deposited late in the day, it may have to wait until last dispatched at night before it goes out.

2. The chances of human error in handling the mail earlier in the day when the post office is is not deluged with work are reduced.

3. Deposits of mail earlier in the day will benefit the local post office and postal employes, enabling them to spread out their work over a longer period of time and helping to reduce jam-ups and emergencies that may delay local deliveries and outgoing mail in some instances.

"I urge all patrons, particularly larger mailers, to make deposits of mail earlier in the day—in the morning and early afternoon, for example," Postmaster Dryden said. "It will often mean important advantages for them and will help us greatly."

Shootin' the Breeze

BY Mack Draper

Great balls o' fire—the old saw about time and tide not waiting for anyone certainly is true in our case. This business of getting out two columns per week almost gets out of hand sometimes, the way time flies when we're going full blast.

Please excuse us for talking shop—but there's a new piece of equipment back in our shop that's going to make a big difference in The Times from now on.

We refer to the recently-installed Fairchild Scan-a-graver. This is a machine that engraves impressions on a plastic sheet on one cylinder. The impression is picked up from a picture, drawing, etc., on a cylinder on the opposite side of the machine by a device that's, more or less, a glorified electric eye, sensitive to various shades of black and white.

The impressions are made in the plastic sheet at the rate of 85 per inch as it revolves under a red-hot stylus that is vibrating at the rate quoted.

This is a fascinating machine to watch in operation and is going to make possible much more timely use of pictures we take here. Another avenue of use is wedding pictures — we haven't been using them often but now we can, provided they're sent to us immediately after the weddings. Or, better yet, a photo posed before the wedding takes place would enable us to publish the picture in the first paper that comes out after the ceremony.

Ever hear of a coydog or dogote? Those are two terms used in designating the offspring of dogs and coyotes that mate. There's an article in this week's Saturday Evening Post about these unusual animals and we might say it makes good reading.

Incidentally, the article is in agreement with Minnesota conservation officials in the contention that wolves (including the so-called brush wolf) do not harm deer herds but, rather, improve them through killing off the excess, etc.

There are those people, too, who say paying bounties on foxes killed is a waste of money. We won't state our opinion here, other than saying that our belief is that if nature is left along the proper balance between the creatures of the wilds will be taken care of. We're definitely against killing for the mere sake of it. B'rer Fox's life is as precious to him as ours is to us! Too few humans ever regard things in that light. We feel too, B'rer Fox is innocent until proved guilty of the many charges against him.

They say an American can always be recognized at a Spanish or Mexican bullfight. He's the guy rooting for the bull.

Then there's the bird we talked to the other day who said he didn't dare look at sporting goods displays, read the sporting magazines—the waiting for fishing season to open would just simply be too much to endure if he did those things! My goodness, man—half the fun is in the anticipation! SO LONG!

Scan-a-Graver for Making Cuts Is Added by Times

tronic components. The working parts consist of a driving mechanism, a cylinder where the plastic halftones are made, a control panel, and a cylinder where the photos are scanned by a photo-electric cell.

Under the plastic cylinder is a motor with a hot steel tool—a stylus—which burns out craters in the plastic. The size and depth of these craters, as decided by the photo-electric cell, determines the size of the dots which will carry the ink on the engraving, thus giving the various shades in the completed engraving.

Here's how it works: The operator places the photo around the right hand cylinder. Then he fits a special piece of plastic around the left hand engraving cylinder. Now he's ready to adjust the CADET to make the halftone automatically. To do this he turns two knobs until a meter indicates the correct setting for the halftone automatically. Once the machine is set, he can leave it to complete the halftone and turn itself off automatically.

The CADET makes halftones consisting of 7,225 "dots" per square inch. It will finish a one-column photo in eight minutes—or the maximum four-column size in 21 minutes.

The finest quality newspaper pictures are possible with the CADET because the 85-screen halftones contain nearly twice as many dots per square inch as in a 65-screen engraving. The more dots per square inch, the better the detail and tonal quality of the reproduction from good photographs.

Practically all the illustrations in today's Times were made on the Scan-A-Graver.

The new machine will allow the Times wide latitude in the choice of pictures to be used. An accident can happen on the morning of publication—and pictures of it can be processed in time to make that day's paper, if such speed is necessary.

With addition of the Scan-A-Graver the Times will use at least twice as many illustrations, many types of which were not used before. Wedding pictures, for instance, will be used, whereas in the past it was difficult to have them engraved in time to run with the story of the weddings.

It will also allow local advertisers to use pictures of their products, taken right in their places of business and on short notice. Where it formerly took about a week's prior notice for an advertiser to have his engravings made for an advertisement, he can now use photographs taken as little as three days before the advertisement runs.

All in all, the Scan-A-Graver will go a long way toward making the Times more than ever the leading newspaper in northwestern Minnesota.

SCHOOL BOARD PROCEEDINGS

A regular meeting of the school board of Ind. Consolidated Joint District 18 was held at the office in Lincoln High School at 8 o'clock p.m., on February 11, 1957.

In attendance were board members Starekow, Thompson, Bratsch, Howick, Ehlevik, Pearson and Supt. Seitz.

Meeting was called to order by President Starekow.

Minutes of the meeting of January 10, 1957 were read and approved as read.

Discussion was then had concerning acquisition of the Bob Bell property for playground purposes in connection with the new Washington grade school. Ehlevik then introduced the following Resolution and moved its adoption:

"Whereas, the School District has determined that it is necessary and desirable to acquire Lots 13 to 18 in Block 41 of the Original Townsite of Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota, for school purposes," and

Whereas, negotiations have been had with the owner of said tract and it appears that said land cannot be obtained by purchase at a fair and reasonable price, and it further appears that the only satisfactory manner for acquisition is by a condemnation proceeding in District Court,

Now, Therefore, Be It Resolved, That L. W. Hullen of the firm of Hullen & Wurst, Attorneys at law, be authorized and directed to institute condemnation proceedings in behalf of Independent Consolidated Joint District 18 for the acquisition of said lands for school purposes."

The motion for the adoption of the Resolution was seconded by Pearson and, upon being put to a vote, was unanimously carried.

Supt. Seitz reported to the board in re School Board Convention, building program and the public meetings currently being held in connection with school programs and problems.

Pursuant to regulations heretofore established by the board on March 12, 1956 requiring the following administrative personnel to be holders of a Masters Degree: Supt. of Schools, Senior and Junior High School Principals, Vocational Guidance Counselors, Elementary School Supervisor and Area Vocational School Director, considerable discussion was had concerning the selection of a Director for the Area Vocational School. The qualifications and recommendations of several candidates were discussed. Motion was then made by Pearson, seconded by Howick to employ Stanley Nelson as Director of the Area Vocational School as of July 1, 1957. Upon being put to a vote the motion unanimously carried.

A lengthy discussion then followed in regard to teachers and school administrators salaries for next year. After taking into consideration increases in the cost-of-living index, the shortage of qualified teachers, the number of prospective and actual resignations of teachers on our staff, starting salaries in private industry, a comparison of salaries with other school systems of the state, the matter of revenue and increased taxes, it was moved by Howick, seconded by Ehlevik to revise our teachers salary schedule effective July 1, 1957 as follows:

Experience	Two Years Training	Three Years Training	Four Years Training	Five Years Training

11			5250	5450

Motion was made by Bratsch, seconded by Thompson, to approve and adopt administrative salary schedule on file with the Clerk. Motion carried unanimously.

Motion was made by Pearson, seconded by Thompson, to approve contract dated 12-12-56 employing Mrs. Camilla Duchamp as to end of 1956-57 school year at $1833.00 payable in 5 equal monthly installments. Motion carried unanimously.

Motion was made, seconded & carried to allow bills as approved, by the auditing committee.

Motion was made, seconded & carried to adjourn.

Bar Group Explains Rule on Injunctions

We sometimes learn that someone has applied to a court for an injunction. Ordinarily such person seeks to obtain from the court an order forbidding some threatened act. It is not every unlawful act that the court will forbid. When there is a law which will adequately protect an injured party against damage which can be compensated in money, an injunction will not be issued by the court. But when damage is threatened for which there is no adequate remedy by way of damages, an injunction is often granted.

A proceeding to obtain an injunction is called a suit in equity, the Minnesota State Bar explains. In former days injunctions were granted only in chancery courts. Originally they were ecclesiastical courts. They originated out of necessity to give relief where the law courts could not help the petitioner.

Sometimes an injunction compels a person to do a thing which it is his duty to do. This is called a mandatory injunction. Sometimes it is issued because without it many other lawsuits would be required.

Courts of equity are governed by rules of good conscience. For example, one seeking the aid of equity must come with "clean hands." When he seeks equity for his benefit he must be willing to do equity. He must not delay but should be diligent. Through the ages the equity courts have developed many maxims which govern their procedure and are really rules of good conscience.

AIRPORT NEWS

The last few days of February gave the pilots a bit of competition, wind, blowing snow, and more wind. However, Edgar Hetteen of Roseau, made it in here on the 27th, with his 4-place Stinson. He was returning from the cities. Martin Rantanen, also flew in from Minneapolis that noon, in a J-3 Cub.

The fox hunters from Greenbush were back again—Tony Burkie and Felix Wilebski, in a J-3, on the 28th. Another J-3, flown by Joe Horachek of Goodridge came in Thursday.

Then we have the month of March that came into 1957, like a lion, but before her winds got too furious, Dale Walter, Melvin Wang, and Tom Krmskuha, all of Fertile, left for Wisconsin in a Tri-Pacer. Jack Swively of Bemidji and Wm. Moreau of Royal Oak, Mich., got in and out again too, in a Cessna 170, before the storm came.

On Saturday, the 2nd, we had the trio from Fertile, returning from Wisconsin in the Tri-Pacer. Ron Warcup of Grand Forks landed his Piper Cruiser here Saturday and enjoyed a cup of hot coffee. H. W. Anderson, in a Champ, flew in from Mahnomen and from Karlstad came Don Parker and H. M. Netterlon, in an Ercoupe.

Sunday was an exceptionally nice day to be out and we had many visitors via plane as well as in cars. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Peterson Jr. of Karlstad flew Mrs. Verdie Nelson out to Carrington, N. Dak. in the Stinson. The Peterson's returned in the late afternoon.

Dr. R. W. Alcox, Hancock, Minnesota, delivered a Champ to the Airport Sunday and made the return trip with Chas. Schmidt and John Schmidt of Morris, Minnesota, who had followed in a Stinson.

From Grand Forks way we had Don Campbell, A. C. Benard and Roy Davis visit us in their Cessna 170. Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Beck and sons, Danny and Randy, of East Grand Forks, drove over to spend the afternoon at the Airport.

Tom Hagen, Crookston, had his two children, Paul and Kristina up for an afternoon ride in the Champ and they stopped here for a few minutes. Also from Crookston in the T-Craft, came Lloyd Anderson and Theo. Bohn.

Bert Trane and Lawrence Kanyer, motored over from Karlstad, Sunday to spend the afternoon flying Trane's Ercoupe. Many of the local pilots logged a few hours in their books, too.

COVENANT CHURCH TO HEAR GREENBUSH MAN SUNDAY

Andrew Lindvall, Greenbush high school teacher, who plans leaving later this year for a teaching position on Formosa, will speak next Sunday Night, March 17, at 7:45 at the Mission Covenant church here, stated the pastor, L. Keeping Score with "Huck" Olson

That Old Refrain

Another basketball season is coming to an end, and another regional tournament is about to be played, but it's the same old team that must be installed as the eighth region's best. Meaning, of course, Coach Bun Fortier's Bemidji Lumberjacks.

So often have we heard, at regional basketball tournament, the Bemidji "fight song" that that refrain is beginning to have as haunting effect on us as "Nidolina" or "Ja Vi Elsker Dette Landet."

It's kind of numbing to have the Lumberjacks exhibit such a superiority over the rest of the teams in the region, year in and year out. Since that unhappy day way back in 1931, when the districts and regions were given a shuffle by the State High School board, twenty-six eighth regional tournaments have been played. The Lumberjacks have won sixteen of these tourney, and they are the odds-on favorites to win their 17th this week-end. All that the rest of the regional teams could collect was ten championships, and of these ten, the Prowlers have won four.

We would gripe and complain if the winning of these regional crowns was due to good fortune or luck, but such hasn't been the case. Invariably, Bemidji has had the best team in the tournament, and their record as they moved on to the state tournament competition, supports that claim. The Lumberjacks are always a respected team in the state tourney.

Of particular interest to local fans, and of a discouraging nature, is the fact that this is somewhat of a "bonus" year for the Jacks. Losing but one player—Bill Lawrence—Bemidji expects next season to be their "jubilee" year. Fortier will have Ray Cronk and Marc Kolden, his two big men, and Jim Patten and Jim Johnson as returning regulars. Jim Vickery will perhaps be an adequate replacement for Lawrence.

But enough of Bemidji. How are the Prowlers to fare in the regional that opens tonight? The Prowlers, meeting the undefeated Kennedy Rockets in a first round game, will defuse the Rockets. They'll beat Kennedy.

In the finals against Bemidji, the Prowlers will need TWO good halves of basketball to have a chance against the Jacks. Coach Adams' squad has had trouble in putting together a 32-minute effort of first-rate basketball and against Bemidji anything but a superb performance will be futile.

We'll Pick Willmar

Having been exposed to a season-long "hard sell" campaign in behalf of the Willmar Stumphill Cardinals by Doug Tegtmeier, the refugees from Kandiyohi county, we'll pick the Cardinals to win the fifth region basketball title. And after winning the regional, Stumphill, or rather Willmar, will go on to win the state championship.

Willmar will be entering this week's regional tournament, being played on the Williams arena court in Minneapolis, with an impressive record. The one loss on the Cardinals' record was administered by the Bemidji Lumberjacks. The Jacks, on a given night, are capable of defeating any of the state's top-ranked teams.

While the choice of Willmar to win the fifth region is debatable, the establishment of the fifth regional winner as the favorite to win the state championship is quite unanimous. Here are the four teams competing in that regional tourney: Willmar, Foley, St. Louis Park, and Minneapolis Roosevelt. St. Louis Park and the defending state champion Minneapolis Roosevelt teams are carrying undefeated records into their first-round tilt on Friday night. The odds are just about even.

Fair Harvard

Coach Cooney Weiland's Harvard squad, with four Minnesotans, including the Prowlers own Lyle Guttu, on the roster, is competing in the National Collegiate ice hockey tournament being played in Colorado Springs, Colo., this week.

Harvard, with a season's record of 21 wins and 3 losses, will meet Michigan in a first round game Friday night. The other two teams participating in the four-team tourney are Colorado college and Clarkson college.

Lyle, one of our all-time favorites as a Prowler athlete, has been a standout on Coach Weiland's Harvard squad this past season. Lyle is a wing on the Crimson's number one line, and in addition to being a strong scorer, he's the line's play-maker.

Lyle, you know, was a member of the Prowlers' state high school hockey champions, being a wing on the line centered by Marv Jorde, and with Sid Vraa on the other wing. Remember that championship finals game against the Eveleth Golden Bears in 1951? And that play of Lyle's midway in the second period? The score was 1 to 0 in favor of the Prowlers when Lyle, taking a pass from Mike McMahon, split the Eveleth defense and came in to beat goalie Tom Yeste with a point-blank shot. A short while later, with Jorde assisting, Lyle scored a second goal, giving the Prowlers a 3 to 0 lead. But it was Lyle's first goal that will linger long in the memory.

Tip-off at Seven O'Clock

The eighth regional basketball tournament will open tonight, Thursday, at Grand Forks. The 31st district Prowlers will meet the 32nd district Kennedy Rockets in the tourney's opening game, with the tip-off being slated for 7:00 p.m.

Local fans should make a note of the starting time for tonight's opener. It's at 7:00 p.m.

Event Slated at Arena Saturday and Sunday

Entries for the city-wide bonspiel, being held on the Arena ice on Saturday night and Sunday, will be accepted up to noon on Saturday. These entries should be registered with Roger Tunberg or Tom Cochrane.

The draw for the bonspiel will be announced on Saturday, and the pairings for the matches will be posted at the Arena. They will also be available from Mr. Tunberg and Mr. Cochrane.

It is hoped that all of the league members will avail themselves of this opportunity to compete in what will, in all probability, be the last curling event of the season.

First round matches are tentatively slated to be held on Saturday night.

Prowlers, Kennedy to Compete Tonight at 7 in Region 8 Tourney

Three repeaters—Bemidji, Halstad, and Kennedy — and one newcomer—Thief River Falls — will begin play tonight in the Eighth regional basketball tournament, being played on the fieldhouse court on the North Dakota university campus in Grand Forks.

The first round pairings will find Thief River Falls playing Kennedy in the tourney-opening game at 7:00 p.m.; while at 8:30 p.m. the defending champion, Bemidji Lumberjacks will play the Halstad Pirates.

The consolation game, between the losers of first round games, will be played at 7:00 p.m. on Friday night, with the regional championship game being slated for 8:30 p.m.

Bemidji from the 29th district, Halstad from the 30th district, and Kennedy from the 32nd district, participated in last year's regional tourney. In a thrilling finals game, Bemidji defeated Halstad, 75 to 72.

The Prowlers are making a return to regional tourney play after an absence of a couple of years, with the Crookston Pirates representing the 31st district in 1955-56.

Coach Al Adams' 12-man Prowler tournament squad will be composed of Dave Rasmussen, Phil Hanson, Dave Hanson, Keith Johnson, Kenny Jones, Ken DeLap, Jim Bennes, Rich Hanson, Daryl Williamson, Mickey Hanson, Lynn Nicholson, and Harlie Drees. Expected to take the floor at the opening tip-off against the Kennedy Rockets tonight will be Rasmussen and Phil Hanson at the forwards, Dave Hanson at center, and Johnson and Jones at the guards.

Wild Rice Harvest Hits Peak in 1956

Harvesters Received $1,250,000 for Work

The 1956 wild rice harvest set an all time record, according to George A. Selke, Commissioner of conservation. Harvest reports show that about three million pounds of wild rice was taken from about 15,000 acres of rice stands on more than 150 lakes in northern Minnesota. The harvest when processed produced about 1,200,000 pounds of wild rice suitable for eating and retail sale.

Emil Frank, the director of the wild rice harvest, states that conditions in 1956 were ideal for growth of wild rice. Water levels were favorable for both germination and growth and there were few storms during the harvest season to injure the ripe grain. He estimates that the average harvest was about two hundred pounds per acre and pointed out that this was only about 20 percent of the total crop. Hand harvesting, which is required by law, results in most of the crop falling into the water for food for waterfowl and reseeding.

There were 6,844 licensed wild rice harvesters on the stands in the fall of 1956, Frank said. A few of these processed their own rice by the ancient Indian methods, but most of them sold the rice as harvested to commercial buyers and processors. There were 216 licensed buyers and processors in 1956, but a large part of the crop is processed by eight northern Minnesota firms. It is estimated that the wild rice harvesters received $1,250,000 for their work in 1956. On this basis the average income per harvester was $180 and the average income to harvesters from an acre of wild rice was $70.

Attractive New Church Being Completed at Brooks

Nearing completion is the new St. Joseph's Catholic church at Brooks which is located on the same site as the former wooden structure that was sold and moved. Of brick and concrete construction the new church is modernistic in design and when completed and fully furnished will be valued at approximately $120,000, according to the Rev. Henry Carriere, parish priest.

Architect for the new church edifice is the firm of Wells & Denbrook of Grand Forks, N. D. Contracts for the building project were let May 10, 1956 and actual construction was started August 1.

Included in the cost of the building is the complete drainage system that was installed. The main structure of the new church measures 103 ft. by 40 ft. Tentative date set for the dedication of the church is April 14.

78% Favor State Voting on Korean Veterans' Bonus

Nearly eight out of every 10 Minnesotans (78 per cent) favor submitting the question of a state bonus for Korean war veterans to the voters in the 1958 general election, a survey by the Minneapolis Tribune's Minnesota Poll finds.

Seventeen per cent are opposed to the idea of letting the electorate decide the bonus issue. Five per cent have no opinions or give qualified answers.

In 1948, the legislature was authorized to pay a bonus to veterans of World War II as a result of the people's vote in the general election.

If surplus money in the World War II bonus fund can be used, the public shows a pronounced willingness to pay a bonus to Korean veterans. Eight out of every 10 adults questioned are in favor of making payments on that basis.

Several bills involving a bonus for Korean veterans are before the Minnesota legislature.

State Patrol Aids 35,000 Last Year

More than 35,000 motorists were given some type of assistance by the Minnesota highway patrol last year, an annual report by the patrol revealed. Motorists from Minnesota and from every other state were given aid along the highways which in one manner reflected on their driving ability.

Road condition and route information was high on the list as motorists have learned to depend upon the uniformed officer for such information. Assistance to stranded motorists and those with empty gas tanks or flat tires, delivery of emergency messages and transportation of blood and plasma were also among the aids given motorists.

'U' Man to Speak at Fergus Falls Parley Saturday

Dr. Walter W. Heller, professor of economics, University of Minnesota, and member of the Governor's Tax Study Committee, will be the keynote speaker at the Western Minnesota legislative conference to be held in Fergus Falls at the Roosevelt Park high school on Saturday, March 16th starting with registration from 9 to 10 a.m.

Dr. Heller will discuss the findings of the committee regarding the taxation problem and review the conclusions reached. Following his address there will be a panel of legislators who together with Dr. Heller will answer questions on phases of the bills now before the legislature dealing with this subject. All interested persons are urged to attend and express their views.

Following the noon luncheon meeting at which Governor Freeman will speak, the conference will divide into workshop sessions covering a series of legislative matters.

Watch the Other Fellow in Driving

State Safety Director Gives Tips to Motorists

"Keep your eye on the other guy—that's the way to practice defensive driving."

That was the way Harry A. Sieben, state director of highway safety, warned motorists to be on their guard against the unpredictable behavior of pedestrians and other drivers.

Sieben made the statement in minding Minnesotans that March is "Defensive Driving" month in the National Safety council accident prevention program, with which the state cooperates each month. This program is part of the year-long "Back the Attack on Traffic Accidents" campaign. The March phase stresses the moral responsibility of drivers for their own safety and the safety of others.

"It isn't enough to obey the law and mind your own business," Sieben said. "You have the responsibility to prevent an accident if you can—even if the other fellow is at fault. Your protection is to anticipate the other fellow's actions and be prepared to act defensively with quick, safe action."

He mentioned these blunders "of the other fellow" which cause trouble and, if anticipated, can be avoided by the driver on the defense:

Failure to heed a stop sign.

Failure to signal a turn.

Stopping suddenly.

Trying to pass on a curve or in a no-passing zone.

Suddenly swerving over the center line.

Weaving dangerously through traffic.

Sieben also reminded drivers that they are "the other fellow" to other drivers, and so they must avoid the above errors if everyone is to be safe.

Last year visitors from 38 countries studied American Red Cross service procedures and programs in preparation for establishing or expanding Red Cross activities in their own nations.

Tells How Much Is 72 Billion Dollars

Budget Total Expressed in Understandable Terms

Just how much is 72 billion dollars — the proposed federal budget for the coming fiscal year —in understandable terms?

According to the family economics bureau of Northwestern National Life Insurance company, 72 billion dollars would make a stack of ten-dollar bills 410 miles high.

It would pay the combined wages of a million manufacturing workers, at present average wage rates, for 17 years.

It is nearly two and one-half times our farmers' total cash receipts for all the produce of American agriculture in 1956.

It is approximately twice as much as the U.S. Government spent for World War I.

It is more than one-fifth of our present national income.

It is $1,100 per American worker.

It is $1,700 per American family.

Spending 72 billion dollars in a year means spending $137,000 a minute for 24 hours a day for seven days a week for 52 weeks.

It has been carefully figured —a gift of $5 to the American Red Cross will provide travel expenses for approximately 280 of the long miles of a trip home by a serviceman called from duty because of a family emergency.

SPENDING OUR DOLLARS

Advocates of big government spending programs seem to think that more money is somehow put into circulation, creating more jobs and greater prosperity, when the government spends our money for us than when we spend it for ourselves.

For a few individuals and groups the tax-and-spend idea no doubt has personal appeal. For the vast majority of us, however, there would be a definite advantage if our taxes were lower. To that extent we would have more choice in determining how those dollars should be used for our own personal benefit. In both instances the dollars would be spent, and as they circulated they would create employment.

EGG GRADING

A compulsory egg grading law for Minnesota is being considered by the legislature. It may not get the majority of votes it needs for passage but it does have the wholehearted support of all who want the poultry industry to do well in the state.

At a committee hearing on this bill it was pointed out that 70 per cent of Minnesota eggs are sold outside the state. A Farm School check on quality showed that 35 per cent or less of southern Minnesota eggs meet the Grade A specifications.

Minnesota eggs will be discriminated against in the market as long as this condition continues. And only by dependable, compulsory grading, can the necessary change be brought about. Only when Minnesota eggs can be bought in the market with the certainty that they are up to grade will they bring top market prices.

ENCOURAGING DELINQUENCY

A Ramsey county grand jury has reported that mileage padding is so common among St. Paul city employees who use their cars in their work that no one individual should be punished for the misconduct. In explaining why they declined to indict anyone for the offense they stated, "those persons had no intent to defraud the city because they believed, under the prevailing custom, that they were entitled to maximum allowances each month."

The members of the grand jury probably were justified in this conclusion. It was just another example of the tendency for the maximum charge established by law to become accepted as a proper minimum.

St. Paul officials are now taking steps to secure honest mileage reports and for a while, no doubt, the leak will be plugged. Public officials, however, ordinarily do not have the eternal vigilance that is necessary in dealing properly with such problems.

One of the most serious charges that can be leveled against an administration, in either public or private matters, is that operations are too loose, and, for lack of proper controls, pilfering is encouraged.

Any employer who makes it easy for an employee to steal should pay a heavy penalty, in addition to his loss, for his contribution to delinquency.

WHEN FEDERAL ORDERS FAIL

(Hoard's Dairyman)

From Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, and Minnesota come reports that state legislatures are considering state milk control bills. Undoubtedly other states are casting covetous eyes at state milk control, too.

Frankly, we regret these moves toward state milk control because of the many complications introduced into the marketing and pricing of dairy products. However, we cannot criticize dairymen in these states for looking to state milk control. When existing marketing and pricing techniques have failed to provide dairy farmers with reasonable prices and reasonable incomes in a peacetime economy, it is perfectly natural to look for another marketing and pricing procedure.

Previously in these columns we have warned that state milk control would inevitably grow if federal milk marketing orders were not more realistically tailored to the needs of dairy farmers.

Two years ago on this page, we reported Dr. Leland Spencer's recommendation of a Class I base plan for milk marketing areas. Since that time, in our visits to various markets throughout the country, we have heard dairymen and dairy leaders discussing, more and more, the necessity for an approach identical to or similar to Spencer's proposal.

Unfortunately, the U.S. Department of Agriculture, which administers federal milk marketing orders, has taken the position that it is not empowered or authorized to approve orders which may serve to tailor milk supplies to the effective Class I usage in the market. According to department spokesmen, the basic legislation does not permit such a provision.

In our opinion, the basic legislation should be changed if the department's interpretation is correct. Only by such a change, authorizing Class I bases, can federal orders begin to satisfy the needs of the dairy farmers producing in those markets.

"If the change is not made, then surely interest in and passage of state milk control bills will increase rapidly in the months and years to come. Such an evolutionary development will be the direct result of the failure of federal orders to satisfy the economic needs of dairy farmers.

The Legislature

By Orlin Folwick

St. Paul—The grip that liberal DFL leaders have over the Minnesota House of Representatives has given evidence during the last two weeks of slipping to the point where they may be hard pressed to put over the crucial portions of Governor Freeman's program when it comes up for action.

With just approximately half of the 1957 session over, the official record shows a wide schism between the membership and the leadership when it comes to the point of voting the party line on controversial issues.

To date there have been ten such issues, where in the conservatives have stood at one end and the liberals on the other. No less than 34 of the house members who voted for Speaker A. I. Johnson of Benson, the liberal candidate, have strayed away from the DFL fold when they had to be counted on one side or the other. These members have voted with the conservatives on the issues that have been before them.

Iverson Crosses Most Often

Chief among the departing liberals has been Representative Carl Iverson of Ashby. On all ten issues he joined the conservatives in the voting record. Mr. Iverson, who has served in both houses of the legislature, having been a member of the senate in the early twenties and a house member almost continuously since, has opposed the DFL viewpoints in his voting record since he went with them in electing Mr. Johnson speaker.

Because of his experience and ability, Mr. Iverson is probably the outstanding member of the house. He is a man of solid convictions, most of which are based on his views of what government ought to do for the people and what it should not do. An able speaker and an equally good student of government, it makes no difference to him who sponsors the legislation or who speaks for it. If he agrees, well and good. If he disagrees, he lets everyone know what he thinks. He doesn't always win, but he has more effect on legislation than all of the conservatives in the house combined.

On one of the issues on which he took a licking, his convinced point was right. That was on the nine other liberals that his view question of party designation for legislators. Mr. Iverson contended that legislators should be independent of party attachments, that they be direct spokesmen of the people, and should exercise independent judgment on the problems before the legislature. The DFL party, of which most liberal legislators are members, has demanded party designation for legislators. Yet, nine house members were sufficiently impressed by Mr. Iverson's arguments to forget the party pledge. The bill, however, was passed because some of the conservatives voted for it.

Rural Liberals Beat Labor Bill

On another issue, Mr. Iverson's stand was looked at with uplifted eyebrows by the labor unions. He opposed the idea of compelling municipalities to accept by majority vote the findings of an arbitration board in disputes between municipal councils and their firemen and police. The present law provides that the state labor conciliator may appoint an arbitration board to adjudge the merits of a dispute between a governing body and its public employees, who are banned from striking.

A labor-backed bill, which would have required municipal councils to vote within a month on the report of an arbitration board and adopt the view of the majority, went through a difficult time in the house. Eleven liberals, backed by the city labor unions, voted to send it back to committee. When this move failed, nine of them joined with the conservatives to defeat the bill. The familiar notation in the house journal—"So the bill was lost,"—came after a vote of 65 to 62. Sixty-six votes would have passed it. One liberal member from the rural areas could have put it over for the labor organizations.

Expense Account

The legislators, who last session raised their pay to $4,800, had before them a proposal for an expense account for living expenses during the session. Members from outside the Twin Cities were to get $1,200 to pay their hotel, meals and other expenses for the 16 weeks of the session, roughly $400 a month. Members from the Twin Cities who live at home at the time were to get $800 for the session.

Eight liberals voted against this proposal, even in the face of a virtual demand from Liberal Majority Leader Fred A. Cina, Aurora, that they ignore the the views that might be expressed back home and vote for this additional emolument.

The voting record shows that two liberal members have strayed from the path in six controversial votes. Five others have wandered in five votes. Even such liberal stalwarts as Odean Enestvedt of Sacred Heart, have ignored them four times, while others have been more impressed by the conservatives than their own leaders on two or three decisions.

Labor Looks Ahead

Aside from the DFL party concern, which is looking for a record that it can parade before the public in 1958, the group having the greatest qualms over this situation is the labor unions, who expect great developments in their demands for more workmen's compensation, unemployment compensation and the repeal of regulatory laws concerning labor and management relations. The labor unions have helped the liberals get control of the house; they want control of the senate, as well, in the 1959 session, and they want as many of the regulatory measures out of the way now so they can go ahead with a much-expanded tax, education, highway, welfare and labor program as possible in the 1959 session.

PUBLIC OPINION

Editor, Times:

As a native of Minnesota, and particularly of the Grygla community, and as a farmer for more than thirty five years of experience, I can not help but have interest in both local and statewide affairs concerning the economic livelihood of the public. I am, therefore, writing to inform the readers about some developments taking place in the northern part of the state which I think are not in the public interest.

The Game and Fish Department has a program to save Minnesota wetlands and under this program the Department is going to acquire 200,000 acres of wetlands in the next two to five years. This of course is in addition to what they have at the present time.

They have an elaborate program planned for the Roseau river and other places in the Red Lake Game Preserve. Much of this work is to raise water levels on an area which covers some ten thousand five hundred acres, and a greater part of this area is already flooded to the extent that in many places it has hampered timber operations for good timber management.

Last week I made an extensive tour of much of the Red Lake Game Reserve area and I found areas where acres and acres of good timber that was dead or dying from excessive water due to inadequate control of beaver, and allowing them to dam up ditches, creeks and rivers. This excessive flooding is for no good whatsoever.

I also have at hand figures which show that, over a million dollars worth of timber products came out of this area last year. From this revenue a large amount was paid for labor, to cutters, skidders, truckers, and for other services and that sure helped many farmers and farm boys supplement their meager income due to fallen prices of farm products.

I would not even make an attempt to guess what the total amount would be, that was paid for labor on timber products last year, but I talked to one operator, and he told me he had a payroll last year of $135,000. This to me is not just chicken feed.

Now, if much of this area will be flooded more than it already is, which is too much; timber men will be forced from the wetlands resulting in heavy loss on timber sales. It will also make timber management more difficult in those areas, to say nothing about the labor being lost.

Some will say that it probably has greater value for wildlife habitat of the water type, but this is not true, as the type of wildlife habitats this northern part of Minnesota does not live on water alone. They must have feed with it. In fact the most important wildlife types which are natives of the area are deer, moose, partridge or now commonly called ruffed grouse, and sharp-tailed grouse. To all sportsmen concerned this type of game has far more value meat-wise and dollar-wise, than all the ducks in the State of Minnesota.

Much of the deer hunting area has already been flooded to the extent that deer are no longer present. Most of them have been forced to the higher ridges, and they are poor or even sick with liver flucks.

One thing that has been evident over many areas in northern Minnesota, which I have traveled, is that, deer have very little feed to speak of. Much work could be done to seed in small fields to alfalfa, clovers, or mixtures to help correct this situation, as there are thousands of acres scattered throughout the areas ideally located, and suitable for such legumes which would in turn produce stronger fawns, and resulting in many more deer, and better deer hunting would be the result.

However, a lot could be said about wolves, bobcats, fox and other predators that every year take a big toll of wildlife. I believe the only way to hold these under control is bounties big enough to interest private trappers and hunters, and let them hunt these wolves and cats in the Game Preserves areas as well as outside preserve areas.

Last, but not least, we as farmers in this area, are all very much concerned about this Wetlands Aquisition Bill, as there is no protection against the purchase of the more strategically located pieces of bottomland to block drainage of adjoining farm land. It is a known fact that some drainage of good farm land has already been blocked by the purchase of a key piece of wetland across which a drainage outlet should pass.

The Department of Conservation contends however that there is a law by which they can drain through conservation lands. However this law is worthless so far as we farmers are concerned as the cost of going through this legal action makes it prohibitive in most cases.

In this great state of Minnesota, with over ten thousand lakes, it should not be so necessary to create too many artificial lakes and ponds. Think it over, and I sincerely ask more farmers to write to their legislators and give their opinion on this vital subject while it is before you.

Village Hall and Postoffice at St. Hilaire

At a cost of approximately $20,000 a new village hall and fire hall was erected in St. Hilaire in 1955. Of brick and tile construction the new building measures 40 feet by 60 feet and makes a fine addition to St. Hilaire's main street. Furnishing materials for the project was Tom Melby of Oklee who also supervised its construction.

Built on the site occupied by the Merchant's State bank building, which was razed to make room for the new structure, it also houses the U. S. postoffice in St. Hilaire. The postoffice for a number of years was located in the old bank building.

Rev. Carrol Ellertson Writes Home

Following is a letter written by the Rev. Carroll Ellertson, Missionary to Zululand, South Africa. Rev. Ellertson left Minneapolis by plane on the morning of Feb. 13th. After a short stop in Idlewild Airport, New York, he was off for London, England. Londoners told him this had been their finest winter in 50 years. The fields were green and daffodils and hyacinths were blooming in the lawns and window boxes. He also saw the Queen of England as she boarded the plane on her way to meet the Duke at Portugal. Enroute he stopped briefly in Rome and then continued on to Khartoum, in Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, and then the Nairobi stop in Kenya. Rev. Ellertson said here, except for the red soil, it resembled much of the flatter country in Virginia. He had a short stop at Salisbury, in South Rhodesia. The farmland here is beautiful and green, with rolling hills and fine trees and groves. From here he went to Johannesburg. This is a city of a million people, with skyscrapers, fine stores and shops and 100,000 automobiles. It is called "the New York of Africa." The land about the city is pock-marked, and scarred by gigantic slashes and dumps from the rich gold mines. Here he attended a church service at the Episcopal Cathedral. From Johannesburg he continued his trip by train to Durban. Much of the land along this route looks like a slightly greener Eastern Montana, with rolling hills, gullies and creeks and occasionally woodlands and fields. The cattle grazing in the plains looked like brown and black long-horns. He saw corn, soybeans, sunflowers and grains growing along the way. The farms are mostly owned by the descendants of the Dutch, who settled the territory. The farms were nicely mechanized and he saw tractors, threshing machines, hayloaders and similar machinery that we have on our farms. In Zululand the farms were more primitive with the natives working their land oxen. Near Durban the landscape is dotted with sugar cane plantations and pineapple fields. The weather is more humid here but [illegible] from the Indian Ocean to keep cool. Rev. Ellertson is staying at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Leland Everson and is enrolled at the College in the Language school and is learning Zulu and Africans. His address is: Rev. Carroll Ellertson, 72 Oceanway, Durban North, Union of South Africa.

Predict Newfolden Band Concert To Be A Big Success

Have you purchased your ticket for the variety show, Musical Wonderland, which will be presented by the Newfolden Community School Band this Friday in the school auditorium?

The band has been working diligently on scenery and costumes the past week to back up the solos and ensembles which have been in preparation for several months. All reports seem to agree that this year's production will be even better than the past two and rumor has it that there may be something sensational as the Sheik of the 1955 show or the Africans from last year's staging.

So, by all means get your ticket and plan to be with us this Friday evening, March 15, for an evening the entire family will enjoy.

Grand Forks Office of Social Security Has Rush of Business

The Grand Forks social security office is experiencing the greatest rush business in the 17 years of its existence. Since the first of the year, the number of people making claims for insurance benefit payments has more than tripled over that of a year ago, district manager Walter Kistler said today.

The increase in the number of claimants here reflects a condition prevailing in most of the 556 social security offices thruout the country. In one January week alone, a total of 400 people in this area made claims for old-age, survivors, or disability insurance payments.

Kistler said that his office is doing everything possible to expedite the handling of people making benefit claims. Since the 1956 amendment to the Social Security Act became law last August, the Grand Forks district office has added four staff members to help process the increased workload.

Due to the increased number of claimants, however, many may have to wait longer for interviews when they come to the social security office. Also, he said, the large number of claimants in the office slows up the pressing of the claims papers. A new beneficiary must sometimes wait longer before he recieves his first monthly insurance benefit check.

"If you have made a claim for payments but have not yet received your first check, please be patient," Kistler urges. He assures those who have recently filed claims that the delay will not result in any loss of benefits. The date an application is filed, not the date of the final award, is used in figuring the monthly benefit amount. Furthermore, he pointed out, benefits can be paid for a period of as much as a year before the time a claim for benefits is made when people are entitled to back payments. Benefit checks for future months will not be affected by the workload and will reach beneficiaries on time.

While ordinarily a wage earner need not submit proof of past earnings, in a claim for old-age benefits, a self-employed person will need to bring along copies of his income tax returns for 1955 and 1956. Moreover, in claims filed by a widow, child, or surviving dependent parents, certain proofs are usually required. "We don't urge people to go to any great trouble or expense to obtain proofs, but the handling of a claim can be speeded and return visits to our office avoided if a marriage certificate or a birth or baptismal certificate is brought along," Kistler declared.

In case of doubt, a telephone call to the social security office may save time and delay in getting all necessary papers and in arranging a time to come to the office.

Commenting on the unprecedented number of claims now on hand, Kistler sair that the situation is temporary. It is due largely to the recent changes in the social security law.

Don't Scream!—Don't Scream, Kid! Raymond Burr warns Natalie Wood in a scene from Warner Bros. "A Cry In The Night," drama of a teen-age girl who went one thrill too far. Co-starring with Natalie are Edmond O'Brien and Brian Donlevy at the Falls Friday and Saturday.

In the area served by the Grand Forks social security office a major reason for the increase in claimants is that many self-employed farmers are now qualifying for old-age benefits. Farm operators were first brought under social security at the beginning of 1955. About 2,200 in this area who have reached retirement age have filed benefit claims since the first of the year, he said.

Women can now elect to claim benefits at age 62. In the country as a whole, more than 600,000 women between the ages of 62 and 65 have filed claims since this provision first became effective last November.

While disability insurance benefits to persons who have reached age 50 first become payable for the month of July 1957, many disabled people are now filing claims. Other disabled people who are still under age 50 are calling to have their social security work records frozen. This action will protect them and their families for future benefit payments even though the disabled worker is not yet eligible for monthly disability payments for himself. As many people are still unfamiliar with the disability provisions in the social security law, Kistler advises them to ask for a copy of "If You Are Disabled," a new booklet which explains the requirements for the disability freeze and disability benefits.

84 Counties in State Now Free of Brucellosis

Minnesota's drive to wipe out brucellosis in its dairy herds is nearing completion.

Ralph Wayne, extension dairy specialist at the University of Minnesota, points to a report by Dr. George Keller, veterinarian with the state Livestock Sanitary Board.

Eighty-four counties are now "modified certified bovine brucellosis free." That means that in these counties, brucellosis infection is less than 1 percent in all cattle and that less than 5 per cent of all herds contain brucellosis reactors.

During the last three months, 7 counties have completed certification. These are Washington, Dakota, Hennepin, Stearns, Carver, Scott and Kanabec.

The three counties yet to be certified are Mille Lacs, Benton and Isanti.

WHAT A BIG BOOK!

Of course the Bible is big. Not only in size . . . but in the limitless depth of the messages to mankind.

God never intended the Bible to be studied without help. When an Ethiopian official centuries ago wrestled with a passage from Isaiah, God sent the evangelist, Philip, to meet the man's chariot, climb aboard, and explain the text's reference to the crucifixion of Christ.

Explaining and applying God's Word are still two of the major aims of the Church. Every sermon, every lesson, every discussion topic your church offers is intended to focus your attention on the timeless truths of Scripture and help you thread them into the pattern of your life.

Cherish your Bible . . . read it regularly . . . and let your Church guide you to the richness of its message.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

"Creamy cottage cheese, juicy cling peaches . . . all dressed up in our easy new Spring Flower Salad"

Test Yourself!
What's your "Cottage Cheese I.Q."?

Q Why is cottage cheese recommended for reducing diets?
A Because it is low in calories, yet extremely high in protein. High protein satisfies appetites, at the same time helps "burn" excess fat.
Q What makes cottage cheese so high in protein?
A Concentrated milk! Cottage cheese contains all the proteins and calcium of milk . . . in highly concentrated form.
Q How does cottage cheese compare with other foods as a source of protein?
A It's a power-house! For example, a half cup of cottage cheese equals the protein of three medium eggs . . . or an average serving of meat, fish or poultry. (While costing less . . . and providing fewer calories!)

The Dairy Farmers of Minnesota remind you—you get a lot for your money when you buy cottage cheese.

Many Pers[illegible] Getting Po[illegible] Vaccine Here

Salk Vaccine Still in Adequate Supply in City, Doctors Say

Despite a strong upsurge in the number of persons receiving shots of Salk polio vaccine in Thief River Falls as well as thruout the nation, the local supply of the vaccine is adequate for the present at least, according to local physicians, who have noticed a marked increase in recent weeks in the number coming in to be vaccinated.

Surgeon General Leroy E. Burney said public demand for vaccine has used up the large stocks accumulated last fall and now is running ahead of current production.

Burney, head of the United States public health service, was in Minneapolis Thursday to speak at University of Minnesota's school of public health.

Dr. D. S. Fleming of the state department of health estimated a two-weeks' supply is on hand in doctors' offices and drugstores in Minnesota.

"Doctors who have not been giving polio shots may find up to 30 days delay in getting supplies," he said. "Other should have ample stocks."

Burney said 26 million doses were sold by manufacturers in January and February alone. Only 77 million were sold in all 1956, he added.

Both Burney and Fleming attributed the increase to the active "get vaccinated" campaigns begun by the public health service, the March of Dimes and other organizations in January.

Although shortages have resulted, the campaigns saved a dangerous situation, Burney said.

Almost 25 million doses nearly became outdated on manufacturers' shelves last December because of low public demand, he said.

He predicted production would double in April, reaching 12 million doses per month.

Member of Council of Red Lake Chippewa Tribe Dies at Home Thursday

Peter Graves, Indian chief and elder in Red Lake reservation affairs, died at his home at Red Lake Thursday night. He was 84.

At the time of his death, Mr. Graves was on the general council of the Red Lake Chippewa tribe and served as secretary of the Red Lake Fisheries association at Redby, Minn.

He attended Lincoln institute, Philadelphia, Pa., graduating in 1889. He was in the government Indian service following graduation until 1917. He served as judge in Indian court from 1936 to 1943 and was an organizer of the general council of the Chippewas at Red Lake.

During the drouth years in the 1930s, the city council of Thief River Falls frequently negotiated with Graves as a tribal leader for the release of additional water from Red Lake to supply the needs of this community and other towns along the river.

Graves made what was probably his last public appearance in Thief River Falls in 1955 when, during the observance of the 50th anniversary of the opening of part of the Indian reservation to settlement, he and other Indian leaders conducted a ceremony in the tourist park in which Douglas McKay, then U. S. secretary of the interior, was inducted into the Chippewa tribe.

For the first two months of 1957 the gain was reported at 17 per cent.

Junior College Bill Gets Past Senate Hurdle

Education Group OK's $200 Pupil Aid; Road Bill Advances

A bill for state aid to junior colleges got over its first hurdle in the Minnesota Legislature Thursday, winning approval of the Senate Education committee by a 10-3 vote.

The measure would grant aid at the rate of $200 per pupil at a costs of about a million dollars during the next two years. It now goes to the Senate finance committee for consideration of the necessary appropriation.

Before voting, the committee adopted two amendments by Sen. Stanley Holmquist of Grove City. One provides that the money comes from the general revenue fund. The other would require each junior college to charge tuition not less than 50 per cent of the amount of state aid per student.

This would mean a tuition of $100 a year. Tuition at the state's nine junior colleges, which have a total enrollment approaching 2,000, now varies from $50 to $105 a year.

Junior colleges are located in Austin, Brainerd, Ely, Eveleth, Hibbing, Coleraine, Rochester, Virginia and Worthington.

The committee also approved

One Mishap Mars Quiet Week-end

Dr. Vernon Carlson's Car Hit by Another

A very quiet week-end was registered by all three law enforcement agencies in the city, as only one accident marred an otherwise perfect record on the part of local and area drivers.

City police reported about $190 total damages in a collision at the Markley av.-Schunaman st. intersection about 8:48 a.m. Friday. Dr. Vernon Carlson, city, was making a turn from Markley on to Schunaman, going east when he was hit on the rear door on the driver's side of his car by another car driven west on Schunaman st. by Gerald Jorgenson, 16, city.

Damages were $105 to the Carlson car and $85 to the Jorgenson car. Jorgenson will face charges of failure to yield right-of-way in juvenile court as a result of the accident.

The only other incident reported by police was the theft of a jack and spare tire from a car parked north of Len's Tire Service overnight Wednesday. Dale Bruggeman, owner, reported practically everything was taken out of the trunk, according to the police.

The sheriff and highway patrol had a routine week-end, they reported. Road restrictions could go on in this area with only 24 hour notice, the patrol warned truckers.

KTRF to Present New Program for Children Saturday

'Children's Chapel' to Be Broadcast at 9:30 a. m. under ELC Sponsorship

A new children's program makes its debut Saturday, March 23, on KTRF, "Children's Chapel," a quarter-hour children's worship service, will be heard each Saturday at 9:30 a.m., according to the Rev. Otto Dale, pastor of Trinity Lutheran church.

Although a project of Sunday schools of the Evangelical Lutheran Church, the program is non-denominational, he pointed out. "Children affiliated with all churches will profit from the program," said Rev. Dale.

The most popular feature is a five to seven minute dramatized story from the Bible. Children in this area will hear such familiar stories as "The Good Samaritan" and "Jesus Walks on the Sea."

KTRF General Manager Don Olson said the station is glad to carry Children's Chapel as a public service because it is one of the few religious programs beamed at children.

Also included in each program are hymns sung by the 90-voice Children's Chapel Choir, plus two soloists, Carolyn Solomonson and Eric Glere.

The announcer is Paul Borge, formerly a television director in Omaha, Nebraska; and now an instructor in television and radio courses at the University of Omaha. Borge is a graduate of Luther College, Decorah, Iowa.

Cafe Reopened at Grygla on Friday

Gonnering's Pool Hall to Be Run in Connection

John Gonnering of Grygla reopened the cafe and pool hall in that village Friday after some alterations had been made on the interior of the building. He reopened the business, he said, as an accommodation and service for the public.

He also expressed the hope that the business would pay its own way inasmuch as there are hired employees operating the establishment. They are Miss Beatrice Hook, cook and pastry cook; Mrs. William Hanson and Mrs. Ralph Newton, all of the Grygla community.

Formerly known as "The Fountain," Gonnering's Pool Hall is located across the street from the Grygla post office in a building owned by L. A. Dalos, who now resides in California.

The pool hall was operated for many years by Nels Dyrdahl, who retired from business in Grygla last fall and moved to Thief River Falls. Since that time it had been operated by Orville Askeland.

Gonnering also plans further improvements in the cafe but these changes will come gradually. Last week the kitchen and cafe area were enlarged. The building was modernized last year.

Practices under '57 Farm Conservation Program Are Detailed

Continuation of report on practices under the 1957 Agricultural Conservation program released this week by P. W. Culkins, office manager of Pennington county ASC.

A-7. Initial establishment of a stand of trees or shrubs on farmland for erosion control, watershed protection, or forestry purposes. — No Federal cost-sharing will be allowed for planting orchard trees, or for plantings for ornamental purposes. If shrubs are used, those that benefit wildlife should be given preference wherever practicable. Plantings must be protected from fire and grazing.

The planting of trees and shrubs for field and farm shelterbelts shall, in general, conform in design, location, tree and shrub species, and composition to to accepted practice for the locality and purpose intended. Summer fallow and cultivation are necessary in some areas, especially extremely dry sites, and in those cases will be required by the county committee. Approved specifications and design for these plantings are contained in Extension Bulletin 196, revised. Minor deviations may be made by the county committee, but any major deviations must be approved by the Forest Service representative.

Solid plantings for forestry purposes shall be made at a rate of not less than one thousand trees per acre and should show a survival of at least 750 trees per acre after the first year of planting.

Federal cost-sharing is authorized for replanting where there was a substantial loss of trees or shrubs resulting from causes beyond the control of the producer, such as drought or fire.

Cost-sharing may be authorized for removing scrubby brush of no economic value to permit planting of desirable tree species. Technical assistance must be utilized to determine the suitability of the land for clearing and the measures necessary to prevent erosion. Necessary erosion control measures must be carried out. The clearing may be done by bulldozing, plowing, disking, or similar operations on land where the maximum average slope does not exceed 30 per cent.

Maximum Federal cost-share: (a) $1.75 per 100 trees or shrubs planted, (b) $5.00 per acre for land cleared.

B-1. Improvement of an established vegetative cover for soil or watershed protection. — This practice is applicable only to land in permanent vegetative cover which needs more than normal maintenance measures in order to provide adequate soil or watershed protection. The improvement measures approved for cost-sharing shall be those which will extend materially the life of the vegetative cover. Federal cost-sharing may not be approved for normal maintenance measures such as annual top-dressings with fertilizers. This practice is applicable only to land requiring a partial reseeding, but is not applicable where the needed improvement measures will constitute complete re-establishment of the vegetative cover.

An adequate seedbed must be prepared and the required seeding made.

Generally, an application of commercial fertilizer should be required.

The area seeded must be protected from continuous grazing until a good growth has been obtained. Periodic grazing to hold down the companion crop is permissible.

Eligible legumes are: alfalfa, birdsfoot trefoil, Ladino clover, and alsike clover.

Eligible grasses are: bromegrass, meadow fescue, timothy, and reed canary grass.

Minimum seeding requirements per acre are: 4 pounds of alfalfa, or 3 pounds of birdsfoot trefoil, or 3 pounds of Ladino clover, or 4 pounds of grasses, or a 6-pound mixture of legumes and grasses containing at least 3 pounds of grasses which does not meet any of the other minimum seedings.

Maximum Federal cost-share: seedbed preparation, seed and seeding, $2.00 per acre.

B-3. Controlling competitive shrubs to permit growth or adequate desirable vegetative cover for soil protection on pasture land. — Federal cost-sharing will be allowed for the application of approved chemicals to control buckbrush, hazel-brush, and thorn bushes on pasture land. On areas where it is determined that the control of these competitive shrubs will reduce the vegetative cover to such an extent as to induce erosion, the practice will not be approved unless followed by a seed or other approved erosion control measures.

The use of 2,4-D is recommended for buckbrush and hazelbrush, 2,4,5-T for thorn bushes, and a mixture of these chemicals where the area being treated is populated with thorn and buckbrush or hazelbrush. The recommended rate of application per acre and time of application are contained in Extension Folder 191, revised.

Maximum Federal cost-share: 50% of the average estimated cost but not to exceed $5.00 per acre.

It's surprising how many people live on such a narrow margin in this wide world of ours.

was this stop really necessary?
Probably not. A check-up and tune-up here might well have prevented this dismal delay. Foresight pays off!

Escape Storm Here; More Snow Forecast

Despite blustering threats of bad weather, northwestern Minnesota, including Thief River Falls and Pennington county, escaped the late-winter snowstorm which paralyzed some parts of the state the latter part of last week.

Minnesota apparently received the brunt of the storm with eight to 12 inches of snow falling in most sections. Wadena reported 23 inches and Iron Range communities measured snow drifts as high as 10 feet.

New Ulm, Minn., was in almost total isolation Friday, able to communicate outside only by short wave radio. Telephone lines were down and only a few homes were receiving electric power as a result of the snowstorm.

The northernmost extent of the storm was around Erskine, where fresh snowdrifts were observed by the Times weather reporter Sunday. Even there the snowfall was very minor compared to those areas receiving the brunt of the storm.

Another storm was reported today, sweeping toward the same areas which got last week's storm but no bad weather of any consequence is forecast for our part of the state.

The real facts are that we in Pennington county are enjoying "banana belt" weather by comparison with the weather in southerly parts of the state and the northeast.

Last week's lows in our area ranged from 1 below to 24 above zero. Highs were 30 to 16. Here is the temperature record:

Date	High	Low	Precip.
Mon., Mar. 11	30	24	trace
Tues., Mar. 12	22	6
Wed., Mar. 13	22	—1
Thurs., Mar. 14	22	6	trace
Fri., Mar. 15	16	12	trace
Sat., Mar. 16	24	10
Sun., Mar. 17	28	3

The Monday low was 0. Precipitation was very light during the period, despite the many threats.

The KTRF forecast: snow today and tonight with little temperature change. Tuesday, partly cloudy and little temperature change. Highs today, 28 to 32 and lows tonight, 5 to 15. Winds will be northeasterly, 15 to 20 m.p.h. today, decreasing tonight.

Junior College Bill Passes 1st Hurdle in Senate

a bill which is a recodification of about half the state's education laws and a second bill to continue for another two years the commission which started the job of recodification.

Earlier in the day, the Senate gave preliminary approval to a bill designating routes which are to become part of the interstate highway system and the Senate judiciary committee heard supporters and opponents of constitutional revision.

The routes to become part of the interstate system run from the Twin Cities to Moorhead, from Albert Lea to Duluth through the Twin Cities, across the southern section of the state from LaCrescent to Luverne, and around the Twin Cities in the form of a beltline. They total 936 miles, to be built 90 per cent with federal funds, 10 per cent with state funds.

Tips to Users of Bifocal Glasses

Head of Optometrists Assn. Offers Advice

With the population of the state and nation constantly growing older, and with our life expectancy years longer than in our grandad's day, the Minnesota Optometric Association took this occasion to advise that there are now almost 20 million Americans wearing bifocals and trifocals comfortably — almost a million of these being in Minnesota.

"There is no longer any need to literally fear the approaching use of bifocals," says Dr. A. E. Tillisch, Sr., Minneapolis, president of the optometric group. "They have been worn comfortably and profitably by many of your friends for a long while."

Dr. Tillisch pointed out that bifocals were invented by Benjamin Franklin while he was ambassador to France. It is said that he wanted one segment of the lens for near vision to see his food and another for distance to see friends across the table at social functions in Paris.

Tips for adapting to bifocal spectacles were released by Dr. Tillisch. He emphasizes these tips may aid in the conversion to the spectacles. Included are:

(1) Try not to look at your feet when walking. You never did before.

(2) When reading a newspaper, fold it into half or quarter size, and move it rather than your head until you can read comfortably.

(3) Be sure your frames are properly adjusted so that lenses are in the right position. Do not hesitate to return for proper adjustment.

(4) Wear your bifocals continuously for the first week or two until you become accustomed to them, even though you need them only for some tasks.

Maintenance men in eastern coal mines are heard calling these days for the "strawberry grease." A new lubricant for machinery, recently introduced into the mines was quickly named for its distinctive red coloration.

Rheumatic fever is almost preceded by "strep" infection (usually in the throat) and is often followed by rheumatic heart disease.

Doesn't that an awful price to pay for medicine?
Maybe...but it's worth there were ... to get well so quickly!

When your pharmacist hands you a small bottle of one of the "new" medicines and tells you the cost, it may seem like a high price to pay for a prescription.

But when you consider what these new medicines your doctor prescribes can do—in getting you well quicker, back on the job, earning money again—you realize what good value you're getting.

Due to the constant advances in medical science and the development of more potent drugs, a siege of sickness costs a person less today than ever before in history.

Twenty years ago, for example, hospital patients stayed an average of 14 days, as compared with 9 days average now. An appendicitis operation used to mean a hospital stay of 3 weeks—now it's usually 5 days. Hernia cases were usually hospitalized 21 days—now they're often home in a week. And pneumonia patients, if they survived, had to stay 3 to 6 weeks. Now they're usually home in a week—if they leave it at all!

Any way you look at it—in terms of saving days of hospital time, the fewer visits needed from your doctor, or your return to income-producing work much sooner—the money you spend for prompt and proper medical care can well turn out to be one of the really big bargains of your life.—Reprinted from a copyrighted advertisement published by Parke, Davis & Company, Detroit 32, Michigan.

Shootin' the Breeze

BY Mack Draper

About the quickest way we know of to start an argument is to say something about the weather, especially when the direction our storms travel is under discussion.

Most people think our storms come from the northwest. Our prevailing winds are northwesterly—but not our storms. These go from southwest to northeast for the most part.

Now don't go off the deep end about this—it isn't mere conjecture at all. That is a trait of our northerly latitudes. Any authority will tell you a tornado travels southwest to northeast almost every time. So does the storm that spawns a tornado.

Now we don't lay any claim to clairvoyance—but we could have told you that last Thursday's storm wasn't going to have much effect up here. Why? The answer is simple—those long, wispy streamers of cloud that always precede a storm of that kind across the sky were pointing at us from the south-southwest. (The) oldtimers used to call 'em "mare-tails."

If these had pointed this way almost straight from the west it would have meant the storm was much further north and in line with us. The direction they pointed indicated the storm center was much too far south to hit us as it roared along towards the northeastern part of the state.

If you don't believe this don't jump on us. We're just quoting the meteorology books!

"No," said teacher to the small boy, "I don't think your resignation from school would have enough effect on the crowded classroom conditions in our schools to make it worth while."

Don't feel bad if we have a few storms the rest of this month. Last year we had 'em in April so let's hope we DO have 'em now so we can get it over with!

One nice thing about living in a small town is that radicals seldom get enough of a following to cause trouble in local politics.

Pennington county farmers shouldn't have to fertilize much this year, with all that rich, Red River Valley topsoil blowing into the county these days. (But, what if they get assessed for owning North Dakota real estate—horrible thought!) So long!

CHATTING with your HOME AGENT

Homemakers are learning more about sewing these days, as the homemaker groups meet for the lesson on "Basic Sewing Methods." Our next lesson in the Extension Home Program is called "Backgrounds in Home Furnishings," and in it we'll study paints, rugs, and carpets, hard-surfaced floor coverings and wood finishes. If you're planning to buy new floor or wall coverings this spring, you'll find that this lesson will give you very sound advice.

A Career In Home Economics is much more than cooking and sewing. It includes the entire field of homemaking, and business, industry, government and education.

At the present time there are more openings for home economists than trained persons to fill them. The demand for home economics teachers alone exceeds the supply of graduates in home economics education about four to one and the situation is almost the same in a number of other fields of home economics. Even in those specializations where the need is less urgent, the girl with imagination and talent can create her own future.

At the University of Minnesota the School of Home Economics recognizes that many students will combine wage-earning professions with homemaking. Because of this dual interest, the the core courses which all home economics students take are planned to help them become more competent homemakers and better citizens.

Seven specializations in home economics are offered at the University of Minnesota. Each includes a core of courses which offers students a firm foundation in the liberal arts and sciences plus basic subjects in home economics. This gives them a solid grounding for the advanced courses they will take in preparation for their particular interest in home economics.

We'd like to encourage girls to plan a career in Home Economics. We have information at our office on the various fields in Home Economics, scholarships available, and bulletins to acquaint you with the Home Economics profession.

If your daughter is uncertain about her future, maybe she'd like to be a home economist. I'd like to talk with her—won't you ask her to come and see me?

What Do you Know About Wood Furniture.

Which is better, solid wood or veneer construction?

There are both kinds of construction on the market today and either may be good or bad depending on the actual construction and finishes used.

Solid wood construction is found usually in pieces made of pine, birch, maple, ash, oak, and cherry. Solid wood is more generally found in casual furniture for porch or cabin and in colonial reproductions that fit into many types of modern homes.

Veneer construction stretches a limited supply of fine cabinet woods. It makes possible attractive surface patterns through grain matching that would be impossible on solid construction.

A veneer is made by gluing thin layers of fine cabinet wood, such as mahogany, walnut, or rosewood, on a core of strong but less expensive wood.

A good veneer is beautiful, strong, and less liable to warp and split than solid wood. But if poor glue is used or if the process is improperly carried out, the result is a veneer job that may prove more costly in the long run than more expensive solid or veneer construction.

On all veneered pieces of wood there are some solid wood parts. Plywood or veneer is used on flat surfaces; solid wood is used for legs, frames, stretchers, rail, corner posts, and carved sections. Veneer construction is often found in the expensive reproductions of traditional furniture but it is also used in cheap furniture. So be sure to check style, construction, and finish when making your choice.

What Type Of Joining Is Best?

The joints of well made furniture are either doweled together or are joined by mortise and tenon construction. In drawers a dovetail type of construction is used.

In all of these the use of good glue is essential.

In dowel construction, the dowel is a wooden pin of hardwood. Strength is added if these pins are grooved either straight or spirally. A hole to fit this pin is bored in the pieces of wood to be joined, then the dowel and the hole are coated with glue, and the dowel is pressed into the hole. This type of construction is used in the finest furniture.

In mortise and tenon construction, the peg is an extension of one of the pieces to be joined. A socket to fit the peg is bored in the second piece. Joints made with dowel or with mortise and tenon construction are often reinforced with triangular blocks of wood glued and screwed into the corners.

In good furniture the drawers have dovetailed joinings at both front and back, side panels of chests are fitted snugly into grooved corner posts, and bottoms of drawers are fitted the same way into matching grooves on the four sides of the drawer.

Prowlers Edged Out by Bemidji in Region 8

A momentary lapse by the Prowlers' defense, which permitted Bemidji's unguarded Jim Johnson to dunk a lay-up shot into the east basket with 1:44 of the game remaining, provided the Lumberjacks with the game-winning point in a thrilling eighth regional basketball tournament finals game at Grand Forks on Friday night. Bemidji, on a pair of free throws by Bill Lawrence with fifteen seconds to play increased their game-winning margin to three points, defeating the Prowlers, 49 to 46.

Bemidji, for the fifth consecutive year, will represent the eighth region in the state tournament that opens today in Minneapolis. In a first round game, with tip-off time at 2:00 p.m., the Lumberjacks will face the defending state champion Minneapolis Roosevelt team.

In Friday night's thrill-packed regional finals, the highly-favored Bemidji Lumberjacks were hard-pressed, and fortunate, to eke out that three-point win over the Prowlers.

The Prowlers, after trailing by a 15 to 9 score at the end of the first period, racked up eight points, on a pair of field goals, by Keith Johnson and Dave Hanson, and free throws by Jim Bennes at Dave Hanson, to gain a 17 to 15 lead with 6:20 of the second period remaining. Jim Johnson and Bill Lawrence connected with jump shots, and the Jacks' led, 19 to 17. A free throw by Hanson and a field goal by Dave Rasmussen, scoring on a rebound, shoved the Prowlers into a one-point advantage, 20 to 19. The lead alternated by a one-point margin until the final minute when Bemidji's Bob Engle, pumping in a pair of long shots, gave the Jacks a 27 to 24 lead at the intermission.

Two quick Bemidji baskets, by Lawrence and Ray Cronk, in the opening minutes of the third period, gave the Jacks a 31 to 24 lead. Bemidji maintained their lead throughout the period, and the game score was 41 to 36 as the final period opened.

Marc Kolden tipped in a rebound, increasing the Bemidji lead to 43 to 36. Play became somewhat rough, with the players scrambling to obtain possession of the ball on the rebound.

Rasmussen looped in a Prowler field goal; Dave Hanson drove into the lane and scored on a lay-up; Hanson followed with another drive-in shot, and the Prowlers trailed by one, 43 to 42, with 3:58 to play. Phil Hanson flipped in a one-handed toss, giving the Prowlers a lead, 44 to 43. Keith Johnson, fouled by Lawrence, dropped in a pair of free throws, and the Prowlers had a 46 to 43 lead with 2:45 to play.

Cronk scored a Bemidji two-pointed, hitting a jump shot with 1:52 to play; and then Johnson scored what proved to be the game-winning basket.

In the final minute, Bemidji resorted to a stall in order to protect their lead, and the Prowlers were forced to commit a foul in order to obtain possession of the ball. Lawrence, though, converted on the free throw tries, giving Bemidji their 49 to 46 triumph.

Dave Hanson gained the game's individual scoring honors, scoring eight field goals and five free throws for a 21-point performance. Bemidji's Ray Cronk totaled 16 points for the Lumberjacks.

In a preliminary game, for the consolation honors, the Halstad Pirates, with Dale Olson scoring a total of 32 points, defeated the Kennedy Rockets, 85 to 68.

Thief River Falls and Bemidji won opening round games in the eighth regional basketball tournament competition at Grand Forks on Thursday night. The Prowlers, with rangy Dave Hanson scoring 39 points, turned in a strong second half to break the Kennedy Rockets' 26-game winning streak and defeat the 32nd district champions, 67 to 60. The defending champion Bemidji Lumberjacks took the measure of the Halstad Pirates, 80 to 59, also on a strong second half.

The Prowlers vs. Kennedy Rockets game, which was the tourney opener, was a thriller, with lead changing hands fourteen times before the Prowlers, late in the third period and early in the fourth, gained a point-lead that carried through the remainder of the game.

The locals, with Dave Hanson scoring the first eight points for the Prowlers, gained a 14 to 8 lead in the early part of the first period. Kennedy, with a late period thrust, and covering the rebounds well, edged past the Prowlers to hold a 17 to 16 edge at the end of the quarter.

In a tip-and-tuck second period, the Rockets protected that one-point margin to hold a 35 to 34 advantage at the intermission.

With score knotted at 40-all, and with five minutes of third period remaining, the Prowlers' nifty play-making guard, Keith Johnson, picked up, in quick order, his third and fourth personal foul, and coach Al Adams was forced to remove him from the game. Kennedy took advantage of this disruption in the Prowlers scheme of play to sprint away to a 50 to 42 lead with two minutes to go in the period. A pair of free throws by Dave Rasmussen, and a pair by Dave Hanson, plus a field goals by Jim Bennes pared the Rockets' lead to 50 to 48 at the period's end.

Dave Hanson's lay-up shot, in the opening minute of the fourthe period, tied the score at 50-all; and when Phil Hanson, on a side shot, flipped a field goal into the west basket, the Prowlers moved into the lead.

During this explosive outburst, during the final minutes of the third period and the first four minutes of the fourth period, the Prowlers outpointed the Rockets by an 18 to 2 margin. The Prowlers played the Rockets on even terms during the final four minutes of the game, to earn a deserved 67 to 60 triumph.

Dave Hanson, setting a school single game-scoring record of 39 points, was the game's high point player; but Hanson was pressed for scoring honors by Kennedy's diminutive Gary Olstad directed the floor play of the Rockets.

Post Mortems

First, let us not have any misunderstanding, we, together with all of the fans, are agreed that the basketball Prowlers turned in a magnificent performance against the touted Bemidji Lumberjacks in the regional finals on Friday night.

Their play in that game will linger long in the memory of the fans fortunate enough to be in attendance. It verged on the fantastic.

Think of it, here was a Prowler team that during the season had lost two games to Bemidji, by scores of 72 to 48 and 72 to 51, going into the final two minutes of the regional finals holding a 46 to 43 lead! Red Lake Falls' popular coach, Rusty Miller, had the word for it, "Amazing."

And as L. L. Tygeson, the former Fosston Greyhound and Hamline Piper player, and later a coach of the Crookston Pirates expressed it, "That was the finest regional tournament basketbal game I've seen in ten years." He was just right.

There were a number of "key" plays upon which the outcome of the game was decided. For instance, a couple of "quick whistles" by the officals nullified a pair of Prowler baskets in the first half; Bob Engle came off the Bemidji bench to drop in a pair of long shots just at the end of their first half, giving the Jacks their 27 to 24 lead at the intermission; Dave Hanson was having a "cold" spell on his shooting during the first half, especially during the first period, with a number of his shots rimming off the hoop.

This is the game which we will use as a reminder to deflate the basketball ego of the Bemidji fans.

The All-Regional

We spent much of last Thursday and Friday maneuvering around in the men's locker room of the University of North Dakota fieldhouse, eavesdropping on coaches' conversation, questioning the tournament officials, and taking copious notes. And it all adds up to what we believe would be a representative all-regional basketball tournament squad.

Here it is: forward, Ray Cronk of Bemidji; forward, Dale Olson of Halstad; center, Dave Hanson of Thief River Falls; guard, Gary Olstad of Kennedy; and guard, Keith Johnson of Thief River Falls.

About Cronk and Olson and Hanson and Olstad there wasn't a quibble; but a few of the Bemidji adherents were positive in their arguments in behalf of guard Bill Lawrence. Lawrence is, along with lanky Ray Cronk, a valued member of the Lumberjacks; but we don't believe that he outshone the Prowlers' nifty play-making guard during their regional tourney. Lawrence, unquestionably is a better outside shot than Johnson, but he doesn't have floor-play ability of the Prowler. It was largely through the efforts of Johnson that Bemidji's famed all-court press lacked it's usual effectiveness. In fact, Bemidji's Bun Fortier didn't permit his team to press aggressively, and that's the first time in seevral years that we've seen a Lumberjack team "tamed."

A Pair of Six-enders

So that the historian of the local curling club will have the facts available, we'll report that Wally Tunberg's rink scored a six-ender against Russ Embury's rink, and that Roy Lee's rink also scored a six-ender, against Dr. Wally Lamb's rink.

Wally's rink, shooting first stone, had seven rocks in the house and counting when Russ tossed his last stone. Russ managed to knock out one of Tunberg's rocks, but Wally's rink tallied a big six. The Tunberg rink defeated the Embury rink, 18 to 3, in a matche that was called after eight ends of play.

The Times will not be printing a picture of Russ in a curling pose this week.

The Roy Lee rink, in trouncing the Wally Rink, scored a 17 to 1, and narrowly missed scoring a shutout, with the Warren boys counting a point on the 8th and final end.

Unlike Stumphill

We'll sell our share of Willmar's state high school basketball championship very cheaply. Willmar came a "cropper" by losing to the high-powered Minneapolis Roosevelt team in a Region Five finals game on Saturday night, dropping a 63 to 59 decision to the defending state champions.

Doug Tegtmeier claims to be from Blomkest this week. And, too, he has left town to avoid paying off on his coffee wagers.

Well, that means, of course, that Minneapolis Roosevelt will go on to win the state championship.

Wally Tunberg Rink Wins City Bonspiel

The Wally Tunberg rink, with Cliff Jorde at lead, Curt Swanson at second, Wally Tunberg at third, and Len Furuseth at skip, won the championship event in the all-city bonspiel that was concluded at the Arena on Sunday night. In the finals, the Tunberg rink, by a 11 to 6 score, defeated the Bill Rupprecht rink. Members of the Rupprecht rink were Al Iverson at lead, Everett Amundsgaard at second, Gerry Amundsgaard at third, and Rupprecht at skip.

In the consolation, or second event, the Lawrence Lubitz rink, with Harold Halvorson at lead, Clebert Moistad at second, Jim Muzzy at third, and Lubitz at skip, defeated the Roy Lee rink in the finals, 14 to 8. Instrumental in giving the Lubitz their triumph over the Lee squad was a "seven-ender" that they posted in the 4th end.

In winning their city title, the Tunberg rink defeated Tom Cochrane in a first round match on Saturday night, defeated Ray Streamline Olson in a quarter-finals match on Sunday morning, and eliminated the Russ Embury rink in the semi-finals.

The Bill Rupprecht opened the competition by defeating the Roy Lee rink in a first round match, then edged out the highly-rated Al Thompson rink, and followed with a win over the equally highly-ranked Ed DeLap quint before bowing to Tunberg in the finals.

In the second event play, Lubitz defeated John Oven and Justus Larson in preliminary matches before defeating Roy Lee in the finals. Lee gained the finals by defeating Art Moe and Dr. Wally Lamb.

The finals cards:

(First Event)

Wally Tunberg 101 030 330 1—11
Bill Rupprecht 010 102 002 0— 6

(Second Event)

Lawrence Lubitz 000 700 321 1—14

In Minnesota,
The BREWING INDUSTRY has kept progress with the state.

Minnesota's first settlers carved out a civilization from this forest wilderness.

In those days it was fur trading, lumbering, and farming that occupied a majority of those pioneers.

And shortly after came the brewing industry — transported literally by picturesque river steamboats.

A century has passed now and the economy of the state has undergone many changes. Fur trading has long ago ceased being a factor. Great railroads have been built.

On the canvas of progress has been painted iron mining, tourist trade and manufacturing.

These take their places now on the scene, along with farming — still in the forefront. And still very much in the picture, too, the brewing of beer.

Here is an industry that began with the state and progressed through 100 years, meeting each test of change, yet keeping the traditions and heritage that formed the firm foundations of economy upon which Minnesota's wealth and development are based.

Minnesota beers are as fine and as popular today as they were among those early pioneers. The industry has grown with the state.

And Minnesotans have benefited.

Cites Penalties for Those Who Underpay Federal Income Tax

A. R. Knox, director of internal revenue for Minnesota, today called to the attention of taxpayers the penalty which may apply to those who substantially underpaid their estimated Federal income tax during 1956.

Mr. Knox explained that, in many cases, the 18% withholding tax rate does not fully take care of the wage earner's final tax liability. Moreover, there is no withholding of tax on income other than wages. To provide for current payment of taxes not collected through withholding, the law provides for declarations of estimated tax. The estimated return is filed on Form 1040-ES by individuals in certain income categories which are specified by law.

In the case of an underpayment of estimated tax by an individual, a penalty of 6% per annum, based on the amount and duration of the underpayment, may be added to the final tax. The penalty is computed on the difference between 70% (66 2/3% in the case of farmers) of the amount which should have been paid and the amount actually paid.

Mr. Knox pointed out, however, that the law specifies four cases in which this penalty will not be applied, even though the taxpayer may have under-estimated his tax substantially. The most common of these four exceptions is where the taxpayer's estimate and payments were based on his prior year's tax. This exception and the other three exceptions are outlined on a special form (Form 2210) that is available on request from local offices of the Internal Revenue Service. Form 2210 enables taxpayers to determine whether they underpaid their estimated tax and, if so, whether they qualify for waiver of the penalty under any of the four exceptions.

Mr. Knox requested that taxpayers who find that more than 30% of their total tax for 1956 must be paid with their final return file Form 2210 along with their Form 1040. He said that, without this form, it is difficult for the revenue service to determine whether a taxpayer's case comes within one of the four exceptions without contacting the taxpayer directly for additional information.

New Hybrid Onion Proves Superior

'U' Extension Service Reports on 5-Year Tests

Hybrid onions may some day place the old standard Yellow Globe types in both commerical and home gardens.

In tests conducted over a five-year period by the University of Minnesota agricultural extension service, hybrid onions produced larger yields, showed more uniform maturity and reduced field and storage losses.

Orrin C. Turnquist, extension horticulturist at the University of Minnesota, reported that the hybrid onions tested in commerical storage held up well without sprouting, maintained attractive color and retained their skins. They also proved highly resistant to storage diseases.

The hybrid Autumn Spice rated superior to standard types as an onion suitable for home gardens. Quick growth, mildness in flavor, firmness and storability were among its desirable characteristics.

Commerical varieties of hybrids that proved most successful in Minnesota trials were Abundance, Encore, Epoch and Elite. They were tested in the two principal onion-growing areas in Minnesota— the peatland soils of southern Minnesota and the heavy soils of the Red River Valley.

Seed of Autumn Spice, Abundance, Encore, Epoch and Elite will be available to growers this spring.

TIPS ON PAINTING INTERIOR WALLS
by Bud Kelly

Today almost anyone can paint interior walls like a professional with the new, improved paints, brushes and rollers.

Most of our paint customers tell us they can do a better job — and in less than half the time — if they use a roller instead of a brush. If you use a roller be sure to paint the corners and edges of the wall first with a 1½" or 2" brush. Then take your roller and paint the wall from top to baseboard in three to four foot strips.

If you prefer a brush, be sure to pick a good one. We usually recommend a good quality 3½" or 4" wall brush. Start in the upper right-hand corner of the wall you're going to paint. Carry a three or four foot strip (just like you do with a roller) down to the baseboard. Repeat the process until you have finished the room.

Be sure to use a fairly generous amount of paint in your brush. Flow the paint on. Don't try to stretch it out too thin. Never dip more than one-third of the brush into the paint can.

What's the best kind of paint to use? You can't go wrong with our Super Kemtone. It goes on smoothly, covers beautifully, is washable and has no unpleasant paint smell. And Super Kemtone is thinned with water instead of turpentine making it much easier to clean rollers and brushes.

We hope these basic hints will be helpful. If you have any questions, come in and talk them over. We'll be glad to help.

Music In The Local Schools

By Miss Lois Runge

The people of the United States are finding that they have more and more leisure time. They are filling this with a variety of activities. One of the activities that they are turning to in this leisure is music. People in ever increasing numbers are taking part in the musical activities of listening, singing, and playing instruments. The number of record clubs and other music clubs being formed shows an increasing interest in music on the part of adults. The music departments of our schools are trying to meet this growing interest in music by offering an enriched music program for the students, a program that will develop music appreciation and enjoyment. This program begins in the grades and continues through the high school.

The elementary music program begins this teaching of appreciation. It lays the foundation for the whole music program. The main objective of the program in the grades is to develop appreciation of music so that the students will enjoy music participation now and later. An enjoyment of music, once acquired, continues to grow. The elementary schools have two main considerations in their approach to the development of music enjoyment: to interest the child in music participation and to teach the child music skills. It is believed that a varied program of activities in many types of music will give the best background.

Although the music program is closely connected as a whole it may be divided into serveral different areas. The elementary schools work with the overlapping fields of singing, rhythm work, listening, activities, instrumental music, and music reading. The earlier work in music is usually concentrated on the singing and rhythm activities. Of the many music activities, singing is one of the most used after the school years and so plays a large part in the program. Most authorities recommend that the greater part of the time be spent on vocal music in the grades. Singing is considered the most natural form of musical self-expression. Children easily make up short melodies to go with their play. Even though this is true, many children beginning kindergarten must be taught to sing. Learning to sing is mainly a development of the ear, of hearing the difference in sounds. Most children learn to sing in tune by singing many different types of songs, playing tone matching games, and listening to music. The child who does not seem able to sing a melody after many music activities is very rare. Most children simply need practice. After a child has learned to sing in a group, individual singing is encouraged. By the fourth grade enough independence has been gained so two-part music may be begun. To give the children more practice in part singing, choruses for the fifth and sixth graders have been formed in each elementary school. Most of the work done in the choruses is in two parts. In the sixth grade some three-part music is introduced. All these activities are aimed at fostering a continuing interest in singing.

Closely connected with the singing program is rhythm activity. Rhythmic movements also are a medium of self-expression. The feeling for rhythm is to a large extent acquired through the singing activities but many special activities are also used. Beginning in kindergarten, rhythm activities include vigorous actions to music such as marching and skipping and quieter finger actions. These activities work together to develop rhythmic feeling and coordination. The upper grades continue rhythm work with rhythm games and folk dances. In kindergarten the children are first introduced to rhythm band in which they use simple percussion instruments such as drums, triangles, and sticks. These rhythm activities are another source of musical enjoyment and so develop music appreciation.

Many adults continue listening to music rather than performing music themselves. In preparation for later listening pleasure, the elementary schools try to help the children become interested and intelligent listeners. Records, although a large source of listening material, are not the only source. The children are encouraged to listen to each other and to other performing groups. Different types of listening lessons are used as listening may be approached in many different ways. Listening may be done simply for enjoyment, for instrumental recognition, for special musical effects, for different musical moods, or as an example of the music of a certain composer. To give a good listening background, more information is presented each year about composers, performers, and the instruments of the band and orchestra. Film strips, pictures, charts, and the instruments themselves are used to increase interest in listening.

Listening to instruments on records serves as an introduction to the playing of the instruments themselves. String lessons are begun in the fourth grade. At this time the children are also introduced to wind instruments by the formation of flutophone bands in the classrooms. In the way the children get an idea of the skills needed in playing a wind instrument before beginning band lessons in the fifth grade. The grade school orchestras and bands give more opportunity for work with instruments.

The last area, that of music reading begins with the first recognition that notes may be different in sound. Usually the children are ready to begin reading music in the second grade. The main objective is to develop music reading to such an extent that the student may sing or play new music without help. The ability to do this greatly increases adult enjoyment of music participation. Practice is given in reading both vocal and instrumental music. The development of music reading is continued in the high school work.

All the musical activities are correlated with the other classroom subjects whenever possible. This is easily done in many fields. For example, songs of the different countries are learned as the countries are being studied. Often songs deal with the same subject area that is being studied. Music may even be correlated with science in the study of sound.

As a child takes an active part in the different music areas he comes a long way on the road to music appreciation. The training of his natural inclination toward musical expression makes music more and more enjoyable. Each child has his own pattern of musical growth as he has his own manner of self-expression. The elementary school music program seeks to guide this pattern so that it results in the greatest possible development of the child's musical talent. The further training in the high school will continue to bring out the individual music pattern of the student by building on his foundation of elementary music.

SPECIAL SESSION TALK

Governor Freeman is letting it be known "quietly," we are informed under banner headlines, that he prefers a special legislative session to consider his tax program rather than accept a compromise measure from the present regular session. If he were to press us for an opinion we would venture to suggest that he probably would emerge from the argument looking much more like a winner if he takes what he can get from the regular session.

In a special session he would have the same legislature to deal with, and that legislature would have before it the same set of facts. We can see no reason for him to hope that his program would be more acceptable under such conditions than they are now.

The basic weakness of the governor's tax program is that it takes into consideration only the immediate needs. By the juggling of several windfall balances and anticipated windfall revenue it is possible to finance the greatly increased spending program he proposes quite painlessly for the next two years.

Conservative members of the legislature, however, are concerned about the long-range financing problem. They know that any new high levels of state spending that are established will become continuing obligations that some future administration will have to deal with realistically.

There is a feeling among many legislators, in both the liberal and conservative groups, that we are headed for a general sales tax. The more outspoken in both groups admit that all the talk about solving our tax problems by shifting the load from here to there and bringing tax relief for everyone is just so much poppycock. Few are being fooled by this kind of drivel.

In a special session, called to deal with various proposals for spending and taxing, these overall problems would be spotlighted, and the real issues would be brought out in clearer focus. Our guess is that, with better knowledge of the facts, the public's reaction would not be favorable to the governor's plan.

PAYING FOR POSTAL SERVICE

Postmaster General Summerfield is asking again for increases in postal rates as a means of reducing the operating deficit of the department which now is running at about two-thirds of a billion dollars a year.

While we are not thrilled with the prospects of paying more for postal service we can see no good reason why the charges for this service should not be increased sufficiently to meet the costs.

To whatever extent we do not pay these costs when we buy stamps we will be forced to contribute when we pay our taxes. We think the right time to pay for this service is at the time the service is performed, and those who use the service are the people who should do the paying.

Our good friends, the spenders in Congress, will of course have a different idea on this question. We look forward to their letters telling us that they have opposed the proposed increases because they know we cannot afford to pay such high prices for a service that the government ought to provide for free.

GREAT POSSIBILITIES

President J. L. Morrill and the regents of the University of Minnesota are going to give determined opposition to a proposed new Big 10 aid-to-athletes program, and in this crusade they have our best wishes for success sincerely yours. They are opposed to the plan because it would provide financial assistance to outstanding athletes without regard for their scholastic capacity or achievement.

We are satisfied that their position is in the best interests of collegiate athletic competition, which after all should be merely incidental to the serious business of acquiring an education. Many of us are beginning to think that this form of extra-curricular activity is already over-emphasized and in some instances much too much commercialized.

If, however, President Morrill and the regents fail to hold the line in this approach to the problem we suggest that they go all-out in building their athletic department on a commercial basis. They should be prepared to pick up the Lakers, now being offered, according to Minneapolis sports writers, at a ridiculously low price. And they might consider that franchise a few St. Paul promoters are working over, for a ready-to-show Canadian hockey team.

Professional football is having a few difficulties with the law at the present time but there still are some possibilities in baseball. Several of the major league clubs are looking for a new location and wouldn't it be wonderful if our dear old Minnesota could be represented in one of the big leagues. With the taxing power of our state behind it there is no good reason why our University should not be a world's series contender two years out of three, which would at least keep the University boosters of Minneapolis happy two-thirds of the time.

Wool Growers Plan Garment Contest

Trip to Europe Offered as Top Prize in Event

Some lucky Minnesota girl may be the winner of a fabulous trip to the fashion capitals of the world through the efforts of the Minnesota Wool Growers association and the Minnesota Farm Bureau. These two organizations are jointly sponsoring Minnesota's "Make It Yourself With Wool" contest which is designed to encourage more sewing in the home and also increase wool consumption. Minnesota ranks 13th in the nation in wool production and so Minnesota farmers would also benefit from any increase in demand for their product.

Eighteen states are participating in this project which covers over half the area of the United States with the Wool Bureau and various wool associations as sponsors. Contestants compete in one of three divisions—junior, for girls between the ages of 14 and 17; senior, for girls between the ages of 18 and 22, and sub-deb, for girls between the ages of 13 and 15.

The sub-deb division includes awards for all-wool jumpers or skirt-and-vest combinations as well as skirts. It is designed to interest the younger girl in sewing and help prepare her for participation in the larger competition, which includes dresses, suits, coats or ensemble of virgin wool fabric.

Top national awards for the junior and senior divisions are two-week-expense-paid tours of Europe's fashion centers via Pan American World Airways. Other prizes include scholarships, U. S. savings bonds, sewing machines, fabric lengths, and many more valuable awards.

In addition to state and national awards, there are many district prizes awarded in the preliminary finals to be held in each district in the early fall. Winners in state finals to be held in November receive trips to Salt Lake City where national competitions will be held. Trip expenses are presented by the F. W. Woolworth Company.

Contest directors include Mrs. G. Milford Peterson, Crookston. For further information contact Ethel Gustafson, Minnesota Wool Growers, Wadena, Minnesota.

REPORT from the GOVERNOR

by Orville L. Freeman

One important problem now under consideration by our state legislature relates to services for exception children. The 1955 Legislature appointed an interim commission to study and recommend measures to help handicapped children. The Governor's Committee on Exceptional Children has also made studies and recommendations. As a result, we hope to provide, at this session, better services than ever before.

The 'Exceptional' Child

The Governor's Committee uses the term "exceptional children" to include those who are unusually gifted in ability as well as those whose physical or mental handicaps are such that they need special attention, training, or care. Some of these are mentally retarded in varying degrees. Some are crippled, blind, or deaf. It is estimated that about 50,000 children in Minnesota could be classified as "exceptional".

Services Provided

It is estimated that only about one-fourth of these now get educational opportunities adequate to meet their special needs. Yet, on a per pupil basis, Minnesota probably speds as much money in its total program of special education as any state in the nation. But we need to do more.

Supervision and Guidance

One great need is more adequate specialized guidance services from the state communities that are trying to provide adequate special education. Minnesota now compares unfavorably with other states in the amount of professional staff assistance provided. I am recommending that the professional staff dealing with exceptional children in the State Department of Education be very substantially increased. We need at least four full time experts, instead of the services, not even full time at present, of only one.

The State Department of Education has already, as of last month adopted a re-organization plan that establishes a division of special education to provide this new and augmented leadership.

Advisory Committee

We also need legislation to provide for the very modest expenses incurred by the Advisory committee. This committee must not only study the needs of handicapped children, but it must coordinate programs and advise state agencies now operating in the field,—the Department of Education, the Department of Welfare, and the Department of Health.

Stimulating Districts

We also need legislation to encourage school districts to provide special education for all educable handicapped children; and to provide training and care for those mentally retarded children who, while not educable, can be expected to gain by such training and care.

I am convinced that anything we can do to provide more adequately for these exceptional children is an investment well worth the best efforts of the people of Minnesota.

Poultry

Roosts aren't always necessary for laying hens. Some producers perfer eliminating roosts to leave the floor open for work and cleaning.

But getting along without them calls for a bit, wee-ventilated house and careful management to keep the litter dry.

Research in some states has shown that hens can maintain normal production and stay healthy in roostless houses. But not having roost will create some problems. There will be no pits to collect droppings. That can result in wet litter, making it difficult to keep the eggs clean.

With a roostless house, a flock owner would need a well-insulated and well-ventilated building at least 28-30 feet wide, so that hens have a bigger choice of floor area and have a better chance to avoid any drafty areas. It would be necessary to use an absorbent litter, such as ground corn cobs, or shavings.

Without roosts, you would also need to turn the lights off abruptly at night, so that hens won't crowd together. If you first dim the lights, then turn them out later, the birds are apt to move back into one area. That might result in some of the hens' "piling up" and smothering birds underneath.

Finally, with a roostless house you would have to make certain the hens had no other place to roost. That would mean no crossbars on feeders and waterers. Nests would need hinged crosspieces that could be turned up to block the nest entrance at night. Otherwise, hens would roost on the feeders, waterers and in the nests, and there would be a sanitation problem.

Insects

A mixture of methoxychlor and Crag Fly Repellent may be a good weapon against stable flies on dairy cattle this summer.

That mixture—called "F-21"—reduced the number of stable flies by 83 per cent on dairy cattle during the day it was applied in 1956 tests.

When methoxychlor was sprayed alone on cattle, the reduction in numbers of stable flies was only about one-third on the day of spraying, reports L. K. Cutkomp, University of Minnesota entomologist. In all tests, chemicals were applied with a "pump-up" hand sprayer. This research was conducted at the North Central Experiment Station, Grand Rapids, and at the Northeast Experiment Station, Duluth.

Animals sprayed with malathion, another insecticide, had more stable flies than untreated animals, but when the research workers mixed malathion with Crag Fly Repellent, it did reduce the numbers of stable flies. And malathion alone was effective against horn flies and house flies.

Research workers sprayed cattle in the morning after milking in all tests. They sprayed the cattle a weekly intervals from late June until the end of August.

Effect on stable flies dropped rapidly by the second and third days after treatment for both the F-21 and the methoxychlor treatments. As a result, Cutkomp says it's better to spray dairy cattle twice rather than just once a week in summer where bitting flies are a problem.

Stable flies were the most bothersome biting insects around dairy herds last summer at the Duluth and Grand Rapids stations. All chemicals tested gave good control on ordinary house flies, but those insects don't bite and therefore don't keep cattle eating as do stable flies.

Fertilizer

—Why can't fertilizers contain 100 per cent plant food?

The reason is that plant foods need carriers to keep them in stable form.

But you can be sure that every bag of commercial fertilizer you buy contains at least 27 percent plant food. That minimum percentage was established by a 1949 law passed by the Minnesota Legislature.

Last year, the average fertilizer sold in Minnesota contained more than 42 per cent plant food. The first number in the analysis on the bag shows the percent of actual nitrogen that's contained in the fertilizer. Elemental nitrogen must be kept under pressure or kept very cold or it will evaporate immediately. That's why it needs a carrier.

The second number in the analysis shows the percent of phosphate in the fertilizer. Phosphate is actually a chemical compound that contains phosphorous, the plant food.

Pure phosphorus would burn if it were to come into contact with air. It must be given to plants with a carrier.

The third number tells you how much potash is in the bag. Potash requires a carrier, too. It reacts explosively with water in its natural form.

Serving Committees Should Keep Records of Community Meals

Church organizations and other groups that serve community meals would find a system of records helpful for efficient planning and purchasing of food, says Miss Marge Olsen, county home agent.

Lack of continuity among people working on the food committee is the big problem of such groups, and this is the reason well-kept records are so important. According to Lucille Streator, assistant professor of home economics and manager of the agricultural cafeteria at the University of Minnesota, there are five things every organization should have in a good kitchen record system — record sheets for each function, record cards for each article purchased, recipe file, a file of past menus and a buying guide list.

A record sheet, kept in a loose-leaf notebook, should contain such information as date, function, chairman's name, number served, time of service, menu, quantities purchased and quantities left over, net cost of purchases, price per guest and total income, number of workers and time involved. It should include problems which arose as well as solutions to them.

Record cards for each purchase should show the size of the can or package, number of packages, date dealer, brand name and information about quality. Individual cards should be kept in an indexed file. This file would help each committee purchase the size and quality most useful for their purposes.

Another important part of a record system is a recipe file. This can be built up gradually and should contain only successes. Each recipe should be typewritten, should state quantities in useful amounts and have a clear description of ingredients and measures. Precise amounts are essential. The recipe should also indicate the size of the portion number of people served, the yield and exact length of cooking time. The card should be big enough to allow for additions or corrections and still remain legible. The recipe should be checked carefully so it contains no errors. Marking the source of the recipe on the card helps avoid repitition and confusion.

A file of past menus with helpful suggestions about changes or improvements is another good reference for food committees.

A buying guide is a list of food products showing units of purchase and expected yields certain sized portions of that food. Such lists can be built up out of various committee's experiences and added to from time to time. Another good idea is to use the lists assembled be different food manufacturers which are available for distribution on request. These lists also contain ideas for new foods to use.

Lyle Guttu on House Committee at Harvard

Guttu is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Guttu of this city.

Guttu is a new member-at-large of the committee. Jazz and chamber music concerts on alternate Sundays, Spring Weekend, and the 25th anniversary jubilee of Leverett House are some of the highlights of the committee's plans.

Leverett House is one of the seven houses in which Harvard upperclassmen reside. Each house has its own master, tutors, library, dining hall, and common rooms.

Freeman and Thye Support United Appeal March 31

Campaign for Overseas Relief to Be Conducted in Protestant Churches

Characterizing the 1957 "One Great Hour of Sharing" United Appeal as "designed to help meet the pressing needs of unfortunate people," and as "a remarkable opportunity to demonstrate our friendship for the freedom loving peoples of the world," Minnesota's Governor Orville L. Freeman and U. S. Senator Edward J. Thye have wholeheartedly endorsed this ninth annual cooperative effort of major Protestant churches in America to provide assistance for distressed and needy people of foreign lands.

The "One Great Hour of Sharing" appeal for funds to provide food, clothing, and medicines for the hungry, homeless and destitute abroad, as well as for relief, rehabilitation and reconstruction programs, will be made in the churches of Minnesota and in thousands of others in the U. S. on Sunday, March 31, under the sponsorship of Church World Service, National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U. S. A.

More than $11,500,000 will be required in 1957 for individual denominational projects and for joint programs in which the churches cooperate through Church World Service in their ministry of compassion to those in distress overseas.

Part of the funds will finance processing, shipping and distribution of clothing donated through service centers, the distribution of foods collected by the Christian Rural Overseas Program (CROP) of Church World Service and distribution of U. S. surplus foods.

The resettlement of refugees in this country as well as abroad is aided through this appeal. Funds raised also support long-term health and nutrition programs, self-help projects, vocational training, and other ministries to the homeless and destitute.

Major areas of need covered by the 1957 United Appeal include Korea, the Near East, India, Pakistan, Japan, Greece, Hong Kong, Italy, France, Egypt, Germany, and Austria, as well as the Hungary and Eastern Europe refugee areas.

Oil Company Cuts Fuel Oil ½ Cent

Standard Oil Company has cut tank-wagon prices to consumers by ½ cent a gallon for domestic heating oils, kerosene, diesel fuels and related products in the Thief River Falls area effective Thursday, March 14. The reductions were announced by A. K. Reed, manager of the Duluth division for Standard. Prices had been raised 1 cent a gallon on January 10th following an increase in crude oil prices.

"The lower prices follow recent reductions in wholesale prices and a falling demand for these products," Reed said.

City Expected to Require Additional Power by Next Fall

After having had the matter under consideration for an extended period, the city council at its March meeting Tuesday evening approved a contract with the Minnkota Power cooperative, whereby, starting next November the agency will start supplying this city with firm power that will be needed to augment the output of the municipal plant.

As outlined in the Times last Thursday, the contract calls for Minnkota to extend its lines to this city and construct a substation at a cost of about $150,000, for which it will be reimbursed by the city at the rate of $1,500 per month. The city will pay one cent per kilowatt for what power it may require.

At the request of the Midwestern Gas Transmission Co. of Texas, which in February, 1956, had contracted to supply Thief River Falls with natural gas when it becomes available, the council voted to approve a proposal calling for a slightly higher charge for gas than had been offered previously. The company explained that the Tennessee Gas Transmission Co., from which Midwestern receives its supply of gas, had recently increased its charges.

After opening and considering four bids on a power street sweeper ranging from $9,400 to $11,900, the council laid them over for further study. Dorr-Oliver Inc. of St. Paul was awarded the contract to supply sludge heating equipment for the municipal sewage treatment plant on its bid of $2,113, lowest of two received.

The council voted approval of a proposal by Mayor O. D. Beich that he appoint a citizens' committee of about ten members to make a study of the city's street problems and submit recommendations for their solution. City Engineer Douglas Stewart and City Attorney Robert A. Wurst will serve the committee in an advisory capacity.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce, which is arranging for its second annual Teen-age Road-e-o Saturday, Mary 11, was granted the use of the city parking lot on the east side of LaBree av. at First st., as well as a portion of the adjoining street.

Building permits were approved for Grundy Aakhus to remodel the lower floor of his building on LaBree av., combining the space to be vacated by the Fountain with the present quarters of Grundy's Office Supply; and also to Mrs. John Lang for residence remodeling.

The matter of setting up two-hour parking restrictions on Fourth st. east from Main av. to Horace av. was discussed, but action was deferred pending a study of other new areas that might be included.

On recommendation of Fire Chief Roy Langevin, the fire department was brought up to its full strength of nine men by adding Jack McGill and Richard O'Hara. Loren Borsheim and Lawrence Hemmesch were named regular volunteer members succeeding Morris Lasell and Philip Schmitz, veteran firemen.

The council also authorized two members of the department to attend the annual fire school at the University of Minnesota April 22 to 26.

C. of C. Meeting Tonight Canceled

Don L. Olson, president of the Chamber of Commerce, stated that the regular meeting scheduled for this evening has been canceled owing to inability to secure the speaker who had been sought. The next meeting will be held Thursday, April 18.

Omnibus Tax Measure Now in Legislature

The big omnibus package tax bill, which Gov. Freeman said would save individuals, business and agriculture more than 21 million dollars a year in taxes, was introduced in the Minnesota Legislature Monday.

The governor said the bill, if passed, would balance the budget.

Freeman held a news conference attended by the eight legislators who are authors of the bill just before the measure was introduced in the House and Senate.

These changes have been made in the recommendations of the Governor's Tax Study Committee.

1. Married working couples may file either separate or joint income tax returns. The Tax Study Committee recommended compulsory joint returns.

2. Medical expenses may be deducted. The committee urged elimination of this deduction.

3. Corporate income taxes raised 1.7 per cent or an additional two million dollars a year.

4. The alternative apportionment formula, under which manufacturers allocate their net income of sales, property and payroll, is changed. The bill gives "double weight" to sales outside the state, with the original 70 per cent formula figure cut to 50 per cent.

Individuals, agriculture and business "actually will save $21,200,00 a year in tax relief," Gov. Freeman said.

The breakdown, verified in Gov. Freeman's office by Tax Commissioner Joe Robertson, is this:

Individual tax payers now will save $6,700,000 instead of 4,200,000, as originally contemplated.

Business will save $8,400,000 instead of $10,400,000, with the increase on corporate income.

Agriculture will save $6,100,000, the original provision remaining unchanged.

Freeman explained that the bill calls for reenactment of both temporary and bonus taxes passed two years ago.

Majority Leader Fred A. Cina of Aurora, one of the authors, said the withholding tax bill, calling for a pay-as-you-go system, is part of the tax savings picture. The bill already has been passed in the House and is pending in a Senate committee.

Harold Hagen, Ex-Congress Member, Dies

6-term Ninth Dist. Congressman Dies in Washington at 55

Harold C. Hagen, former Minnesota Ninth district congressman and a native of Crookston, Minn., died in Washington Tuesday of a heart attack. He was 55 years old.

Hagen died in the Congressional Hotel where he maintained an office. He was stricken following attendance at a morning hearing before the House post-office committee, of which he was once a member.

At the time of his death he was a public relations counselor, representing postal and other groups under civil service.

Hagen was elected to office in 1942 and served six terms, retiring in 1954 after his defeat by Rep. Coya Knutson of Oklee. He was stricken with a mild heart attack last fall during a campaign in which he attempted a political comeback against Mrs. Knutson.

Hagen, born Nov. 10, 1901 in Crookston, was a product of its schools and of St. Olaf Colege at Northfield. He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Hagen. He graduated from Crookston Central high school and, before matriculating at St. Olaf, traveled and worked in various capacities throughout the country. He worked his way through college at odd jobs and graduated in 1927 with a B.A. degree.

Before he launched his political career, he taught civics and history at Mandan, N. D., high school, where he was also assistant athletic coach. For several years he published the Polk County Leader, weekly newspaper at Crookston.

He married the former Audrey Melton in Mandan in 1928 and they were parents of two children. A son, Harold M., is a medical student in Washington and a daughter, Andora, is employed in Washington.

Other survivors include four brothers, George, with the State Department, Norman, with the U. S. Weather Bureau, Alfred, Palmer, Alaska, and Adolph, Falls Church, Va., three sisters, Mrs. Ida Kirn, Council Bluffs, Ia., Mrs. Mildred Norman, Minneapolis, and Mrs. Audrey Foley, Falls Church, and one grand child.

The former Ninth district representative, following his defeat in 1954, opened a public relations and legislative advisory office here. Since then the Hagens had spent some of their time at their vacation cottage at Roy Lake in their home region.

Twice in his five re-elections to office, Hagen had scored record majorities in returning to his post.

Impact of the collision knocked the truck 66 feet across the ditch and into a field, yet, two men working near the front of the truck somehow escaped injury. Halme was dead on arrival at Northwestern Hospital here.—Warren Sheaf photo.

Driver, Passenger Killed, 3 Rescuers Electrocuted Today

In one of the most tragic highway mishaps in the history of Northwestern Minnesota, the driver of a car and one of his seven passengers were killed and three young men who came to their rescue were electrocuted when a car driven by Wm. E. Schultz, 28, of Winger, ran off Highway 59 one mile north of Bejou at 1:15 this morning, clipping off a power line pole and coming to rest in the water-filled ditch.

Killed in the accident were Schultz, and a passenger, Donald Haugen, 21, also of Winger, while the six other occupants of the car were taken to Crookston hospitals for treatment of their injuries.

A power line from the broken pole apparently fell into the water, and three young men who stopped at the scene to render assistance were electrocuted when they either came in contact with the wire or received the charge thru the water.

The three were Marvin Dubuque Jr., 18, of Fosston; Orville Rolf, 18, also of Fosston; and Clark Holdahl, 21, of Winger.

The hospitalized passengers in the Schultze car included Marie Lundberg, 14; Josephine Lundberg, 15, Marian Olson, 18; and Sharon Welberg, 14, all of Fosston; Arlene Nelson, 17, of Erskine; and James Hoyerman, 21, of Winger. Dr. Shasson of Erskine rendered first aid to the injured.

Marshall County Child Strangled

Four-year-old Loses Life in Odd Accident

A rural Marshall county child died Wednesday afternoon in a freak accident that occurred as he and his brothers and sisters were playing around a pickup truck on their parents' farm about 8 miles northwest of Newfolden.

Peter Ronald Watterworth, 4 yrs. 10 mos. old, apparently was looking through the narrow back window of the old-model pickup truck from the inside when he slipped and hung himself, according to what the other children told Peter's father, William Watterworth.

Watterworth told Marshall county Sheriff Oscar Erickson he checked the time before he found Peter hanging by his chin and neck and that apparently the lad had hanged himself a few minutes after 4 p.m. Watterworth found him at 4:15, he told Erickson.

He did not attempt to give the boy artificial respiration but rushed him to the Karlstad hospital, where he was pronounced dead on arrival, Erickson said.

Peter Ronald is survived by his parents, two sisters and a brother. Green Funeral Home in Thief River Falls is in charge of funeral arrangements.

Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Randahl of Duluth spent Monday and Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Alma Senstad.

Frank Halme, Middle River, Dies in Crash

Car Collides with Stalled Truck Near Village Wednesday

A collision of the car he was driving with a stalled gasoline truck on the outskirts of Middle River brought death to Frank Halme, 42, well-known farmer of the Middle River community late Wednesday.

Halme's car struck the rear of a stalled Standard Oil Co. truck belonging to Lester Ellis, Middle River Standard Oil dealer, just as Ellis and Wallace Oberg, Middle River, were preparing to tow the stalled truck into town. The 1954 Dodge sedan Halme was driving was demolished.

The accident occurred about 7:30 Wednesday a short distance south of the entrance to Middle River on Highway 32.

Ellis and Oberg said they were standing between the gasoline truck and the tow truck when Halme struck the left rear corner of the truck's tank. The impact knocked the truck 66 ft. across the ditch into a field between Highway 32 and the town, according to Patrolman John Oven, who investigated the accident.

Halme was dead on arrival at Northwestern Hospital in Thief River Falls, where he was taken by Collins Funeral Home ambulance. The body was taken back to Middle River for funeral arrangements.

Halme formerly was a trucker operating out of Middle River. More recently he operated a farm and raised turkeys about two-and-a-half miles southwest of Middle River.

He is survived by his wife and two children; Billy, a junior at the Middle River High school, and Julie, a freshman.

Fergus Falls Mental Hygiene Clinic Has Treated 15 from TRF

The Fergus Falls mental hygiene clinic, which provides out-patient psychiatric services for people in the entire northwestern part of Minnesota, is this year marking its seventh anniversary.

The clinic was established by the department of public welfare in October, 1949. It is located in downtown Fergus Falls and has no connection with the state hospital. The staff consists of a part-time psychiatrist, Doctor Donald A. Reader of Minneapolis, neuro-psychiatrist; Doctor William A. Alexander, Jr., clinical psychologist; Roy L. Anderson, psychiatric social worker and Miss Muriel C. Keane, secretary-receptionist. Dr. N. J. Berkwitz, psychiatrist, was with the clinic six or seven months, and Dr. R. J. Silver, clinical psychologist, was with the clinic almost 7 years.

The anniversary of the clinic will be commemorated at a public meeting, to be held April 9, 1957, at the Roosevelt Park high school in Fergus Falls.

On the wall at the clinic there is a large map of Minnesota, on which the northwest quarter of the state is liberally sprinkled with vari-colored tacks and pins, each denoting a number of patients who have come to the clinic for help over the past seven years. A pin with a large blue tip marks the spot indicating that 15 persons from Thief River Falls have come to the Mental Hygiene Clinic for help in the last seven years. From Pennington county as a whole 18 have come.

A total of over 2100 different individuals have sought help from the clinic in the past seven years. Last year alone, 321 new admissions were seen and a total of 594 people were under some form of treatment. Of the 321 new admissions 112 were children and 209 were adults. A total of 3,140 interviews were conducted with these people or with individuals interested in the persons' benefit.

People who come to the clinic are, in the majority of cases, referred by their local physician. The courts, schools, welfare agencies and ministers also refer people to the clinic.

Since the clinic serves both children and adults, a large variety of problems are dealt with. The problems vary from the fears of childhood to the anxieties, fears and stress of everyday living. People seen at the clinic ranged in age from one to eighty-five years.

Each person seen at the clinic is given a complete psychological and psychiatric examination, which includes several hours of testing, gathering of information etc. after which a treatment plan is formulated and actual treatment begun. People under treatment must return for periodic visits. The length of treatment depends upon the seriousness of the problem and the cooperation of the individual. This clinic works closely with the family, physician, parents, school and other community agencies.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Dog owners are reminded that licenses for dogs will expire on April 1, 1957 and shall be procured on or before the 30th day of April. Licenses are obtainable at the office of the Police Department of the city.

Legislation Topic at Meeting of Jobs Inc.

New bills under consideration by the Minnesota legislature formed the general topic of discussion at a meeting of Jobs, Inc. and several area farmers, which was held in the Rex Cafe Tuesday evening.

Discussion of the proposed new tax program for the state took up most of the discussion period. A main point of interest was the way farmers' assessments would be made if and when the new tax system is adopted by the legislature.

Other topics of discussion were centered on road legislation, street improvement programs now under discussion in Thief River Falls and other matters of interest to both city and area residents. Highway use bills were also discussed by the mixed group.

About 20 farmers, Jobs, Inc. members and city residents were on hand for the meeting. Charles Rodekuhr, Pennington county auditor, and Don Olson, KTRF manager, led the discussions, which were freely entered into by those present.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Shootin' the Breeze

BY Mack Draper

It could happen yet—but let's hope it doesn't! Last year at this time the worst storms of the season were still ahead of us so let us not get too optimistic about the recent warm weather.

The weary local householders must be heaving great sighs of relief even tho our pleasant spell could turn out to be a false alarm. . . . less heating costs, y'know.

And, if spring is really here—it arrived OFFICIALLY at about 3:17 Wednesday afternoon—and we have little or no more snow the city will have had a substantial reduction in snow removal costs over last year.

We hear that we Americans are in hock to the tune of over $31 billion in installment purchases. We're still way behind Uncle Sam in deficit spending, however! (If the present budget is aproved each man, woman and child in the U.S. will eventually be $1100 poorer.)

Now where is the character who wanted all that "free" government aid on this and that project?

It was with some nostalgia that we saw a group of small boys flying a kite in a vacant lot the other day. There was a time when kite-flying came around about this time each year, just as surely as the sun rises in the morning. Kids don't participate in such activities as much or as fervently nowadays, as did before we were "blessed" with all the modern conveniences we have now.

There was a time of year to fly kites, spin tops, shoot marbles, make whistles from limbs cut from sappy saplings, baseball . . . everything came in season and after that season was past no boy in the neighborhood would be caught doing it. But, in season that ALL he ever did.

Down in Ol' Virginny we used the goldenrod stem for our kite frames. Kite-flying always started in mid-February and the tems from the previous year's goldenrod crop were just then cured to perfection for kit-building.

Our kites were usually six-sided affairs, using a three-stick framework, around which a string was stretched to give it its shape. The cover was made from old newspapers or wrapping paper and many an afternoon was spent gluing kites together with flour paste and drying them behind the parlor heater.

As the kites dried we tied the "tail" from strips of rag torn from an old dress or something. Mothers always dreaded "kite-flyin' time!"

There were various contests with kites—cutting the other fellow's string, was a lesser one—but the acknowledged champ was the fellow who could fly his kite the farthest, highest and longest. One fellow in our neighborhood had the biggest ball of string—almost a mile of it!—and captured all honors when he let it all out one evening just at dusk, tied it to a fence and left the kite up for the night.

To the amazement of everyone the kite was still flying, although pretty low, the next morning!

We mentioned making whistles from sappy branches in spring . . . The object was to find a knot-free piece of branch about ¾ inch in diameter on a chestnut or chinquapin sapling. You'd cut it to the desired length and shape then peel half the fresh, green back off.

The rest of the bark you'd tap lightly with a knife handle until it would slip off the stick without splitting or buckling. On the end where you'd cut the mouthpiece you'd cut a piece off about an inch or so long and flatten it on one side where you cut the air escape hole, and insert in the blowing end of the whistle. Then you'd cut the remaining debarked stick down to about half its original length and insert in in the other end of the bark.

When finished you should have had a whistle that not only would play a tune when you slid the end piece back and forth.

The whistle-making season didn't last long each year—you had to catch the saplings when the sap was just at the right stage or you couldn't get the bark to slide off your whistle without splitting.

Ah, for boyhood's golden days! Kids nowadays don't have nearly so much fun in our opinion. But when they're grown they'll probably give their kids the same old story as we've told here. SO LONG!

Leader Meetings for Home Project to Start Tuesday

Backgrounds in Home Furnishings to Be Topic of Court House Sessions

The latest information on buying carpets, floor tiles, paints, and wall papers will be discussed at a series of meetings beginning next Tuesday, County Home Agent Marge Olsen announced today.

The meetings are training sessions for leaders of Pennington county Homemaker groups, and are being given as the last lesson in the extension home program this year.

"Backgrounds in Home Furnishings" is the topic of the lesson. It includes using wall paper and paint effectively as wall coverings, a discussion on various floor and woodwork finishes, and selection of paints on hand, and soft-surfaced floor coverings.

The leader training meetings will all be held at the court house meeting room. Several different kinds of floor coverings have been used in the court house which will be looked over by the leaders.

Three meetings will be held for the leaders: Tuesday, March 26, Tuesday, April 2, and Thursday, April 4. Each meeting will start at 10:00 a. m. and conclude at 3:00 p. m.

The leaders who are trained at the meetings will hold meetings with their local groups in the very near future, Miss Olsen added.

PUBLIC OPINION

Editor The Times:

So Supt. J. A. Sater announced that he was sending the Lincoln basketball squad of 14 to the state basketball tournament even tho they did not win the regional tourney.

A very noble gesture on Mr. Sater's part (with our money) but how about the defending state hockey champions? They were not sent to the state hockey tournament at taxpayers expense. Some of them went down to see it at their own expense and had a tough time getting an ok. to get back into classes from Principal Nelson. Why the discrimination against the hockey players? What yardstick is used to send whom where?

I think its about time we organize a citizens committee to investigate these things. Wonder if our school board sanctions this discrimination.

Please ask any member of the hockey squad how he feels about this. Let Mr. Sater and Nelson know and try to explain to them.

Bjorkman Grade School Athletic Trophies Awarded

Teams Representing Knox, Northrop and St. Bernard's Schools Honored Tuesday

The annual Bjorkman grade school athletic trophy award night was held at the Lincoln high school gymnasium Tuesday night. As usual, the affair was well-attended, with parents, friends, and fans interested in grade school athletics being present.

Folowing a potpourri of basketball, with players from the fourth, fifth and sixth grades, and the various schools participating, N. Quentin Jones, of the high school Phy. Ed. department, awarded the trophies.

The Northrop Indians, coached by Phil Beadle, won the football championship, and the Indians co-captains, Dwight Myhrer and Bruce Gilbertson, received the trophy from the Prowler football co-captains, Jimmy Hall and Fred Dablow.

The Knox school team, coached by Lou Johnson, won the grade school basketball title, and the Tigers' co-captains, Bob Ihle and Tom Lindberg, accepted the trophy from the Prowler basketball co-captains, Dave Rasmussen and Dave Hanson.

The St. Bernard's Broncos won a pair of titles, winning the baseball and hockey championships. The Broncos' baseball co-captains, Larry Poole and Jack Houfek were presented with their trophy by the Prowlers' captain, Fred Dablow. Jack Poole, who captained last season's Prowler baseball team with Dablow, was not present, being employed in Rochester. The Broncos baseball team was coached by Joe Mrkonich of the Prowler staff.

The St. Bernard's school hockey team, coached by Rod Collins and Paul Bedard, received the hockey championship trophy, and co-captains Jerome Poole and Eugene Fisher accepted the award from Prowler co-captains Jimmy Hall and Fred Dablow.

Alfie Anderson First in Women's Bowling Tourney

Mary Ann Myhrer 2nd in Handicap Singles Event That Ended Last Sunday

The Women's city singles handicap bowling tournament, an annual event, was concluded on the Pla-Mor alleys on Sunday night. The tournament, in which thirty of the city's feminine keglers participated, rolled the opening shift on March 9th, and then followed with bowling on March 16 and 17.

Alfie Anderson, with an aggregate of 529 pins, which she collected by rolling games of 201-126-136, plus a 66-pin handicap, won first place. Mary Ann Myhrer, having games of 159-144-154, plus a 42-pin handicap, chalked up an aggregate of 499 for second place. Martha Narverud was the third place winner, having games of 143-141-137, plus a 75-pin handicap, for a 496 total.

Other winners, and their scores, are as follows: Carmen Krell, 495; Val Votava, 490; Arlene Thune, 488; Alma Johnk, 488; Hildie Hamre, 486; Jane Buen, 478; Gladys Strum, 478; Betty Roadfeldt, 474; JoAnne Wedul, 472; Luverne Larson, 459; Ardy Schuster, 454.

Final Wrap-up

We can't wrap up the 1956-57 Prowler basketball season without adding some further comments on the scoring proclivities of rangy Dave Hanson. He surely re-wrote the book.

Exploding for games of 34, 37, 39, and 21 points during the district and regional tournament, Dave boosted his season's individual scoring total to 577 points. That huge total shattered the previous season-long record of 482 points set by Art Johnson in 1954.

Scoring those 577 points in the 24 games played during the season, Dave Hanson hit at a 24.04 points per game average. That was also a new school record, bettering the 20.96 mark of Johnson, set in 1954. In only one game that against the Kennedy Rockets at Kennedy, when he was held to but 9 points, did Dave fail to reach "double figures." In twelve games Dave scored in the 20's, and in six games he had totals that reached into the 30's.

And all of this scoring was done in Dave's junior year. Last year, as a sophomore, he scored 424 points, and with the 577 points scored this past season, Dave has an aggregate of 1001 points. Next year, in his senior year, Dave will have to score but 12 points to break the 1012-point three-year mark of Art Johnson. That's a foregone conclusion.

We doubt very much if Dave will have as productive a point-year next season as he had this past season. The Prowlers will be a better balanced scoring club next season, and will not have to rely on Dave for the points to the extent that was evident this season. In the scheme of things, Dave could prove to be a valuable "decoy," and permit the guards and the forwards to drive in for lay-ups.

Incidental Information

It will perhaps be of interest to the high school cage fans to know how many boys from that twelve-man tournament squad that Bemidji's Bun Fortier brought to Grand Forks for the regional last week, will be returning for next season's play.

Two seniors, Bill Lawrence, a guard, and Darrell Miller, a first line reserve, will be graduating. And so will Jim Patten, who sat out the Regional tournament because of a broken bone in his left foot.

Like the Prowlers, the Lumberjacks were predominently a junior team, and the following Bemidji boys have another year of competition remaining: Ray Cronk, Marc Kolden, Bob Engle, Dick Anderson, Larry Rybak, and Fred Swenson.

Four sophomores, with one, Jim Johnson, being a starter, will be available for next season's Lumberjack club. In addition to Johnson, the other sophs are Jim Vickery, John Eastman, and Gary Strowbridge.

A Seven-Ender

That item we "ran" on Monday, about those two six-enders that were scored by the Wally Tunberg and Roy Lee rinks here on Sunday, and explaining that they were historic and worthy of mention, certainly became "old news" in a hurry.

Those two six-enders were recorded in the semi-finals matches on Sunday afternoon, and we promptly made notes of the event.

Came the finals on Sunday night, with the first rocks being cast at about 8:00 p.m. Curling on rink number one, and trailing the Roy Lee rink by a 5 to 0 score entering the fourth end, the Lawrence Lubitz rink—composed of Harold Halvorson, Bud Molstad, Jim Muzzy, and Lubitz—came up with a seven-ender! The Lubitz rink had all eight of their rocks "in the house," but Roy Lee, with a rock in the 12-foot ring, managed to cancel out one of the counters.

The Roy Lee rink never did recover from that "end" and lost their match, for the championship of the Second Event, by a 14 to 8 score.

We'll wager there will talk for a long while, around the Steiner community, about the Lubitz seven-ender. It should make "cooling" conversation during next fall's hot and sweaty harvesting season.

During this past curling year, we've been impressed by the manner in which these "farmer" teams have taken to the sport. Invariably, these farmers have become expert curlers, and without fail, they exhibit exceptional sportsmanship. We will hazard the opinion that town and country relations were benefited by the curling here this past winter.

Miscellany

Coach Cooney Weiland's Harvard University hockey team dropped its first round game in the NCAA tournament played at Colorado Springs, Colo. losing to the Michigan Wolverines, 6 to 1. Colorado College won the tournament championship by trouncing Michigan, 13 to 6, in the finals.—The Minneapolis Bungalows won the United States amateur senior hockey championship on Sunday by scoring a 4 to 2 win over the Arlington, Mass. in the finals. And playing a starry role for the Bungalows, and being named to the all-tournament team, was Jimmy Medved, the former Crookston Cathedral and North Dakota U player. In hockey competition, Medved is apparently ageless.

Chief Cummings Praises Work of Lincoln Boys

Margaret Peterson, reporter

A dozen members of the Lincoln high school patrol, accompanied by their supervisor, Charles W. Ferguson, and Police Chief Elton Cummings, were guests at the Lions club luncheon meeting Wednesday noon in the Elks club rooms.

Ferguson introduced the boys, and Chief Cummings paid tribute to their work, stating that no pedestrian accidents had occurred at the intersection of Main av. and First st. during the years it has been guarded by the patrol.

Further Details of Farm Conservation Practices for 1957

Continuing the report on farm practices under the 1957 Agricultural Conservation program, as announced by P. W. Culkins, office manager of the Pennington county ASC Committee.

B-7. Constructing pits as a means of protecting vegetative cover.—The pits must be at locations which will bring about the desired protection of vegetative cover through proper distribution of grazing or better grassland management.

This type of reservoir is generally constructed in flat land areas where a farm pond embodying an earth dam is not feasible. The water supply is obtained from underground seepage, springs, tile lines, or surface runoff. In all cases they are located on sites where an adequate water supply is assured.

Pits at the natural ground lines shall have a surface area of not less than 1500 square feet. Pits receiving water-supply from continuous ground water flow sources must have at least 25 percent of the pit 4 feet deep, and at least 8 feet deep of water supply is derived from surface runoff. Excavated side slopes of pit shall range from 1:1 to 2:1. Livestock shall have access to dater over a an approach slope not steeper than 4:1. Approach slope must be paved, graveled, riprapped, or otherwise prepared to provide solid footing for livestock. Excavated material shall be spread or otherwise used to direct runoff to or away from the pit; whichever is required. Spoil banks shall be seeded to a suitable grass. For this operation, including the application of commercial fertilizers, Federel cost-sharing is authorized under Practice C-2. Pits subject to overflow shall be provided with a suitable overflow pipe or vegetative waterway to prevent damage to pit or adjacent area.

The pit shall be enclose with a stock-tight fence to exclude livestock from all parts of the pit except the approach slope. The fence must be at least 12 feet from the remaining edges of the pit.

Detailed specifications and design information are contained in "Specifications for Conservation Practices" issued by Soil Conservation Service, which is on file with the county committee and will be used as a guide for all structures for which cost-sharing is approved under this practice.

This practice is applicable only in those counties where the Soil Conservation Service has assumed full responsibility for the technical phases of practices and all installations shall be made in accordance with plans and specifications aproved by the Soil Conservation Service.

Maximum Federal cost-share: The amount the county approves but not to exceed 80 percent of the average estimated cost of the labor and materials excluding forms, fencing, and watertanks, required in the performance of the practice.

FAMOUS CANTILEVER SPREAD EAGLE

Shipstads and Johnson have always offered Ice Follies patrons the best in comedy and for the past 18 years Mr. Frick (Werner Groebli) has been rated "Top Banana." The Ice Follies of 1957, which opens at the Minneapolis Arena, Minneapolis, April 3rd and runs through April 21st, has Mr. Frick repeating his famous Cantilever spread eagle, of which he is the originator.

Loads Limited in South Minnesota

All state trunk highways in southern and central Minnesota are now under weight load restrictions because of possible damage from heavy vehicles during the spring thawing period, the state highway department has reported. Restrictions were applied in zones 1, 2 and 3 in southern and south central Minnesota last week and were scheduled to go into effect today in zone 4. This zone extends northward to an east-west line running from Carlton through Aitkin, Brainerd and Staples to Moorhead. Trunk highways 210 and 10, bordering zone 4 on the north, are nicluded in the restriction.

History proves that people who go to great lengths to find an easy way out usually fall short.

Mallards with Dyed Wings Soon Due in Minnesota

Anyone spotting mallard ducks sporting bright pink or green wings this spring should not consult their psychiatrist but rather shoud notify the game and fish division in St. Paul.

The Illinois Natural History Survey has requested observers throughout the state to be on the lookout for two groups of color marked mallards. One group, consisting of 200 drakes, was subjected to artificial lighting for a period of six weeks to advance their breeding condition.

A second group was not subjected to the lighting experiment and will serve as a basis for comparison. Purpose of the experiment is to determine if the internal differences in these two groups of ducks will be reflected by migration activities.

Prior to their release in mid-January the experimental ducks had their wings dyed pink, while the untreated ducks had theirs dyed green.

Anyone spotting these brightly collored ducks should report the fact to the division of game and fish, giving the date, place and wing color observed.

Coal is a vital necessity in steel making. But steel is just as vital to coal mining. A recently opened mine in Virginia required 8,210 tons of steel for its initial construction.

RRV Group Seeks Plants in Area to Process Potatoes

Processing of Frozen Potatoes Is Discussed at Moorhead Meeting

Plans for a survey of the potato processing industry with the intent of bringing more potato processing to the Red River Valley, were made by the industrial committee of the Red River Valley Potato Growers association, at a meeting held in Moorhead on March 13. Frozen potato processes are to receive the major emphasis in the survey, although all forms of processing will be investigated.

One of the big jobs of the committee will be to try and interest someone acquainted with the business to locate in the Red River Valley. If this is not accomplished, the committee indicated that efforts will be made to get industry capital invested in processing plants.

John P. Bushee, East Grand Forks, chairman of the committee, points out that one out of every six pounds of potatoes consumed by the American public today is in processed form, with the trend continuing upward. It is the belief of the committee that if the Red River Valley potato industry is to continue to maintain its present status, or increase its production, it is mandatory that the processing industries be interested in locating in the Red River Valley.

Also considered by the committee was the matter of starch plants in the Valley. It was reported that it now appears that a starch plant will definitely be put up in Grafton this year. Efforts will be continued to get additional starch plants in the Valley with the Moorhead area probably the next logical location for a plant.

The Legislature

By Orlin Folwick

St. Paul — Governor Freeman and the state legislature are drifting farther apart; and at this state indications are that little of the governor's program will get favorable attention in this 1957 session.

So serious is the situation from the governor's standpoint that he already is talking about calling a special session to get his tax and spending program over.

Budget Rise is $75,000,000

Opposition to his plans has been growing since it was disclosed that he is seeking an appropriations increase of nearly $75,000,000 more than the budget for the current biennium. He told the legislature in his budget message that he was seeking $25,000,000 more.

Many legislators, including some of his own DFL liberal followers, feel that he has not "played ball" with the legislature in presenting his proposals. The conservative minority in the house and the independent majority in the senate now say openly that the governor's tax program, based on the report of his interim tax study commission, is not the bi-partisan plan as he described it, but purely a partisan program that will swallow all the tax savings expressed by the commission and add more to the bills the taxpayers will have to pay.

Say Not Bi-Partisan

The legislators who challenge the "bi-partisan" description the governor has applied to his plan point out that at no time has the governor taken members of the legislature not on his team into his confidence. They feel that for the first time in legislative history a governor has given them a package to be taken "as is" and not to be examined or deliberated. These legislators point out that from the beginning the governor took only his DFL and liberal supporters into discussions on the interim commission's report, leaving conservatives and independents out of the picture altogether.

In presenting the plan to the legislature, the governor tied his spending program so tightly into the picture that he left no room for legislators to consider one portion without taking the other into consideration. Whatever tax savings the interim commission proposed are picked up in new expenditures in the governor's 1957-1959 program.

Legislators who supported the interim tax study commission felt that the commission's proposals were aimed at saving money for taxpayers. As Senator Donald O. Wright of Minneapolis, chairman of the senate tax committee, put it: "This was to be the year of saving money for the taxpayers." Instead, Senator Wright says, the governor is proposing new expenditures that will mean a "stupendous increase in taxes in the 1959-1961 biennium, when the windfalls the governor is banking on now are gone."

Legislators Take Responsibility

In a legislature such as Minnesota's, a great deal of responsibility rests on legislative shoulders. This state's legislators are independent on party attachments. They are directly a "grass roots" government, elected by the people to speak for them in the settlement of government policy, expenditures and taxes. Being independents, they do not have to bow to the demands of the governor or any political party proposals. They have to tell the folks back home what they did and why they did it. They have to answer individually for all changes in policy and new taxes. No Minnesota legislator can shrugg off a new law with the answer that the party asked for it.

Governor Freeman's failure to take the legislators into his complete confidence from the outset of the session has developed a sour feeling among many legislators toward his entire program. The fear that the governor's spending plans will exceed the available revenues and the existing windfalls is making them shy away from much of what the governor has proposed. Even members of the governor's own party are a little skittish about the program. That his feeling exists, is attested by the fact that the governor's tax and spending bills have not yet been entered in the legislature. Only a few of the governor's followers, such as Representative E. J. Children of Littlefork, are willing to handle these controversial bills for the governor.

PUBLIC OPINION

Editor, The Times:

As one of the stranded motorists in the snowstorm, March 14, last week, I offer herewith an unsolicited expression of sincere appreciation to Railways in general and the Northern Pacific in particular. I desired to return here for a two o'clock funeral service which I had promised to conduct, March 15. It became evident I might not meet the appointment if I should try to continue by car. I know now that this would have been impossible. I left the automobile behind. A Northern Pacific train passed through the fierce storm area and brought me to Fargo where I connected with a bus which brought me here in time.

I have discovered that railroads, on occasions, supply the only means of transportation which will help a traveler reach his destination. When other very fine means of travel are grounded, stalled and stuck, the trains, even when crowded, packed full, and occasionally late, nonetheless role along.

I shall long be grateful for the safe railways in our country. I have used them in fair and foul weather, I'm glad to encourage travel by rail.

Fire Destroys Home

Tragedy again hit our community when fire totally destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hahn Saturday afternoon. Evidently the cause was a defective chimney. Several little children were their chief concern to get out and having no telephone they were unable to call for help until the Blackberg men noticed the smoke and came to their assistance. The heat was so intense the rubber on his tractor which was parked near by also burned.

At present some of the children are at the George Wikstrom home in Karlstad and the rest of the family at the Louis Hahn home. One of the little girls mourns the loss of her "Toni" doll, a Christmas gift. They intend to set up temporary quarters in a granary on the place as they have a lot of stock to take take care of. Traffic Fatalities Total 40 in February

February, with three fewer days than January, continued Minnesota's high traffic fatality toll as 40 persons met death in traffic mishaps, compared with only 23 in February 1956. The total for the first two months of 1957 was 86 per cent more than the same months of 1956, as the 86 persons killed this year showed an increase of 40 over 1956. The figures were released in a summary report from the Minnesota Highway Department.

The February toll of 40 was the highest for that month in the post-World War II period following lifting of gasoline rationing and was 48 per cent higher than the average of the previous five years. The previous high was 39 in February 1951.

A bright spot in the worsening traffic death picture was the substantial reduction in pedestrian deaths. There were four each in January and February of this year (all urban mishaps) which was 53 per cent less than the 1956 two-months total of 17; and 58 per cent less than the average of the previous five years.

Another very encouraging fact was the reduction in the accident rate per 100 million vehicle miles traveled. For January, 1957, this rate was 4.3 for accidents and 5.5 for deaths; while February had 4.1 for accidents and 5.0 for deaths. This drop was attributed to the open winter enjoyed this year as snow, sleet and other weather conditions were absent and did not restrict driving. Ordinarily, there would be a drop in the number of miles driven, resulting in lowered accident exposure and fewer fatal mishaps. The 10 per cent drop in the rate of traffic fatalities indicated that Minnesota drivers are doing somewhat better than the death totals would indicate.

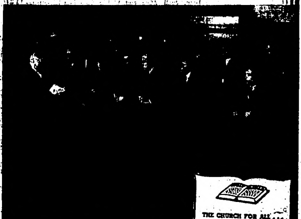
Forgiveness



Our verdict had been given. With a word of commendation the Judge discharged us, the ladies and gentlemen of the jury. The completed duty brought little relief. Instead there was a burden, a spiritual weight. Days of testimony and hours of deliberation had given an oppressive sense of the world's sin and suffering.

The door of my church was open and I slipped inside. I was alone as the rays of the setting sun enhanced the rich colors of the windows. All was quiet. I dropped to my knees.

Gradually in the solemn beauty of that sacred place I found peace. Here was sanctuary for me and for all who would come in faith believing.

Thankfully I arose; my heart and mind felt calm and refreshed. I could go home now, but I would return often. In glad fellowship with God's people I would worship the Christ who died that men might be forgiven.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

All 5 Kill[illegible]t Bejou Te[illegible]d Electroc[illegible]

Mahnomen Coroner Orders Inquest This Morning at 9

High voltage from a downed power line killed the five victims of a freak car accident near Mahnomen Thursday, Coroner Kenneth Mattson of Mahnomen county said Friday but how six teenage occupants of the car escaped, still remained a mystery.

The car containing eight young persons left Highway 59 near Bejou, early Thursday and sheared a pole holding a 34,500 volt line.

Two car occupants, one the driver, were killed. Three other young people, who stopped their cars to give help, died in rescue attempts.

Mattson said "all five definitely died of electric shock." An autopsy conducted on the body of William E. Schultz, 28, driver of the wrecked car, showed he was electrocuted, Matson said. Schultz was believed at first to have been a victim of crash injuries.

"We can't quite figure out how the youngsters inside the car weren't electrocuted," Mattson said.

Mattson called an inquest for 9 o'clock this morning.

The car turned on its left side in the waterfilled ditch after severing the pole, with the highline hooked onto the bumper and under a fender.

The six teenagers in the car scrambled to safety, Mattson said he understood all escaped thru the door on the passenger's side of the two-door vehicle.

It is posible, Matson said, that Donald Haugen, 21, who was riding in the Schultz car, and Schultz were electrocuted when they walked around the car either to flag down a passing motorist or to assist the others in the machine.

"We think they were killed by touching the car," Mattson said.

The coroner said he would question the six survivors, all of whom are in a Crookston hospital, in an attempt to get details of their escape.

The three would-be rescuers killed were Marvin Duncan Jr., 18, and Orville Rolf, 18, both of Fosston, occupants of the first car at the scene, and Clark Holdahl, 21, Winger, who stopped seconds later.

The survivors, all in good condition in Crookston hospitals today, are Josephine Lundberg, 15 and her sister, Marie, 14, of Fosston; Mary Anne Olson, 16, Fosston; Arlene Nelson, 17, Ebro, Minn.; Jim Haverman, Winger, and Sharon Weberg, Fosston.

Geese Have Started Migration to North

Another harbinger of spring in northwestern Minnesota appeared in this area over the past weekend, according to conservation department officials here.

Carl Sundstrom, Thief River Falls game warden, reported the wild goose flight is on, with at least six flocks known to have passed over the city from midnight to noon Sunday. All were of the honker variety.

Sundstrom said the geese were flying very high and that they were seen and heard by very few local residents. In addition to flocks observed by Sundstrom, Herb Dill, Mud Lake refuge manager, and Bob Farmes, area game biologist, both reported seeing the high-flying honkers.

One flock was seen to settle on the Mud Lake refuge, Dill reported. This is the first observation of geese this year and is merely the beginning of the northward passage of these birds, Sundstrom said, adding that bad weather could delay arrival of the main flocks.

The arrival of geese in northwestern Minnesota this year is exactly a week earlier than in 1956, when the first flocks reached here April 1, Dill said.

Load Limits Now in Effect on Area Roads & Highways

Restrictions in Zone 6 to Become Effective Tomorrow, March 26

With the imposition of load limits on state and federal highways in Zone 6, March 26, practically all roads in Minnesota will carry spring road restrictions, according to state highway officials here.

Zone 5 highways, which includes that part of Minnesota north of U. S. 2 and west of U. S. 59, went under restrictions earlier and Tuesday Zone 6, which is that part of northern Minnesota north of U. S. 2 and east of U. S. 59, will come under restrictions.

Several state and federal highways in the Pennington county area were already under load restrictions last week. U. S. 59 is under a 7-ton per axle limit, while Minnesota No. 1 is under 5-ton per axle limit. No restrictions have been placed on Paved Highway 32 south.

Joseph Seidel, county highway engineer, said all county roads are very soft from the spring thaw and that weight restrictions of 4 tons per single axle have been in effect since March 20, when they went on automatically according to law.

Seidel said crews are now busy posting the load restrictions along county roads.

The program for next year has not yet been planned, Miss Olsen said, but will be set up this spring.

Antitoxin Flown in from Chicago for 2 Patients in Hospital

Two children of a Plummer family may have saved their lives by their refusal to finish eating some canned corn their mother served them at dinner Sunday. The repercussions of their refusal to eat was felt as far away as Chicago.

Jane, 2, and John Piehl, 4, refused the food so violently their mother, Mrs. Roger Piehl became suspicious and tasted the corn herself — and immediately ran to the telephone to call a Thief River Falls physician, who advised her to bring the children to Northwestern hospital here as quickly as possible.

Doctors here think the Piehl children may have eaten food contaminated with Clostridia Botulina — more familiarly known as botulinism, which often kills thousands of wild ducks in years when sloughs are about dried up and the water remaining becomes contaminated from the bacillus feeding on the marsh growth.

At any rate the doctors found strong evidence that Clostridia Botulina was present in the corn the Piehl children had eaten and acting on the presumption the children had become exposed started action to get botulinism antitoxin. The poison is so rare in humans that less than 10 persons in the whole U. S. contracted it last year, the doctors said.

The poison is so rare in humans, in fact, that the antitoxin is not stockpiled at many points in the U. S. Thus the reason a local druggist, Ole Ekeren, upon notification the serum was needed, phoned McKesson & Robbins, Chicago drug distributors, who expedited shipment of the serum via U. S. Air Force C-119 Packet from O'Hara Field, Chicago.

The plane, from the 56th Airborne Recon. Sq. and piloted by Maj. J. W. Harlan, with Capt. H. L. Hines, co-pilot, arrived at Thief River Falls municipal airport about 3 a. m. today with the serum which was immediately rushed to the hospital to be

Highway Bill Introduced in House Today

Aimed to Implement Amendment No. Two Adopted Last Fall

The Minnesota House Friday delayed consideration of the big highway bill until 3 p.m. today after more than two hours of explanation of the proposal.

The measure implements provisions of Constitutional Amendment No. 2, approved by voters at the general election last November.

A single jackpot for all highway user tax revenue to handle road building in Minnesota is provided in the bill.

The constitutional amendment and the bill change the revenue distribution from gasoline taxes and sale of motor vehicle license plates as follows:

Sixty-two percent to the trunk highway system.

Twenty-nine percent to the county-aid system.

Nine percent to the municipal state-aid system, which applies to 54 municipalities with populations over 5,000.

Under present law, the state trunk highway fund gets about 81 percent of the highway user receipts and counties the remaining 19 percent.

The House appropriations committee approved the Korean bonus bill and sent it to the House floor for debate. The bill earlier had been approved by the House military affairs committee.

The report of the Senate highways committee on the [illegible] trunk bill was formally submitted to the Senate and sponsors of the bill served notice they would use "every available resource" to get consideration for it.

At its meeting on Wednesday the highway committee [illegible] recommend the bill for passage but to have it referred to the committee. This kept the bill in control of the committee.

How to Take Care of Your Paint Brushes

by Bud Kelly

The average handyman wouldn't leave his best saw out in the rain to rust; but the same man would think nothing of letting a paint brush "cake up" and get hard. It just doesn't make sense. Paint brushes are tools, too. They need good care if they are to work properly.

Here are a few hints and short cuts we've developed at Our Own Stores that will save your brushes, time and money.

Clean your brushes just as soon as you've finished painting for the day. Plan ahead. Allow yourself plenty of time to clean your brushes. Be sure to use the right cleaning solvent — turpentine for oil base paints and enamels, alcohol for shellac, lacquer thinner for lacquer and water for water thinned paints like Super Kemtone.

The first rinse may be done in previously used solvent. Final rinses should be done in clean solvent. The final rinse may be stored in a closed container for reuse as a "first" rinse. Wash the bristles in lukewarm soapy water as a final touch. Pat dry the brushes between two sheets of paper toweling.

Store the brushes in dust jackets. These can be made simply from small paper sacks. Be extra careful not to rumple the bristle as you put the brush in. Tie the neck of the bag around the handle, make an extra loop of string to serve as a "hanger" if you wish. Store the brushes flat (but never piled) in a drawer or hang from nails over the work bench.

If you have any questions — about any phase of painting — come in and talk them over with us. We'll be glad to help.

Army Eases Bars for Reserve Enlistees

Two major changes to existing regulations concerning the Army Reserve which greatly reduce the time required for training of reservists were announced today by Colonel Seiss E. Wagner, Chief, US Army Military District for Minnesota. These changes are expected to step up the number of enlistments in the Army Reserve.

The most significant change pertains to young men between 18½ and 25 years of age. Up to now there was no provision for the young men in this age group to fulfill their military obligation without serving for at least two years on active duty, either by being drafted or by volunteering for two or more years. Under the new plan these men may enlist in the Army Reserve for a period of six years. Six months of this enlistment will be spent on active duty for training, and the remaining five and one-half years in the Ready Reserves as a member of a Reserve unit. After six years of satisfactory participation, his obligation has been fulfilled.

Another change affects young men between 17 and 18½ years of age. Formerly these reservists had to look forward to 7½ years participation in the Ready reserve plus his six months active duty for training. The mandatory participation time has been cut to three years following the six months active duty for training, with the remaining four and one-half years of the eight year enlistment spent the Standby Reserve. In the Standby Reserve, a member is not required to attend weekly drills or summer training.

Although these changes officially go into effect April 1st, Reserve recruiters and advisors have been authorized since January to enlist young men under the new program. The effect of these changes has already been noted in Minnesota. During the month of February, 509 young men enlisted in the Army Reserve. This is more than double the 223 who enlisted during February 1956.

Minnesota Misses Another Blizzard

Storm Ties up Traffic in Texas and Kansas

The big weather story this week is that northwestern Minnesota, along with rest of the upper midwest has escaped the big blizzard that paralyzed some other midwestern states over the weekend.

The storm which has dealt such a devastating blow to parts of Kansas, Texas, Nebraska and other states has been described by some residents of those areas as the worst since 1931. Hundreds of people have been stranded in cars, busses and trains and National Guard units have been called out in some localities, according to radio reports. Concern for livestock has been expressed by stockmen, who are in the midst of the calving season in cattle states.

Weather in our Pennington county area remains on the mild order. The forecast is for more of the same, which will be good news to most local folks.

The high temperatures of the past week led many area residents to shed storm coats, and some even went without topcoats for a few of the warmer days. High temperatures for the period were registered Thursday and Friday last week when the mercury reached 54 above. The low temperature was 9 above Monday, March 18.

No precipitation fell during the past week and a good, cleansing rain would be most welcome to area residents.

The forecast: mostly fair today, tonight and Tuesday, with little temperature change. Highs will be in the upper 40's and lows will range from 20 to 25.

GROWING WITH YOUR CHILD

Institute of Child Welfare
University of Minnesota

Look At It This Way

Most of what you think and feel has been learned over a long period of time. Why does one person think a picture is beautiful while another does not? Why do we like someone? Why do we dislike someone else? Usually reasons for our reactions have grown slowly over a period of time.

Imagine what life is like for the little child who has not yet had the time or the experience to grow into habits. He must react to each new situation without many clues from his past. What he does is more understandable if we point out some of the differences between the old and the young—say, between three-year-old Charles and his mother, Mrs. Castle. For Charles a spot of milk on the living-room rug is interesting, maybe even pretty. Not so for Mrs. Castle. For Charles to feel the wiggly, cool, wet gold fish in his hands is fun. Not so for Mrs. Castle (or the fish). Charles feels very important when he does something BIG with his own two hands—like hitting a glass table with a hammer. Mrs. Castle on the other hand—well! Charles loves to run pell-mell down the front yard slope toward the street. Boundaries like curbs mean little to him, so far. Because of this, Mrs. Castle lives in fear. The first time Charles ate liver it was too hot and stinky—now he avoids it. Mrs. Castle, of course, knows a lot about nutrition.

As we look at these differences, we see the seeds of much dissension. But we might find in them that ounce of prevention which saves a pound of cure. Charles should not be permitted to have milk in the living room. It is too much to expect of a three-year-old to avoid spilling altogether, or even to see the need for it. The gold fish are to "look at" (said over and over) and are kept above eye level and beyond reach until this is learned. Hammers and glass tables do not mix; if glass tables must be there, hammers are far removed and are for carefully described use only. If the front lawn must slope toward the street, a fence is needed, or Charles' play area should be elsewhere. Liver can be skipped temporarily, and introduced later in a new recipe. Look at it this way. Children don't yet see things as we do. Give them time to learn.

What Is A Dog?

Many of the problems which arise between parents and children stem from the fact that they see things so differently. What seems to be an identical circumstance is entirely different in the child's eye view and the parent's eye view. Usually there is a middle ground of compromise which will resolve issues.

Take the dog problem, for example. The differences among breeds or within breeds are not nearly as great as the differences between a child's eye view and a parent's eye view of the same pet dog. David is seven, and his Spot is a nondescript dog.

David's eye view: He is just the right size, with a friendly wagging tail and an imagined smile. He loves for me to feed him, and he gets fed anyway when I forget. He likes "that gooey kind" of dog food, and there is always some of it on the kitchen shelf. He runs to meet me when I get home every day, and I feel better, no matter how many fights I've had. He doesn't care if I can read or not; he just listens while I tell him things and licks my hands. He has his own ball, but sometimes he'd rather chew my slippers, so I have to hide them. He goes to the grocery store with me, and sure is smart to carry some of the stuff home in his mouth. He follows me everywhere and I like to sneak him under the covers at night.

Mrs. French's eye view: Spot is getting so HUGE, and his funny legs look like they don't belong with the rest of him. If only he would sit down and be quiet part of the time. Did you ever see such an appetite? It seems I'm always lugging home those heavy cans of dog food. He sheds on everything, so my sweeper is full of matted hair. I can trace his path with muddy tracks all over the house. He chews up things, and those last weiners actually had tooth prints on them—I could scarcely eat them. I know they say boys need pets, but must he follow him even upstairs?

Let's face it! A dog is not just a dog. A dog is one thing to a little boy, and another thing to his mother. Knowing this, some simple but enforced rules can help to reconcile these differences without adding under burden for mother so that David may have his dog.

HOME GARDEN

Vegetable Varieties For Home Freezing

When you plan your vegetable garden this spring, select varieties that are good for freezing if you have a locker or home freezer. Freezing is a quick, easy method of processing and preserves most of the true flavor, color, texture and nutritive value of vegetables.

Garden peas are among the earliest vegetables suitable for home freezing. The Burpeana Early Dwarf, one of the earliest high yielding varieties, has three-inch pods well filled with peas. Little Marvel is an old variety but still a good early one for freezing. For later maturing varieties, either the Wando or Dark Seeded Perfection are excellent choices.

If you enjoy broccoli, try either the Waltham 29 or Green Mountain. The latter is an early, high yielding variety with large center heads that are easily divided for freezing.

For green beans try the Improved or Resistant Tendergreen. Topcrop and Wade are also good varieties. Topcrop concentrates the set of pods over a short period.

One of the best varieties of sweet corn for on-the-cob freezing is Golden Freezer. The long slim ears have a very narrow cob which allows for easy blanching. For small ear varieties, the Sugar and Gold and Earliest Market King are very dependable. Other sweet corn varieties suitable for freezing include Golden Cross, Bantam, Golden Beauty and Butter Nugget.

THE MINNESOTA STORY

Prepared by the

ICE HARVEST

Enterprising early Stillwater businessmen found a way to make money out of one of Minnesota's supposed disadvantages — its cold winters and frozen rivers. Ice was harvested and shipped on a commercial scale from Stillwater as early as 1858.

On June 15 of that year the "Stillwater Messenger" reported that the steamer "Resolute" had towed "four large barges of ice" from Lake St. Croix down the river "for the St. Louis market where it is quoted at $5.00 per 100" pounds. The newspaper editor believed that ice might well become a "mine of wealth" for Stillwater, since, he said bitterly, "Ice is a certain crop in Minnesota, whatever else may be blighted."

A detailed description of the methods used in harvesting and packing ice by Schulenberg, Boeckler & Company, operators of a large Stillwater sawmill, appears in the Stillwater paper for March 3, 1863. The waters of "the crystal St. Croix" were cut with an "ice plow" into blocks 24 by 36 inches in size. The blocks were then floated through a sluice to the shore and pulled by horses up an inclined plane into the storehouse, where they remained packed in sawdust until spring. When the lake opened for navigation, the ice was repacked on insulated barges to be towed down the river "to St. Louis and other southern markets."

A LANGUAGE PROBLEM

Alexander Ramsey, the first governor of Minnesota territory was a strong advocate of temperance in the use of liquor and was much distressed by the social evils caused by alcohol in the area under his administration.

On March 14, 1850, the governor held a council at St. Paul with a group of Winnebago Indians who were dissatisfied with their reservation. During the council, the governor spoke to the Indians through an interpreter and urged them to abandon whiskey. Carried away by his theme, he told them that "The white men have quit drinking." When this was translated, the Indians looked astonished and incredulous. Seeing their faces, Ramsey modified his statement by adding "in a large measure." The interpreter rendered this literally as "a large-sized vessel." An old chief immediately retorted that "perhaps they had, but most of them still use a small measure."

THE ST. PAUL FEMALE SEMINARY

An interesting picture of life in one of Minnesota's earliest private girls' schools may be found in the catalogs of the St. Paul Female Seminary of St. Paul in the possession of the Minnesota Historical Society. The school, which accepted both boarding and day students, was opened in 1858 by the Reverend J. G. Riheldaffer, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church of St. Paul, and it continued to operate until 1871.

According to the first catalog, issued in 1861, the school was located at Summit Avenue and St. Peter Street, "convenient to all parts of the city . . . yet remote from the noise and dust of the thoroughfares of trade."

The school offered instruction in a wide variety of subjects, from elementary reading to natural theology, mental and moral science, parsing, Biblical and classical antiquities and astronomy. For the astronomy class, the school was equipped with a telescope, which was said to be "the largest west of the University of Michigan." French German, drawing, music and geology were among the optional courses offered by the school.

The seminary's rules of conduct allowed the students few frivolities or amusements. Parents were requested not to send their daughters "frequent supplies of delicacies from home, if they desire to preserve their health." Boarding pupils were not allowed to visit in the city or to receive calls or correspondence except from persons specifically approved by their parents. They were, however, sometimes permitted to associate with people whom the school "deemed profitable."

BECKER COUNTY

Becker county was named in 1858 for George L. Becker, a man who won an election but did not serve in the position for which he was chosen.

Becker, a St. Paul lawyer and mayor of the city in 1856, was elected on October 13, 1857, by the people of Minnesota territory as one of three men in the state's first delegation to the United States House of Representatives. Accordingly, Becker, with William W. Phelps and James M. Cavanaugh, went to Washington early in 1858 to await Minnesota's entrance into the union.

But when the state was admitted, Congress ruled that it was to have only two representatives instead of three. Becker, Phelps and Cavanaugh privately drew lots to eliminate the odd man, and Becker, who drew the short straw, returned to St. Paul. According to William W. Folwell, the author of volume 1 of "A History of Minnesota" recently published by the Minnesota Historical Society, the delegation thus lost the man who was "much the best of the lot."

administered to the Piehl children.

Botulinism — which is what the effects of the poison is called—affects the muscles through paralysis, doctors here said. They acted on the presumption the botulinism was present in the food the children had eaten, although no symptoms of the poison had been noticed in the children.

To wait until the symptoms show, they said, could be too late if Clostridia Botulina definitely is present.

State health authorities are checking on the contents of the can of corn Mrs. Piehl brought with her and a Thief River Falls grocery wholesaler is notifying all their accounts to stop sale of that brand of corn until a definite diagnosis of the can's contents can be made.

District Engineer Pabst of Highway Department Dies

Henry A. Pabst, 61, district engineer at Bemidji for the Minnesota highway department since 1952, and a frequent visitor in Thief River Falls, died Friday in the Fort Snelling Veterans Administration hospital, Minneapolis. He had been in failing health for several weeks. Funeral services were conducted today at St. Clement's Episcopal church in St. Paul, with burial in the Fort Snelling National cemetery.

Before going to Bemidji, Pabst was maintenance district engineer at Morris for seven years. Entering the highway department in 1926, he had served as culvert inspector, instrument man, and as a project engineer for 15 years.

A mining graduate of the University of Minnesota, Pabst worked as a mining engineer at Hibbing, and in Chile, South America, before joining the highway department. He took a leave of absence in 1943 to serve for several months as an engineer on the Alcan highway. Serving with the Second Marine corps division in World War I, he received the Silver star for gallantry in action.

THE PANTHER STRIKES

By Allen Wishert

THE hour was nearing midnight, from out of the hills rolling over the prairie, came the distant scream of a panther, like the wailing of a lost soul.

Lem Garrett had been awaiting this hour, being foreman of the outfit, he had erected himself a shack several yards beyond the bunk-house where he could keep book away from the rowdyism.

Lem watched the hands of an alarm clock as they climbed toward the fateful hour. A Winchester rested across his knees.

Fifteen minutes to twelve. He arose, examined the rifle, assuring himself that a 30-30 cartridge was under the hammer and again the panther screamed.

Lameul Garrett had taken life as it came, going about his ranch chores with heart and mind at peace with the world, until this latest event appeared. Nettie Ragsdale, three weeks ago had given him her promise. Nettie was 19, Lem 23. Considering their age and environments, every rancher predicted an ideal marriage.

However, there was one obstacle, Nettie's father, Gabe Ragsdale, a hardy plainsman, rugged, with the temper of a locoed steer. He objected strenuously to the match; not that he objected to Lem, no more so than any other cowboy on the plains, but he possessed higher ideals for Nettie. She had attended boarding school, and he considered her slightly above any of the waddies thereabouts. He planned for her to marry some well to do man and live comfortably in a city, like Cheyenne, for instance.

When Nettie mentioned her selection to her father, he became explosive, raved and ranted, finally declared:

"The only way you'll marry Lem Garrett, will be over my dead body."

When Nettie informed Lem of her father's decision, he merely gazed into the far off yonder somewhere, and replied:

"Maybe he won't live so awfully long. Accidents do happen."

"Lem, you mean—."

"Pay no attention to what I'm saying, Nettie. Words sometime imply false meanings."

To the midnight in question; with rifle pressed snugly under his arm, Lem stepped through the door of his shack into the moonlight.

That very day Gabe Ragsdale had mentioned that he was going on a panther hunt.

Fifteen minutes to twelve, Lem rode into the hills; Gabe Ragsdale was doing likewise. Lem had in mind the exact boulder that would afford concealment.

He hadn't long to wait, a lone rider, Gabe Ragsdale, was approaching. Lem settled himself, rifle barrel atop the boulder, an eye squinting along the sights. He placed a finger on the trigger, the moon illuminated the scene as bright as day.

Gabe, only fifteen yards away, reined his horse under a large tree.

The slight wavering of a limb above Gabe's head, caused Lem to look upward. A panther, crouched, ready to spring, caught his gaze. That sleek, death-dealing cat would save Lem firing a bullet. Gabe Ragsdale's doom was sealed with no evidence of foul play.

The panther, slowly, without sound, edged it's hind leg's forward beneath it's body, giving momentum to the bound.

The brute quivered, a split-second and it would be on it's way. Lem raised his sights and three 30-30 slugs curled the beast and it crashed beneath the tree, lifeless.

A month later Lem and Nettie were married. After the ceremony, Gabe Ragrdale grasped Lem Garrett's hand.

"Son," he said. "Somewhere it is said; 'A life for a life.' You gave me mine, I now repay by giving one of my own into your keeping."

Rites Conducted At St. Bernards For George Bail

Funeral services for George Bail were held Saturday morning, March 23, at St. Bernard's Catholic church. Father Keogh Patnode, was the celebrant and interment was made in St. Bernard's cemetery. A Rosary was recited Friday evening at the Green Funeral Home Chapel. Mr. Ball passed away Thursday, March 21, at the age of 78 years.

Mr. Ball was born March 21, 1879 at Yankton, South Dakota and moved with his parents to Penn, North Dakota when he was 5 years old. He attended schools there and grew to manhood. On December 27, 1889 he was united in marriage to Emma DeMars also at Penn, North Dakota. In February of 1944 they moved to this city where he made his home until his death.

Mr. Ball had worked for the Great Northern Railroad for many years until his retirement in 1949. He was a member of St. Bernards Catholic church and a member of the Holy Name Society.

Survivors include his wife Emma, five daughters, Mrs. Maurice Gessner (Josephine) of Penn N. Dak; Mrs. Curtis Nelson (Beatrice) of this city; Mrs. Chester Trangsrud (Evelyn) of Minneapolis; Mrs. Harold Johnson (Delores) of this city; two brothers, Moses Ball of Portland, Ore.; Frank Ball of Great Falls, Montana; 11 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren. He was preceded in death by two sons, one daughter and one sister.

Habits are either bobbers or sinkers on the sea of life—they either hold you up or hold you down.

This would be a lot tougher world to live in if every work day made a man as tired as a holiday.

Our LAND

Appearing in newspapers of the Minnesota Editorial Association through the cooperation of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service and the University of Minnesota Institute of Agriculture.

Terracing Helps Corn

Louis and Earl Schafer in Goodhue county are winners of the 1956 Minnesota X-Tra Yield Corn Contest, and are conservation-minded farmers besides. Arnold Wiebusch, Goodhue county soil conservation agent reports they gave terracing a try for the first time in 1956 on one field. When Louis finished picking the corn last fall, he remarked "We picked up a few short rows on the terraces. But considering the crop we're taking off the field and the way the field came through the summer, terracing looks good for our farm."

Works Fine for Corn

Arden Kroehler, Henderson, and Clayton Johnson, Gaylord, both cooperators in the Sibley conservation district, found out in 1956 that it's possible to work the soil less and get just as good corn yields. They set up "minimum tillage" plots on fall plowing. The land was disked once, planted, and cultivated once. There was no difference in yields between these plots and fields that were disked and cultivated several times. These plots were checked by Ed Drogemuller, U. S. Soil Conservation Service and Duane Wilson, Sibley county agent.

Contouring Boosts Yields

Contour cropping is giving crop yields a boost on the Henry Tweet farm near Chandler. A cooperator with the Nobles county soil conservation district, Tweet harvested a good 60 bushels of corn per acre from his strips in 1956—more than the average yield for his area. One reason was that strips held all the moisture that fell.

Good Rotation Helps

More than 85 bushels of oats per acre—that's what Henry Schoper, Jeffers, Minnesota, harvested from his fields of 1956. He says that yield was the result of a crop rotation that contains plenty of grasses and legumes, a rotation he has followed since 1917. He has been a cooperator with the Cottonwood county soil conservation district since 1946.

Forestry Work Aids Income

Twenty acres of Norway pine trees have made a new tractor, four new farm buildings and a good chunk of extra cash possible for Richard Johnson, a part-time farmer in Itasca county. Several years ago, Johnson asked Floyd Colburn, Itasca county forestry agent to help him plan a timber cutting. His first year's harvest of poles brought Johnson $180, and by good management, he has been regularly each winter making a good timber harvest from the woodlot ever since.

Have "Lasting Quality"

Robert Fischer in the Upper Zumbro Soil Conservation District, installed 13 miles of terraces on a 23-acre field in 1947. In nine years, the terraces have needed only one minor repair job that took only an hour of man and machine time. Otherwise, there has been no maintenance other than systematic plowing. Fischer says terraces not only protect fields, but they make it easier to maintain high crop yields.

Gauge of Farm Income

"My soil is my bank account," says Carlos Grove, farmer in Lake of the Woods county. He has had a soil capability map made for his farm, and Soil Conservationist Lloyd Laine helped Grove make out a conservation plan. Now Grove says that "by looking at the capability map and plan, I can see how my bank account stands."

Prevent Soil Loss

Properly planted field windbreaks are an "insurance policy" against soil loss from winds in many areas of Minnesota, says Parker Anderson, extension forester at the University of Minnesota. And on hilly land, tree planting and tree crops will arrest water and hold it in a storage bank for later use by crops planted in fields below.

Local Men Attend Chicago Meeting

Sig and Vernon Quam, of the Thief River Jobbing Co. are participating in the business sessions and activities at the week-long 25th annual convention of the National Association of Tobacco Distributors at the Conrad Hilton Hotel, Chicago, March 21-29.

HEART RESEARCH AIDED BY MEMORIAL GIFT

Heart research projects of the Minnesota Heart Association were aided by a recent memorial Thomas Koralewski, former resident of Thief River Falls. The association said contributions came from friends.

Shootin' the Breeze

BY Mack Draper

IT'S A FACT . . . . spring is here. But ya wanna bet on how long it'll last? So far this year we haven't seen robin or crow number 1 and that seems rather strange, considering the nice weather we've had. No doubt this will cause a rash of reports by people who have seen these birds. But, even if we do get some nasty weather—it couldn't be any worse than it was last April. (Don't tell us about crows or robins unless you see a flock of at least 200!)

Another good question . . . . when will the river ice go out this year? Will it beat the average breakup date of April 10? It's something for speculation.

CAUSE FOR OPTIMISM . . . . the pessimists never take into consideration that if we can have a winter that lasts longer than usual we can also have one that is much shorter than usual.

Which all adds up to the fact that about all man ever does about the weather is talk about it!

WE WONDER . . . . AND SO DO SEVERAL OTHERS AROUND HERE—when is the fishing season to open in Minnesota? They'd better announce the date soon or Game Warden Carl Sundstrom will be a nervous wreck!

Speaking of fishing . . . . Carl says boys fishing at the city power dam here are giving him a rough time. It's perfectly legal to fish for crappies and rough fish—but he draws the line when these miscreants use snag hooks to pull out legal game fish. He says control of the problem is next to impossible unless the city council outlaws all fishing there.

Here's another case of a few people spoiling the fun for everyone by not playing the game according to the rules. You river fishermen might find it profitable if you did something about it otherwise you could lose your river fishing privileges.

The net effect of this new June 8 opening on bass is that it will take a lot of people out of the lawbreaker class, Warden Sundstrom says. Few people are willing to throw a nice, but illegal, fish back once they've landed him—and Carl says you'd be surprised at the number of people who haven't been able to tell a bass from crappy in previous years when the bass opening came later.

Most of the time this newspaper business is pretty routine but once in a while you get some very exciting work that makes it the interesting job it is. For instance, we had a tip on this accident at Middle River last Wednesday and arrived there in time to shoot an on-the-scene picture or two. We've never seen such a bashed-in car before as Frank Halme's was after slamming into that gasoline truck.

We read of a man who was cheating on parking meters by tying a thread to the coins and pulling them out after they tipper the meter. We've heard of small-time crooks before—but a man who'd stoop to such petty thievery really is scraping bottom, wouldn't you say?

One more sure sign spring is here—the winter vacationers are returning in droves lately. SO LONG!

QUESTIONS answered for VETERANS

Additional information or assistance on veterans benefits may be obtained by writing or visiting the VA Contact Representatives at the Minot VA Hospital, or the Bismarck or Grand Forks VA offices.

Q—Is it possible for the daughter of a deceased war veteran to go to school under the War Orphans education program and, at the same time, draw death benefit payments under the Survivors Benefits Act?

A—No. The law does not allow dual payments to be made under both programs.

Q—I want to sell the house I bought with a GI loan, allowing the buyer to take over my loan. I understand that, under certain conditions, I can be released from liability to the Government. Just what does this mean?

A—Release from liability means that if an approved purchaser defaults on the loan the VA has to pay the guaranteed portion to the lender, the VA will not attempt to collect from you. Any VA office can tell you how to apply for release from liability.

Q—I am a totally disabled veteran, and premiums on my GI term insurance policy are under disability waiver. My policy is nearing the end of its term. Will VA renew it automatically, even though under my waiver I am not paying premiums?

A—Yes. Even though your GI term policy is under waiver, VA will renew it automatically when it reaches the end of its term.

Q—I applied for vocational training under Public Law [illegible], but before I began I was re-examined by the VA and my disability compensation was reduced below 10 per cent. Will I still be allowed to train?

A—No. Veterans whose disabilities have been reduced below 10 per cent before starting rehabilitation training may not begin under Public Law [illegible]. What you should do, however, is look into the possibilities of taking your training under the Korean G. I. Bill instead.

Q—I am planning to take a four-year night course in law under the Korean GI Bill. Will VA consider this as full-time training in paying me my monthly GI allowance?

A—No. An accredited four-year night law course may not be considered as more than three-quarters time training for purposes of computing your GI allowance.

Q—Is it possible for a veteran to name the beneficiaries of his GI insurance policy in his last will and testament, rather than by providing VA with a list of beneficiaries?

A—Yes. Beneficiaries may be designated by a duly probated last will and testament. But you cannot change beneficiaries in this manner. A change must be placed on record with VA.

Q—If a veteran wants to appeal a VA decision involving some benefit, is there any time limit for filing his appeal?

A—Yes. A veteran must file his appeal within one year from the date of the VA decision on his case.

Q—I have been drawing monthly compensation payments from VA based on the service-connected death of my husband, a World War I veteran. If I get a job to suplement my income, will my compensation payments be stopped?

A—No. Death compensation payments, based on the service-connected death of a veteran, are not affected by your income. The income "ceilings" apply only to death pensions for the nonservice-connected death of a veteran.

4-H'er of the WEEK

Shirley Oski

Future plans for Shirley Oski of the Mavie 4-H club include attending music college to major in voice. Later, Shirley says "And of course be a housewife."

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. "Bob" Oski of Mavie are Shirley's parents. Her younger sister Catherine joined the Mavie club last year.

Shirley has demonstrated twice at the state fair; once on "Making Baking Powder Biscuits" and in silent bread. She and Marie Breznay were the reserve champion team demonstrators at the 1954 Red River Valley Winter Shows for their dairy luncheon. In 1955 Shirley represented Pennington county at State 4-H Health Camp. She has also had numerous championships and reserve championships in her exhibits at the Pennington county fair. In her 8 years of club work, Shirley has won 23 blue and 12 red ribbons.

At the Goodridge high school, Shirley has been on the Student Council, takes part in several music units, and has been on both the "Annual", and "Mascot" staffs. At the district music festival in 1956, Shirley received an "A" rating for her vocal solo.

Shirley is organist and choir member in her church and is also a ladies aid member.

How has 4-H helped Shirley? She says, "I can never say enough about how 4-H has helped, in more ways than one. First of all, I must say that 4-H has helped me tremendously in developing poise and self confidence.

"In the clothing project I have learned to pick best styles, and materials and I have also learned patience. That is only an example. In the seven different projects I have carried, all of them have given me a wealth of education, fun and experiences.

"I have been a junior leader for three years."

Box Lunches

Taste and appearance are both important when it comes to making a packed lunch appealing.

There are four "musts" for a good box lunch: make it generous, make it well balanced, make it look attractive and make it taste good.

Generous means that the lunch should give you about a third of the day's food needs.

A well balanced lunch includes sandwiches with a filling containing meat or meat substitute, a raw vegetable, and a fresh fruit and a thermos of milk. Some type of dessert and maybe even a second thermos for hot food will give the lunch extra appeal.

A good looking lunch requires some thought to color. Select fruits and vegetables that are bright and fresh looking. Little things like napkins and salt and pepper shakers can add color and interest to a lunch. Neat packing is also important for an attractive lunch.

Make lunches taste good by including a treat every day. A piece of cake or pie, interesting fruits, different breads or a special sandwich spread will perk up appetites.

If you find lack of time in the morning, a problem in your home, try packing the lunches the evening before and storing them in the refrigerator.

How to Make Polenta

Sharon Swanson of the Highlanding 4-H club demonstrated making Polenta at the Red River Valley Winter Shows last month.

Polenta is the Italian version of corn meal mush with two changes — it's made with milk and cheese. Sharon chilled the Polenta, sliced it, and fried it in butter as a breakfast suggestion. If you'd like to try something new for your family, as a "spring breakfast treat," why not try Polenta?

POLENTA

1 quart scalded milk, 1 cup yellow granular cornmeal, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ pound shredded cheese, other seasonings as desired.

Add cornmeal slowly to the hot milk. Cook until thickened, then continue cooking over hot water for 10 minutes. Remove from heat. Add remaining ingredients, and stir until the cheese is melted. Pour into a loaf pan, having it about 3 inches deep. Let stand over night, or longer. To serve, turn out on cutting board, slice very thin, and brown slowly in butter or drippings. Add one or more additional seasonings if desired: a few shakes of tabasco sauce, ½ teaspoon instant coffee, 1 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce, or ½ teaspoon crumbled sage or caraway seed.

Bleaching Precautions

Homemakers who have received the lesson on 'basic Sewing Methods" have been learning about being careful when they use a chlorine bleach. Not all fabrics can be treated with a chlorine bleach, and you should know which fabrics can't be.

Do not use chlorine bleach on:

1. embossed cottons.
2. cottons or rayons which are labelled 'crease resistants," "minimum care," "drip dry" or "little or no ironing."

Chlorine bleach will cause these fabrics to turn yellow, and split when pressed.

If you must bleach these fabrics, use a perborate bleach. These bleaches are labelled "safe to use on delicate fabrics," so you will know you are using a perborate bleach.

ANOTHER TIP on these drip-dry cottons and rayons. Do not put them through a wringer, and do not starch them. However, do dry them in your dryer.

The motor fuel used in the Two Jima campaign would have filled a train of tank cars 238 miles long, and the lubricating oil would have filled an additional 125 box cars.

DODGE PowerGiants
Most Power of the Low-Priced 3!
Everybody agrees . . . the main reason for buying a truck is to haul a payload. That being the case, doesn't it make sense to get the truck that's powered and built to carry the most in its weight class? Of course it does! That's why so many truck owners are switching to Dodge.
Dodge gives you the most powerful V-8's of the low-priced three, ranging from 204-hp. pick-ups to 232-hp. tandems. And Dodge trucks are built especially tough to handle bigger loads. For instance, Dodge pick-ups can haul up to one-third more than other competitive makes.
Dodge makes hauling these bigger loads easier, too. Shorter turning radius lets you needle in and out of tough traffic spots in a jiffy. Power steering is available on most models, and the extra convenience of a push-button transmission* can be yours only with Dodge.
Think it over. After all, it's just plain good business to get the most for your money . . . and your dealer can prove the most truck for your money is Dodge.

A Look at THE STARS

by LYN CONNELLY

DON'T know what the producers of "64,000 Challenge" are trying to prove, but their "Teddy Nadler vs. the World" is a little bit boring . . . Nadler is a human encyclopedia who, with no education but a remarkable retentive memory, has bowled over a number of contestants on a score of subjects . . . Currently he is the whole show as he tackles three contestants on three different categories . . . There seems to be no stopping him.

It is apparent that he has memorized everything he has ever read, and he has read plenty . . . While the contestants he defeats have an intellectual approach on their subjects they are human in failing to remember small details . . . Nadler, meanwhile, when asked how tall a certain building is, not only gives the height, but the girth, the year it was constructed, the architect, the country it's in and anything else he has read about it . . . an amazing memory does not make a brilliant man, as is attested by the fact that Nadler is a $70 a week clerk for the government . . . To allow him to conquer real intellectuals with his astonishing memory is downright crude and we are surprised the sponsors are allowing it.

PLATTER CHATTER

CAPITOL: Tennessee Ernie Ford has come up with a new one that should get a good play, "One Suit" . . . It's backed by "Watermelon Song", a number that becomes him well . . . Tommy Sands comes up with an usually good first record, "Teen-Age Crush" (and they'll have one when they see more of Tommy) backed by "Hep Dee Hootie."

Ray Anthony joins the calypso fad with "Calypso Dance" . . . "Plymouth Rock" is on the flip side . . . Ella Mae Morse does an oldie in her own way, "Put Your Arms Around Me, Honey" . . . "A Long Time Ago" is on the reverse side.

The WORLD OUTDOORS

By Mike Kennedy

NIMRODS across the nation have put their trusty firearms back on the rack, but down in the deep South hunters are busily inspecting their weapons in preparation for an important upcoming season. And, while they are getting ready, practically every one of them thinks he hears the gobble-gobble of an old Tom Turkey breaking the misty silence of a morning in the swamp. In several deep South states, spring turkey season opens April 1.

Mississippian O. L. Green, a veteran outdoorsman, hunter and wildlife enthusiast, has bagged as many Toms as anybody we know. Here are some Turkey tips he passed along to us:

Locating your gobbler is half the show. In swampy areas, turkeys like to roost near water and can be heard for a considerable distance when they fly into a tree. A turkey gobbler feels secure when he is on the roost and in the early morning will gobble at almost any strange noise. Hoot like an owl, use a crow or hawk call, and any gobbler in hearing distance will usually answer. Once you've located your quarry, don't get too close; three or four hundred yards is near enough. Pick an open spot with a tree or a clump of bushes in the center, use your call sparingly and make the bird come to you. An old gobbler gets that way because he is smart. Quite often he will approach from the opposite direction to that from which he is expected.

An excellent load for this type of turkey hunting is a shell with No. 7½ shot in the chamber backed up with a pair of 2's in the magazine.

Roosevelt Team from Minneapolis Winner of State Tournament

Coach Wayne Courtney's Minneapolis Roosevelt team made a successful defense of their high school basketball championship on Saturday night when, in the finals of the 45th annual state tournament, they defeated Red Wing, 59 to 51.

For a couple of periods, the Red Wing club played the bulkier and taller Roosevelt team on near-even terms. With forward Steve Malnar, who gained all-state honors, doing the bulk of the scoring, Red Wing gained a 12 to 10 first period and trailed by a 27 to 23 score at the intermission.

A "big" third period, in which they scored 21 points, gave the Teddies the point - bulge that carried them through to a 59 to 51 win.

In their attempts to secure possession of the ball from their taller and rangier opponents, the Red Wing players were forced to commit numerous fouls. During the game, the officials, Don Lund and John Consemius, called twenty-five fouls on Red Wing. Roosevelt, with forward Tom Nordland converting on nineteen of twenty tries, picked 31 points via the free-throw line.

In addition to giving up these points to Roosevelt on free throws, Red Wing was handicapped greatly by the fact that four of their players—Johnson, Hayes, Thalberg, and Aadelan — were forced from the game via the personal foul route.

Nordland was the game's high scorer, having 31 points, and nineteen of these points were earned from the gift shot line. Center Jerry Butler had 14 points for the winners. Steve Malnar, with 16 points, on seven field goals and a pair of free throws, was the high scorer for coach Pete Petrich's Region Four representatives.

Each team placed three men on the all - state tournament squad. From the state champion Roosevelt team, forward Tom Nordland, center Jerry Butler, and guard Greg Larson were named. While Red Wing placed center Dick Johnson, forward Steve Malnar, and guard Curt Thalberg to the all-tournament squad.

Bemidji Loses Overtime Tilt to Roosevelt

Region 8 Team Loses 73-70 in 1st Round of State Tourney

In one of the most thrilling tourney-opening games in the annals of the state basketball tournament, the defending champion Mpls. Roosevelt defeated the the Bemidji Lumberjacks of Region Eight, 73 to 70, in overtime on Thursday afternoon.

The ever-aggressive Bemidji Lumberjacks, with their lanky center Ray Cronk outplaying Roosevelt's highly-touted Jerry Butler, led the Teddies, 14 to 13 at the end of the first period, and 35 to 31 at the intermission.

Roosevelt, with a strong scoring third period, and which was typical of their play throughout the tournament, outpointed the Jacks, 25 to 14, in the third quarter to gain a 56 to 49 lead.

The state champions maintained a lead that varied from seven to five points during the fourth period, and with less than two minutes of the game remaining, Roosevelt held a 66 to 59 lead. Cronk took charge of the Bemidji scoring to left the Jacks to within two points, 66 to 64, of the Teddies and, with but ten seconds to play, Larry Rybak scored to tie the game and force an overtime period.

Butler hit on a fielder to open the overtime scoring for Roosevelt; but Cronk notched a jumper from the lane to again knot the score at 68-all. Greg Larson looped in a pair of free throws, and the Teddies held a 70 to 68 lead, but again Cronk, on a one-handed toss, evened the tally with a field goal. Butler then broke the tie and won the game by dropping in a field goal from ten feet out with twenty seconds of play remaining. Larson, fouled just as the game-ending buzzer sounded, added a point on a free throw, giving Roosevelt a 73 to 70 triumph.

Moving over into the consolation play on Friday afternoon coach Bun Fortier's Lumberjacks after holding a 32 to 25 lead at the intermission, dropped a 64 to 56 decision to the Hibbing Bluejackets.

Hibbing's victory was due mostly to exceptional free-throw accuracy, with the Bluejackets picking up 32 points via the gift shot line. The Lumberjacks outscored Hibbing from the field, 22 field goals to but 16 for the winners.

The Hibbing team went on to win the consolation honors, defeating the Rochester Rockets, 72 to 71, in the consolation finals on Saturday evening.

While the Bemidji team dropped both of its state tourney games, the Jacks did impress the fans with their hustle and style of play, and two the Lumberjacks, Ray Cronk and Bill Lawrence, were named to the all-tournament squad.

The British Columbia Lions of Canada's Western Football Conference have lost the services of Ed Vereb, former Maryland halfback, to the United States Army. The loss is a serious one to the Lions, as Vereb was the conference fourth leading scorer last season . . . Stan Jones, of Victoria, driving a Maserati, won the 22nd Australian Grand Prix with an average speed of 85 mph over 150 miles. Jones came to the finish line with blistered and bleeding feet in the grueling race which took place in searing 100-degree heat . . . Stan "the man" Musial has announced his intentions to really concentrate this year in order to win a seventh batting title and maintain his brilliant .340 lifetime mark. The slugging St. Louis Cardinal star, who gets around $80,000 a year for his efforts, says that last year he swung at a few pitches he should have passed, something he doesn't intend to do this year. Stan begins the year needing only 219 hits to become the eighth player to reach 3,000, and 68 more games to tie Gus Suhr's National League record of 822 consecutive contests.

Detroit Lakes Farmer Killed in Ogema Car Crash

A 23-year-old Detroit Lakes farmer was injured fatally early Sunday when his car left highway 59 and rolled over about 2½ miles south of Ogema.

Paul F. Grossman died in a Detroit Lakes hospital shortly after the accident, which occurred Sunday about 1:30 a.m.

His companion, Mary Zurn, 18, Callaway was hospitalized in serious condition.

City Cab Raises Minimum Fares

A rate change is announced by City Cab, effective at once, which will increase the minimum charge but permit more passengers to ride at the new minimum. The minimum charge, formerly 40c now becomes 50c, but four passengers may ride for this fare. The 40c minimum permitted only two passengers for that rate.

Let's Keep the Lumberjacks

Being given state-wide circulation is a rumor to the effect that the State High School league is considering one of several proposals having to do with the revamping of the basketball districts and regions.

Not since 1931, when the districts and regions were given their present shuffle, has there been any alteration of the basketball set-up. It's a fact that there has, in the interim, been a tremendous shifting of population, particularly in the suburban area of the Twin Cities. The argument is that this area, and it embraces the Fourth and Fifth Regions, are subjected to discrimination in basketball. It's true that the Fifth Region, which includes the Minneapolis high schools, the suburbs of St. Louis Park, Robbinsdale, and Hopkins, as well as such red-hot basketball centers as Willmar, St. Cloud, and others, is paying a "penalty" according to the present set-up.

But we hope that when the when the High School Board, if High School Board, if and when it completes its gerry-mandering of the districts and region, will leave the Bemidji Lumberjacks in our region. They belong here.

Sure, it becomes monotonous to have the Lumberjacks represent the region year in and year out, and their present string has increased to five straight, but there wouldn't be much honor or pride in winning a "soft" regional title. If you are going to have the best basketball team, you'll have to beat the best basketball teams. And that's what Bemidji produces most of the time.

A Sign of Strength.

From all of the conversations we've heard, there is not much doubt but that the Minneapolis Roosevelt basketball team was entitled to the state championship that they won, or kept, on Saturday night.

Roosevelt had tremendous physical advantages over their opponents, and these advantages became apparent as the tournament games progressed. Both Bemidji and Fergus Falls held the upper hand in their respective games with the Teddies, but Roosevelt came through with high-scoring third periods to regain control of the games. And that pattern was followed in the championship finals against Red Wing.

This strong play in the second half, and it was in evidence in each of three tournament games played by Roosevelt, indicates that the state champions possess fine reserve strength. Here's the Teddies' third period scoring—against Bemidji, 25 points; against Fergus Falls, 23 points; and against Red Wing, 21 points.

Ray Likes Dave

Did you hear that radio interview with Bemidji's Ray Cronk? Cronk, who has twice turned in spectacular performances in the two years that he has participated in the state high school basketball tournament, was questioned as to the "toughest" center that he had faced this season. Said Ray, "The toughest center I played against this season was Dave Hanson of Thief River Falls."

When he was asked to compare Hanson's ability with that of the highly-rated Jerry Butler of Roosevelt, Ray explained that "Hanson was the best center he was against this season."

Fine words, those, for a fine center and from a fine center. Don't forget that these two boys, Ray Cronk of Bemidji and Dave Hanson of the Prowlers, will be engaging in a couple of duels next season. The Bemidji vs. Prowlers games next year should be played before capacity crowds.

Say, wasn't that quite an honor for Bemidji, to have two players—Ray Cronk and Bill Lawrence—named to the all-state tournament squad? It's the first time in our memory that we can recall that a team losing both of its state tourney games has had two its players named to the all-state squad. There won't be any gripes, either, for Cronk and Lawrence are of all-state caliber.

Like the Yanks and the Bums

A bowling rivalry that compares in intenseness with that of baseball's New York Yankees and the Brooklyn Dodgers will be resumed at 7:00 p.m. on Wednesday night when the The Pharmacy and the Soo Line teams meet on alleys one and two of Irv Wilson's Pla-Mor lanes.

The Pharmacy, the first half winners of the Women's Nite Hawk League, are tied for the second half's leadership, with the Soo Line. So Wednesday's tilt will be a "blue chip" affair.

The Pharmacy is expected to have its usual lineup — Bess Lang, Pat Dabdoub, Alice Nornes, Alma Johnk, and Marj Tegimeier—on hand for the "crucial" series. While the Soo Line will have Teen Berg, Tress Noel, Orpha Ryan, Marge Dunham, and Keks Lee in its lineup.

More on Practices Allowed under Farm Conservation Setup

Following is a continuation of the report on farm practices under the 1957 Agricultural Conservation program, as announced by P. W. Culkins, office manager of the Pennington county ASC committee.

C-2. Initial establishment of permanent vegetation as protection against erosion. — Federal cost-sharing will be limited to the establishment of permanent vegetation on dams, ditch banks, filter strips, and field borders. A suitable seedbed must be prepared by plowing, disking, or tilling with a field cultivator or similar implement. Consideration should be given to the improvement of wildlife habitat in selection of seedings to be made. To protect wildlife, it is suggested that any mowing be delayed until most of the ground nesting birds have left their nests. Controlled pasturing so that the area is not overgrazed is permissible. The area must be protected from burning.

Field borders may not be less than 1 rod nor more than 3 rods in width.

To retard the siltation of diversion ditches and reduce erosion, the area to be seeded must include the diversion ditch and also extend not less than 1 or more than 2 rods above such diversion ditch.

For drainage ditch stabilization and erosion control, the area to be seeded may not be less than 1 rod more than 4 rods in width on each side of the drainage ditch.

Eligible legumes are: sweetclover, alfalfa, red clover, white clover, alsike clover, Ladino clover, and birdsfoot trefoil.

Eligible grasses are: bronmegrass, timothy, meadow fescue, reed canary grass, Kentucky bluegrass, and meadow foxtail.

Seeding requirements: at least 6 pounds per acre of grasses, or at least 10 pounds per acre of legumes and grasses consisting of not less than 5 pounds of grasses.

Federal cost-sharing for commercial fertilizer is authorized.

Maximum Federal cost-share: seedbed preparation, seed, and seeding—$3.00 per acre.

D-4. Establishment of vegetative cover to protect cropland throughout the 1957 crop year.—This practice is applicable only to cropland which is being shifted for the entire 1957 crop year from crop production to green manure or cover crops. No crop may be harvested for seed, hay, or silage in 1957. Volunteer stands will not qualify for cost-sharing.

A suitable seedbed must be established by plowing, disking, or spring toothing and preforming such other operations as are necessary for the establishment of a satisfactory seedbed. Pasturing consistent with good management may be permitted, except for the acreage placed in the Acreage Reserve, which prohibits pasturing.

Eligible legumes are: biennial sweetclover, alfalfa, red clover, birdsfoot trefoil, Ladino clover seeded in a mixture, and alsike clover.

Eligible grasses are: bromegrass, meadow fescue, timothy, reed canary grass, and meadow foxtail.

Seeding requirements: at least 6 pounds per acre of any of the legumes or grasses or mixtures thereof, or any seeding of at least 4 pounds per acre of birdsfoot trefoil or alskie.

Federal cost-sharing for commercial fertilizers is authorized when applied before or at the time of seeding.

Maximum Federal cost-share: seedbed preparation, seed, and seeding—$2.00 per acre.

The Elementary School and the Elementary Director

By Kermit L. Eastman, Director of Elementary Education

Elementary schools are social institutions created by men to meet an important social need—the education of children. Men, communities, and states differ, however, in the way in which they define "good education. It is only natural, therefore, that we can expect to find both uniformity and variation in the practices of elementary schools. To expect anything different would be to fail to recognize the role that the elementary school has played in American life and the responsibility that the people of individual communities have had for defining the kind of educational program they want for their children.

The American elementary school has been in existence over two hundred years. A perspective of two hundred years makes one less inclined to think in terms of sharp black and white distinctions between the "old and good" and the "new and progressive" aspects of our present classroom activities.

Many of the good schools of the early 1800's are very much like our good schools of today in their general outline and breadth of purpose. Similarly, our poor schools of a hundred years ago are very much like our poor schools of today. The future of elementary education will depend upon the degree to which we can continue to develop and extend the concets and practices that history has again and again shown to be valuable.

The "free public elementary school" as we now know it had its beginnings in the first half of the nineteenth century. The elementary school served as a melting pot in the community for the many diverse groups within it.

The obligation of the elementary school is to all educable children of the community which it serves. The educational program of the elementary school has to attempt to meet the needs of these children. The elementary school has to attempt to meet the needs of these children. The elementary school in this sense cannot be selective about children, nor build its program on the basis of special interest. A tough community mindedness will characterize its curriculum development, and a deep sense of educational obligation to all children will permeate its practices.

This concept of a free public school for all of the educable children of a community is one of the fundamental principles upon which public education in America is built.

The basic responsibility of the elementary school is to help young children become more effective members of our American democracy. The watchword of the elementary school is good citizenship for young children, rather than preparation for college or for some particular vocation.

Our responsibility for teaching children to read, to write, to spell, to learn the value and use of number, to learn something of science and health, and to become familiar with the geography, history and government of our own and many other countries has not changed. Our degree of responsibility has, however, been steadily increased. The schools have had to assume a larger role than ever before in providing for the needs of children. The added responsibilities given to the school by other social agencies have not been as substitutes, but rather as additions to the responsibilities with which we were formerly charged.

These added responsibilities of the schools, the acceptance of all educable children as students, the tremendous increase in our school population during the last 12 years, and a shortage of well-trained and fully qualified teachers have proved to be a tremendous challenge to parents, teachers and school administrators alike. The manner in which the challenge has been met is a matter of record.

As our school problems increased we have had to search constantly for new and better ways of educating all youngsters whether they be dull, average, or superior; whether they be disinterested, passive or interested. We have stumbled and we have gone to extremes in one direction or another, but somehow we have never lost sight of our common purposes and our desire to do the very best for our boys and girls. That is the essence of elementary education in America.

In terms of accomplishments, we point with pride to the comparative achievement of our boys and girls today and boys and girls in any previous period in the history of American education. Our children surpass previous generations in terms of achievement in all areas of the curriculum with spelling being the exception. We recognize that there has been, is, and probably always will be room for improvement. It is a part of the pattern of education to seek improvement.

It is significant that the achievement of our children in the public schools of Thief River Falls surpasses the the state and national norms in all areas of the curriculum. Even in spelling, our average median scores for all grade levels exceeded state and national norms by nearly one year.

The role of the director of elementary education is one of directing, supervising, and coordinating the activities within and among the individual schools.

The task of directing the overall program in the elementary school is carried out by the elementary principals and the elementary director. In this instance, the elementary director functions as a coordinator for the schools and assures desirable uniformity in planning the school program. The desirability of having one person directing the general operation of the elementary schools is evident in curriculum planing, policy interpreting and formulating, and in assuring a sound program of elementary education for the children of the school district.

Supervision is one of the important aspects of the elementary director's work and this area includes a wide variety of responsibilities. These responsibilities include actual classroom visitations (commonly referred to as "supervision"), formulation of plans and suggestions as related to the curriculum, establishing and maintaining worthwhile testing programs (including evaluation of test results and implications for the teaching program), counseling with parents, teachers, and children, and functioning as a resource person in elementary education for the school staff; the superintendent, the board of education, and the community. Because of the nature of supervision, it is essential (and a requirement) that an individual serving in the capacity of elementary director be qualified both in training and experience for the particular duties of the position.

Coordinating the activities of the elementary schools and the activities of the various grades within the elementary school is elected through the teacher—chairmen of the particular grade levels working in conjunction with the elementary principals and the elementary director. Implementing school policy uniformly is accomplished through the elementary principals or through regularly scheduled meetings of the elementary staff.

In summary, the elementary director serves in the general capacity of director, supervisor, and coordinator. He interprets the philosophy of elementary education and makes recommendations for changes and improvements in the elementary schools to the superintendent and the board of education. He, in turn, is responsible for implementing the changes required by the superintendent, the board of education, and the state department of education, and should work constantly for the improvement of elementary education and toward improving the elementary schools within the district he serves.

Our program of elementary education in Thief River Falls has expanded considerably. We believe continued improvement will result through the cooperative efforts of parents, teachers, and administrators. The kind of educational program in any community will naturally be determined larely by the willingness of the public to suport the program and to assume its proper role in furthering improvement.

TWO GOOD SERVANTS

One of the interesting developments of the period now passing is the progress that has made in the improvement of the channels of the Red Lake and Clearwater rivers and the transfer of control of the outlet of the Red Lakes from the Red Lake Indians to the United States. Two of the men who played leading roles in the negotiations leading to these achievements, died last week.

Harold Hagen served northwestern Minnesota many years, not only as Congressman but, prior to that, as a member of the Tri-State Waters Commission, organized for the specific purpose of solving the water problems of the area, and also in Washington, as secretary to Congressman Buckler.

Much of the credit for the good results achieved by channel improvement and flood control projects in the district are due to the untiring efforts and the know-how of Harold Hagen. His activities were not limited to these fields. Here in Thief River Falls, for instance, he was helpful in securing the release of special federal funds that made the First Street bridge possible at little local cost. At the time folks hereabouts were very thankful for his assistance.

Peter Graves, patriarch of the Red Lake band of Chippewa Indians, had an equally impressive record in representing, over a period of many years, the interests of his people. He was of the old school and by our standards he appeared sometimes to be obstructing progress. Nevertheless he was highly respected as a man of integrity by all who had occasion to deal with him.

He was not easily convinced that the proposed channel improvement of the Red Lake river, or the relinquishment of control of the outlet of the Red Lakes, were desireable. He approached these problems as the spokesman for an independent people, and he would deal only with those who spoke for that other independent government, the capitol of which is at Washington, D.C. Much of the negotiating that led finally to a satisfactory agreement on these questions was therefore conducted between him and Congressman Hagen, and they both were shewd traders.

Peter Graves lived to a ripe old age. Harold Hagen, unfortunately, died while still comparatively young. Both of them have long records of service to their people to their credit.

CHEESE IS CHEESE

We are very much in favor of any program that will add to the popularity of dairy products, resulting in an increased demand for our most important crop. We are not impressed, however, by the proposal that restaurants be forced to increase the size of the paddies of butter served with meals. That kind of legislation leads to understandable resentment and probably would accomplish no good purpose.

There might be justification for laws providing reasonable protection for cheese, another important dairy product that is suffering because of unfair competition. Restaurants, we think, should be required to serve real cheese when cheese is ordered, and here in [illegible] restaurants that substitute a cheese-flavored loaf for real cheese, without informing the customer of the fraud, should pay fines that become progressively heavier with each offense.

PORTS ARE AREA PROBLEMS

The legislature is being asked to broaden the powers of the St. Paul Port Authority, an agency that now directs in a limited way the operations of the city's navigation facilities. From our hinterland observation post may we suggest that in dealing with this matter consideration be given to the fact that this is another metropolitan area problem that might be more effectively dealt with through an area authority.

Minneapolis and St. Paul, too often retarded by their own selfish and short-sighted approach to area needs, have on several occasions used good judgement in recognizing their common interest. Their area sewage authority seems to be functioning satisfactorily. And under the direction of their Metropolitan Airports Commission they have been very successful in finding workable solutions for several difficult, and somtimes critical, problems.

Minneapolis and St. Paul, and in fact the entire state, have a common interest in the head-of-the-river navigation problems, and it would appear that it would be in the best interests of all to have this activity directed by one area port authority.

INTERESTING LAW SUIT

An interesting libel suit is scheduled to get under way in North Dakota next month when the Farmers Union state organization case against A. C. Townley is heard. The Farmers Union is taking exception to statements made by Townley as a candidate for U.S. Senator in the 1956 campaign, linking it with the Communist Party. Station WDAY-TV, the station over which Townley spoke when the questionable remarks were made, is included in the suit.

This action is attracting national attention because it involves several questions of station responsibility for what is said by speakers in a political campaign. And there will be much interest in the outcome of the suit on the questions of libel that are involved.

Over a period of many years there have been frequent and continued charges that certain officials of the organization have a background of association with subversive and pro-communist groups. These charges, often repeated, if not true have certainly been libelous. It will be good for the organization and for the public to have these questions cleared up.

RUSSIA'S LOST REVOLUTION

(New York Times)

Forty years ago this week the Czar of Russia was toppled from his throne and a fateful, though short-lived era of Russian history began. As George Kennan's perceptive article in our Magazine today points out, this first of Russia's two 1917 revolutions brought hope and courage to men of goodwill everywhere. It seemed to presage the beginning of a new expansion of democracy in an area where autocracy had reigned for centuries. History has not crueler pages than those which tell how the hopes of forty years ago were destroyed and turned into a nightmare which still continues and now threatens all humanity.

Defeated by the Bolsheviks within a few short months, the democratic revolution of March, 1917, still remains a landmark in Russian and world history. The aspirations for a democractic society and for a better life for the workers and peasants which made that revolution possible were not killed by the Bolshevik Revolution, nor were they killed by the long night of Stalinist repression which makes up most Soviet history these past forty years. Those aspirations live today in the Soviet Union.

It is to the young people of Russia that the world now looks. In Soviet universities, in factories, in the giant farms on the virgin lands of Siberia, these young people are groping for new answers.

As they search for these answers, this generation of young people must turn inevitably to the March revolution and to its ideals. Bolshevism after forty years can find no better answers to its problems than the current spy scares and the wave of repression now going on against independent-minded Soviet students and writers. But there are better answers in Russian history and it is possible to hope that the better answers of March, 1917, will yet become reality in the land of Tolstoy.

Swine Producers

Successful swine producers in Minnesota can be nominated now for the 1957 Swine Honor Roll. This is not a contest. If you can meet the qualifications outlined below inform me and I'll be glad to help you with the nomination.

Awards will be based upon pounds of pork produced per sow from spring farrowed litters, care, feeding and herd management and record of hog production in recent years, according to H. G. Zavoral, University of Minnesota extension livestock specialist.

To be nominated, a producer must have at least eight spring litters farrowed. All sows farrowing before June 1 must be included in the herd record. The producer should have an average of eight or more pigs saved per sow.

A nominated producer will be asked to list the dates of first and last farrowings, number of pigs farrowed, weaned and marketed and dates of sales, sales slips and total weight of spring pigs raised to market.

The Swine Honor Roll is not a contest. Each production record will be considered individually, according to Zavoral. The committee in charge will name to the Honor Roll producers who have made the greatest accomplishments.

An awarding committee will be appointed, by the Minnesota Swine Producers' Association.

Nominations must be in by July 1, 1957.

Soil Sampling

Wise soil sampling means better use of fertilizers.

There's a lot more to taking a soil sample than just putting a clod of earth in a paper sack.

John Grava and Charles Simkins, soils scientists at the University of Minnesota emphasize the variations on soil types even on the same quarter of land.

So to get a really accurate soil test, you have to take a "composite" sample that represents all sections of the field.

To take a soil sample, you need a soil sample container and information sheet, a sampling tube or spade and a clean pail. You can get the container and information sheet from our office, the vocational agricultural teacher or fertilizer dealer.

You can sample any time when the ground isn't frozen, but summer and fall are best.

There's the way to get a composite sample: Divide each field into uniform areas, with a soil conservancy use-capability map. If you haven't such a map, look for differences in slope, erosion, crop growth and yield. The soil in each area should have the same texture, cropping history and fertilizer treatment.

Don't sample dead furrows, low spots or terraces and mix this soil with the rest of the sample.

When you sample an area, scrape away the surface litter and take a core from the surface soil to a depth of six inches. On permanent pastures and sod, sample only three inches deep. Repeat this procedure in 15-20 places, mix the soil in the pail, and fill a pint soil container with the mixture. This is the composite sample.

Pick up your information sheet and box at the office so you may have them on hand when the ground thaws in the spring.

Horticulture

Three new garden chrysanthemums developed by the University of Minnesota horticulture department especially for northern climates will be available to the public this spring from Minnesota nurseries.

The chrysanthemums are Minnpink, Minnbronze and Golden Fantasy.

Introduction of the three brings to 35 the number of garden chrysanthemums developed by the University of Minnesota for northern regions. The prefix Minn is being used to designate garden 'mums for low growth habit introduced by the University of Minnesota.

Pipeline Milkers

Rancid flavor in raw milk where pipeline milkers are used can be kept to a minimum if the pipeline milkers are properly installed and properly used. Research shows that excessive foaming results in increased rancidity. To prevent foaming, dairy farmers are urged to follow these steps:

1. Allow air to be admitted at the claw only.
2. Use the "faster milking" techniques. If teat cups stay on too long, there'll be excessive air sucked in around them. In one herd of 60 cows, milking time was reduced by about 35 minutes. That reduced much of the rancidity problem.
3. Get rid of cracked or slitted milk tubes.
4. Keep all connections tight.
5. Don't let air into the milk line by opening petcocks.
6. Avoid risers in the pipeline wherever possible. The riser itself isn't particularly troublesome, but when both milk and air are in the line, foaming may result when milk meets the sharp upward bend of the riser.

REPORT from the GOVERNOR

by Orville L. Freeman

The second major bill incorporating recommendations of the Minnesota Governor's Tax Study Committee was introduced in the House of Representatives last week, and is now being studied carefully in committee. The first bill, providing for the pay-as-you-go principle in collecting the income tax, has passed the House and is now being considered in the Senate.

Bi-Partisan Committee

The Tax Study Committee is composed of men of both political parties, and representing the major economic interests of Minnesota. They did a noteworthy job, and a great service to our state, in studying our tax structure and arriving at recommended reforms. They agreed unanimously on the recommended program.

I have accepted and recommended their recommendations, because they will result in immeasurable gains for all the people of the state. Minnesota has never before, — nor, in fact, has any other state, — had placed before it for consideration a tax revision program that resulted from so much careful and able study, by representatives of so many differing interests and points of view.

An Omnibus Bill

The tax bill now being considered is necessarily a long one, and contains provisions relating to many different taxes. Of principal importance are its provisions relating to the taxation of personal property.

The Personal Property Tax

In Minnesota, there is more reliance on the property tax than in most other states. And yet this tax gives rise to many difficulties and inequities. We have 13 classes of property, subject to varying rates of assessment, ranging from 50% to 5% of its so-called "full and true" valuation. And the "full-and-true" valuation is usually only a fraction of the market value.

I believe there is fairly general agreement that reform in our taxation of personal property is urgently needed to remove some of the most difficult and enequitable features of our tax program.

Reductions Recommended

The omnibus tax bill would eliminate or reduce personal property taxes in an amount that would total $24,300,000. The tax on manufacturers' inventories would be removed. The tax on wholesale and retail inventories would be reduced by 40%.

Since manufacturers have a great deal more machinery and equipment, which would still be taxed, than wholesale and retail businesses usually have, the over-all tax relief that would be provided for business will be equitably distributed among these kinds of business. Personal property tax savings for them will total $14,700,000. This should be a real incentive to business growth in Minnesota.

Savings to Farmers

The personal property tax on farm inventories and livestock would likewise be removed, — amounting to a total tax relief for our farmers of $6,100,000. It is estimated that, together with the repeal of the head tax which is also provided for, farmers in Minnesota would save, on the average, $50 a year.

Householders' Savings

The personal property tax on household goods is one of the most difficult to administer, and in many cases hardly brings in enough revenue to pay for the cost of collecting. The removal of this tax, as provided for in the bill, would bring about a saving to individuals totalling $3,500,000. Each individual paying an income tax would, in addition, save as a result of the repeal of the head tax.

Other Provisions

Explanation of other parts of the tax program will be made in future columns. Since this whole program of tax revision is of such importance, I urge Minnesota citizens and taxpayers to give it their careful attention.

Home Accidents Are Fewer in State in '56

Minnesota homes were safer last year than they were in 1955.

Deaths from home accidents in 1956 totalled 538, as compared to 509 the year before, according to provisional figures from the Minnesota department of health. However, fatal accidents in Minnesota farm homes increased from 80 in 1955 to 92 in 1956, according to Glenn Prickett, extension safety specialist at the University of Minnesota.

Although the home was the scene of fewer accidents in Minnesota last year, it still ranked second to the highway in total accident fatalities. During January, 1957, nearly half of the deaths resulting from accidents of all types occurred in the home.

Falls are still responsible for more than half of the deaths from home accidents. About two-thirds of those who die from falls are in the age group of 65 years or over. Twice as many of the falls last year were from different levels as on the same level.

Poisonings, fires and explosions, suffocations and accidental discharge of firearms also take a big toll of lives in the home each year.

For every death from a home accident, there are usually four disabling injuries, Prickett said. Last year, for example, some 2,000 Minnesotans were permanently handicapped in home accidents. In addition, more than 53,000 received minor injuries.

As spring cleanup time approaches, the University safety specialist urges some special precautions to prevent falls, the number one killer:

Use only sturdy step stools and step ladders in doing home and yard chores. Avoid make-shift step stools for reaching into high cupboards or taking down curtains.

Keep stairs cleared of toys and general clutter.

Anchor rugs to prevent slipping.

Clean up immediately all household spills.

Choose a still day to take off storm windows and put on screens.

Fire Losses for Nation Increase

Estimated fire losses in the United States during February amounted to $95,569,000, the National Board of Fire Underwriters reported. According to Lewis A. Vincent, NBFU's general manager, this loss represents an increase of 13.7 per cent over losses of $84,041,000 reported for February, 1956, and a decrease of 17.1 per cent from losses of $115,272,000 for January, 1957.

Governor Backs Easter Seal Sale

Urges Public Support of Drive to Aid Crippled

Governor Orvill Freeman today urged Minnesotans to contribute generously to the 1957 Easter Seal appeal to help crippled children.

"I recently had the oportunity to meet Dianne Rowland, our state's Easter Seal child," said the governor, "and I hope that all Minnesotans will do their best to help youngsters like her by giving to Easter Seals.

"Dianne is one of the children who attended the Easter Seal Society's Camp Courage last summer," said the governor. "I've had an opportunity to see this fine camp and it truly offers hundreds of crippled children not only summer vacations, but a whole new outlook on life.

"Add to this wonderful camp the many other fine Easter Seal services, such as therapy treatments, distribution of equipment such as wheelchairs, hospital beds, walkers and other items, employment of handicapped adults, research, accident prevention and educational programs and you have a picture of what your Easter Seal contributions can do to help the handicapped," the governor said.

Industry Needs More Technicians Says NAM Group

Between five and seven well-trained technicians are needed right now for every single professional engineer in all areas of industrial reseach, development and production, the National Association of Manufacturers estimated today.

"There just aren't enoguh technically trained young people to go around—people who like mathematics and applied science, people who are able to turn the theories and ideas of scientists and engineers into workable products and processes," NAM declared.

Itasca Park Pictured in Post

The Headwaters of the Mississippi, Itasca State Park, Minnesota

Governor Freeman recently cited The J. R. Watkins Company of Winona for their continued publicizing of the state of Minnesota in national magazines.

The Post of April 6th, will carry another similar offer featuring the Headwaters of the Mississippi in Itasca state park as shown above.

Citing the enormous range of activities and career opportunities in all fields, NAM announced publication of a 32-page educational aid booklet entitled, "Your Opportunities in Industry as a Technician."

A companion piece to a similar educational aid, "Your Opportunities as a Skilled Craftsman", the booklet contains detailed descriptions of the work and qualifications needed to be a technical specialist in nine specific categories: electric power, diesel, instrumentation, air conditioning, chemical, tool design, aviation, industrial, electronics. Copies of both pamphlets can be obtained from the National Association of Manufacturers, 212 Foshay Tower, Minneapolis, Minn.

5,000,000 Workers To Be Added by '65

Industrial Group Sees No Rise in Ages 25-44

The age of the American worker may be a major factor in the future trend of investment in industry during the next decade, according to a study released today by the Minneapolis office of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Based on government statistics, the NAM study indicated that all of the anticipated five million growth of the male labor force by 1965 will be accounted for by the younger and older age groups.

Projections of the labor force by age brackets show large increases in the 14-24 year and the over-45 age groups.

In sharp contrast is the 25-44 age group, which is not expected to grow at all numerically. This is significant, NAM pointed out, because this group is often referred to as the "prime working group."

The major burden of producing the added output that will be demanded by our larger population in 1956 will then fall on the 14-24 age group and on those over 45. The 14-24 year group will expand 2.7 million, or 33 per cent, and the over-45 group, 2.3 million—or 13 per cent.

NAM pointed out that large amounts of capital may have to be expended, not only to provide new jobs—estimated at an investment of more than $14,000 per new job in manufacturing—but also to promote advances in automation to offset the sharp expansion of the relatively untrained and unskilled younger group if productivity is to increase at rates comparable with recent years.

Furthermore, NAM said, the capabilities of the older workers will have to be more fully utilized.

Less Franked Mail Is Being Sent out

1956 Volume Was Lowest of Any Year Since 1948

Postmaster R. J. Dryden reported today Congress and federal agencies are sending a smaller mail load now than formerly, according to reports from the postoffice department in Washington.

The facts on "fanked" (congressional) and "penalty" (federal department) mail, according to the new reports, are these:

1. Congress and federal agencies pay the postoffice department for all franked and penalty mail they send. This is required by Public Law 286 of August 15, 1953. In the last 1956 fiscal year, the department was paid $31,502,000 for penalty and franked mail.

2. Franked and penalty mail load combined in fiscal 1956 totaled 1.47 billion pieces, lowest in 10 years except for one year—1948, with 1.45 billion. The 1.47 billion pieces in 1956 constituted only a small part of the 56 billion piece load carried by the postal service during the fiscal year.

Postmaster Dryden noted that the department gets many letters from well-meaning citizens who propose that the postal deficit—now about half a billion dollars a year—could be solved easily, simply by persuading Congress and federal agencies to send less mail.

"Actually," he added, "the facts show how erroneous this theory is. As Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield has pointed out repeatedly, there is no easy way to solve the serious deficit. The only way is to raise the obsolete postage rates which have now been virtually unchanged in a quarter century."

There are no facts to substantiate the idea that cancer usually develops among people in poor health. The best safeguard against cancer, as any other disease, is regular checkups by a qualified physican.

Withholding Tax Opposed by State Taxpayers Group

Claims Use of System by Federal Government Hasn't Ended Delinquency

The experience of the federal government in Minnesota offers the best evidence that the withholding tax system is not the answer to elimination of tax delinquency or full tax collections, according to Charles P. Stone, general counsel of the Minnesota Taxpayers association.

Senator Williams of Delaware recently announced in Washington that the nation's total tax delinquency was $1,619,629,000 of which $279,183,000 was in the category designated as employment taxes. This category includes employer's delinquent withholding accounts. As a matter of fact, such accounts make up about ¾ths of the total delinquencies in the category.

Mr. Stone quoted Senator Williams as stating that the Saint Paul district had an 8.5 per cent increase in unemployment tax delinquency from 1954 to 1955 and a 21.5 per cent increase in 1956. He said that the Saint Paul district figures show a decrease of 4.6 per cent in total tax delinquency from 1954 to 1955 but a 20.8 per cent jump last year.

"If withholding was the answer to the tax collection problem this situation in which the federal government finds itself and to which Senator Williams is objecting, would not prevail. The answer, of course, is enforcement, no matter what the law may be."

The 25th annual stockholders' meeting of the Northern Cooperatives, Inc. is scheduled to be held on Tuesday, April 2 at Memorial Auditorium in Wadena.

The business now known as the Northern Cooperatives, Inc. and located at Wadena since 1936, today includes 197 local agricultural cooperatives associations as common stockholders. In addition to continuing to provide motor truck transportation the organization has developed an extensive business in supplying local associations with farm and creamery supplies and is marketing over 8,000,000 lbs. butter annually for members creameries.

The forenoon will be devoted to business reports and election of directors. The public is invited to attend the afternoon program at which time following addresses will be presented. "Minnesota's Changing Agriculture" by Skull Rutford, director of the Agricultural Extension Service, University of Minnesota; and "Opportunities for Marketing Minnesota's Eggs" by William H. Dankers, extension economist in marketing, University of Minnesota.

Roy E. Wiseth, Goodridge and Arthur Hanson, Ulen, are president and secretary of the association respectively.

The way to start a day right is to start the night before.

Three Reelected as Directors of Goodridge Plant

Manager of Creamery Reports Small Decline in Volume During 1956

At the well-attended annual meeting of the Goodridge cooperative creamery Saturday afternoon in the Goodridge school gymnasium, three directors were reelected for two-year terms, including Adolph Geving, Joe Schiofer and Otto Zlater.

Speakers were Supt. B. E. Youngquist of Northwest School, Crookston; O. J. Overmoen of Red Lake Falls, manager of the Red Lake Electric cooperative; Mr. Johnson of the Roseau REA; and Stuart McLeod, manager of the TRF branch of Land O' Lakes.

James Salveson, manager of the creamery, read the report covering 1956 operations, showing that while the plant's volume was down slightly last year, net earnings of $1,753.12 were only 87 cents less than in 1955.

Average net price paid for butterfat in sweet cream was 62.75 cents, including a patronage refund of .95 cent. The overrun on butterfat churned was 23.99 per cent.

It was announced that the creamery this spring is starting to pay off patrons' equity earnings, the last payments having been made in 1948.

The Goodridge high school band played before the meeting began, and lunch was served by the Goodridge Lutheran church ladies aid.

Development Unit Met Here Monday

Barley Pelletizing Plants Main Topic of Discussion

Men representing eight communities in this section of the state attended the March meeting of the board of directors of the Northwest Development association held Monday evening at the Wm. LaFave residence in this city.

Principal topic of discussion was plans being made by several towns to seek the establishment of barley pelletizing plants, it being pointed out that barley pellets are cheaper than corn for fattening cattle and hogs.

Among cities expressing interest in the proposal were Crookston, Thief River Falls, Hallock and Roseau. Processing of dairy products and other farm commodities also was discussed.

Arrangements were made to hold the next meeting in Thief River Falls Monday evening, April 29.

Benhart Johnson VFW Commander

Elected Monday Night to Succeed Arnold Kelly

Benhart Johnson was named to succeed Arnold Kelly as commander of the Thief River Falls post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in its annual election conducted Monday evening.

Other officers elected include Oliver Mossestad, senior vice commander; Melvin Hoffman, junior vice commander; Matt Guttu, quartermaster; Harlin Huset, post advocate; Arnold Kelly, trustee for three years; and Selmer Dimmen, chaplain.

The new staff will be installed in ceremonies Monday evening, April 8.

A Mahnomen county coroner's jury Monday held that five young people killed in a freak accident early Thursday died of electrocution as a result of the "willful, unlawful, careless and reckless driving" of William Schultz, 25, Winger.

Schultz drove a car which left Highway 59, a mile north of Bejou early Thursday, and struck a power pole. The crash brought down a line carrying 34,500 volts.

The jury placed the blame at an inquest called Monday by Coroner Kenneth Mattson of Mahnomen. The verdict came after the jury heard testimony by two Minnesota highway patrolmen and other witnesses.

Patrolmen Louis Gelen and Lloyd Danger, both of Crookston, indicated that high speed and carelessness were factors in the accident.

Schultz and another occupant of his car, as well as three would-be rescuers were killed when they came in contact with the high voltage.

Mattson, testifying as a witness, said that in his opinion all five persons died from electric shock.

County Atty. A. J. Powers questioned witnesses who included several occupants of the death car.

James Haverman, 21, Winger, said he was one of four persons riding in the front seat of the car.

Haverman said that after the car came to rest on its side in the water-filled ditch he found himself in the back seat. Haverman testified he climbed out of the car's window and jumped to safety.

Haverman said he must have touched water because he felt a shock.

Donald Haugen, 21, also of Winger, an occupant of the Schultz car was killed, apparently as he walked around the car after the accident. His body was found outside the machine.

Haverman was one of eight young people in the car. They were returning home from a dance.

Highway Bill Is Passed by House Monday

Changes Division of Receipts from Gas Tax and Licenses

The big highway bill was passed by the Minnesota House Monday by a vote of 108-12. It now goes to the Senate.

Authors succeeded in resisting all attempts to change the bill with one minor exception.

Rural legislators' attempts to have some of the funds go toward township and village levels were defeated, with Rep. Charles Halsted of Brainerd and Rep. Aubrey Dirlam of Redwood Falls leading the fight for passage of the bill as approved by the highways committee.

The measure carries out the provisions of constitutional amendment No. 2, adopted by voters at last November's election, changing distribution of reciepts from gasoline taxes and motor vehicle license fees so that counties get a bigger share.

One of Governor Freeman's major welfare proposals—a plan to help finance construction of nursing homes — went down to defeat in the legislature Tuesday.

The senate welfare committee voted to postpone indefinitely (kill) SF 53, a bill to provide two million dollars on a matching basis to help local government units and private nonprofit organizations to build nursing homes for aged persons.

Next, the committee in quick order passed two related bills:

SF 54 (HF 78) authorizing cities, villages and combinations of townships to set up and operate nursing homes.

SF 55 which abolishes the requirement that a county board vote unanimously on establishment of a county nursing home. It substitutes a requirement for a simple majority vote.

The House Wednesday afternoon re-passed a bill to regulate installment sale of motor vehicles after concurring in changes made by the Senate. The measure was passed by a vote of 91-15 after lively debate.

It is a compromise of a House bill on the amount of interest that may be charged on conditional sales contracts for new and used cars.

The compromise provides for charges of $8 per hundred dollars for current models and models one year old; $11 for cars two to three years old, and $13 for older cars, per year.

Unemployment Pay in 5-county Area Totals $426,379 During 1956

During the calendar year 1956 a total of $426,379 in unemployment insurance benefits was paid out to unemployed workers in the five-county area consisting of Kittson, Marshall, Pennington, Red Lake and Roseau counties. Of this amount $100,098 was paid to unemployed veterans who were eligible as a result of military service.

The payments were made thru the Thief River Falls office of the Minnesota State Employment Service which serves the five Northwest counties of Minnesota. A further breakdown of payments reveals that unemployed workers in Kittson county received $52,016 in benefit payments; Marshall county $112,468; Pennington county $138,187; Red Lake county $54,405; and Roseau county $69,303.

The above amounts do not take into consideration benefit payments made to unemployed workers in this area who worked in other states and who are eligible for payments as a result of their work in those states. Such payments are paid directly to the worker by the liable state. In handling such claims, the employment service acts only as the agent for the liable state and the claimant. A nationwide network of state employment offices and an interstate agreement regarding procedures makes it possible for eligible workers to file their claims in any office in the United States, regardless of where they may have worked and earned qualifying wage credits.

R. S. Eldevik, manager of the Thief River Falls office, states that unemployment insurance payments were approximately 6% higher in 1956 than they were in 1955. He points out, however, that this is not primarily due to an increase in the number of persons unemployed but rather to the fact that more workers were eligible for benefits in 1956 as a result of a change in the federal law making it necessary for a large number of employers of four or more workers to pay the unemployment insurance tax.

Persons working for employers excluded under the law are not eligible for unemployment benefits.

At the present time, the number of unemployed workers receiving unemployment insurance benefits in the five-county area is approximately 1,000. It is expected that this will be the peak load. Many workers now drawing compensation will go back to work as outside construction activity can start.

Eldevik states that to be eligible for unemployment compensation a person must be unemployed, able to work and available for work. Persons unable to work or for some reason unwilling to accept immediate employment are not eligible for payments.

Discoloration in Water Held Due to Activated Carbon

Harold M. Johnson, States Superintendent, States Water Is Perfectly Safe

The slight discoloration of the water so many city residents have commented on recently is nothing to cause concern, according to Harold Johnson, water treatment plant superintendent.

Johnson said the discoloration results from activated carbon added to the water to remove all color, taste and odor but nothing has been added to the water to cause any unusual taste or odor.

The reason the water is cloudy is that activated carbon has been added in such heavy amounts recently that some of it got thru the filters at the plant. The water itself is perfectly safe and biologically pure, Johnson emphasized. The activated carbon additive has been cut back recently, he said, and the discoloration should disappear shortly.

He stated that the water now coming from Red Lake appears quite similar to water off peat soil and in some instances has a taste like snow water, thus the addition of the carbon.

It is a very unusual condition and is the second time it has appeared here. A similar situation existed for a short time last fall, Johnson said, but it cleared up within a short time.

The heavy rains last fall and the spring run-off may possibly have something to do with the situation. Samples of the water have been sent to the state health department for analysis, Johnson said.

Hospital Auxiliary Hears Dr. Flancher

Sunnyrest San Head Tells of Fight on TB

At the March meeting of the Northwestern Hospital Auxiliary Monday afternoon, Dr. L. H. Flancher, superintendent of Sunnyrest sanatorium at Crookston, gave an interesting account of the progress made in the past 40 years in the treatment of tuberculosis.

Tuberculosis was once known as the no. 1 killer whereas now as a result of proper treatment, helpful drugs now available, intensive educational programs in prevention and cure of the disease it occupies a position as 10th or 11th, he said.

A more complete eradication of the disease has been accomplished in animals than in humans. Dr. Flancher added, the fight against tuberculosis must still go on as early detection of the disease is a great help in effecting a permanent cure. Treatment of the disease today is quite different than it was 40 years ago when Dr. Flancher started in this work, he pointed out.

After a coffee break, there was a short business meeting and an apron sale. Proceeds from the sale of aprons, which had been made by members, was given to the Gift Shop.

The next meeting will be April 29 at 2:00 p.m., in the hospital dining room.
